Jerseys A Family Tradition For Harris Family

CAROLYN N. MOYER
Bradford Co.Correspondent

MILAN (Bradford Co.) — Jersey cows and the Harris family have been entwined for many generations.

"My grandfather and great grandfather were Jersey farmers. I'm not sure how far back beyond that it goes. My dad's younger brother stayed on the farm and bought that place," said Brian Harris, owner of Sunset Ridge Farm.

The Harris family is tied for first place in the 1995 Pennsylvania DHIA Herd Management Award contest for Jerseys.

After graduating from the School of Agriculture in Alfred, N.Y., Eugene, Brian's father, managed the school's herd for seven years. In 1945 he decided he wanted to farm on his own and purchased the farm the Harris family operates, located about one mile from the original homestead. He and his wife, Alice, still live near the farm.

In 1972, Brian was graduated from Penn State with a degree in animal industry and formed a partnership with his father.

Since about 1992, Brian has handled most of the operation but in many ways he still sees the farm as a partnership.

"Most of the records still say Eugene and Brian Harris," said Harris. "Because Dad's contributed so much to the farm over the years and still does, his name stays. He comes over everyday and helps with the barn work and taking care of the calves — making sure everything gets done."

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Each year thousands use the Farm and Home Center located at 1383 Arcadia Road, Lancaster. It's the hub of activity for agricultural-based groups and for community services.

Behind the scenes much is required to keep the building and grounds presentable in addition to keeping it profitable. The group responsible for overseeing the day to day operations of the Farm and Home Foundation held their annual banquet on Tuesday night and took a look at the cash flow and projects of the center.

Suffered An Injury? AgrAbility Provides Answers

ANDY ANDREWS

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — Doug Schaufler would like to make it easier for farmers who have suffered an injury or are disabled to make a living.

He wants them to know that he has a file containing the solutions to hundreds of problems they may have — such as getting into a tractor if they've lost the use of their legs or even doing things like constructing simple levers to open hard-to-turn door knobs.

And his work on a special program doesn't just help farmers that are disabled from injuries, but those that have suffered from the ravages of diseases such as cancer or heart attacks.

The work helps those who are farming and have suffered from non-farm related accidents, too.

Schaufler, program manager for AgrAbility For Pennsylvanians, spoke to more than 100 producers and agri-industry representatives at the Penn State-Berks County Crops Day on Tuesday in Leesport.

The program, a joint effort of the Penn State Department of Ag and Extension Education, the Penn State Ag and Biological Engineering Department, and Easter Seal Society of Central Pennsylvania, promotes success in agriculture for people with disabilities and their families.

Schaufler, who spoke about the statewide project begun in March 1995, indicated that AgrAbility is far-reaching and can help people in a lot of ways.

Schaufler said that in 1989, an estimated 120,000 people in ag-related jobs suffered a disabling injury. Each year, 250 people in Pennsylvania become permanently disabled as a result of accidents in agriculture.

"There are a lot of programs, projects, whatever you want to call them that help folks with disabilities in factories, in office places, and for a long time, people in agriculture were basically ignored and everyone assumed they were all fine and jolly," said Schaufler.

AgrAbility started in 1991 as the result of the U.S. Farm Bill. It has spread to 18 states. It started in Indiana and Iowa, primarily.

The program helps not only with equipment and enabling devices for those who are handicapped, but has helped people with cancer, who have experienced stroke, or other disabling diseases.

The project even helped someone who fell out of a hunting stand and ended up with a spinal cord injury. It even helped someone with a brain injury as a result of standing up in a shed that was too low.

"It also points out that not everybody we're working with has had a so-called farm injury," said Schaufler.

Butler Fair Queen Wins State Title
Newport Man Fairperson Of Year

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.

HERSHEY (Dauphin Co.) — An 18-year-old University of Pittsburgh nursing student was named the 1996 Pennsylvania Fair Queen Jan. 20 at the Hershey Lodge and Convention Center in conjunction with the 84th annual convention of the Pennsylvania State Association of County Fairs (PSACF).

The event marked the 10th anniversary for the annual state fair queen coronation.

Also, Paul Britcher Sr., of Perry County, was named the PSACF fairperson of the year, an honor bestowed annually to a fair person who is recognized for outstanding long time service to the betterment and promotion of county fairs.

Feather Thomas, Butler County's 1995 fair queen, was selected from a field of 44 contestants for the title of state queen, an honor that brings with it a $1,000 scholarship and the obligation to represent the PSACF at the Feb. 5 Cornucopia event in Harrisburg, at the mid-August Penn State Ag Progress Days in Rockspring, at the January 1997 Pennsylvania State Farm Show, and next January at the 11th annual fair queen coronation, as well as any other events that may arise.

In addition, the state queen is expected to attend at least 12 county fairs — three in each of the four fair zones into which the PSACF divides the state.

Delmarva Broiler

JANUARY 24, 1996

Movement of ready-to-cook whole birds remained light to only fair at best. Seller offerings were fully adequate to ample for current needs. Live supplies were generally noted as moderate to heavy; weights were mostly desirable to heavy. Processing schedules were very heavy. Less than trucklot asking prices were 1 cent lower at 54 to 65 cents. Trade sentiment was steady at best. In the parts complex, all items were at least adequate for a lackluster buying interest. Breast items were in best demand. Wings were in excess.

NY Phil Frozen Eggs

Prices were higher. The market tone was firm. Demand was mostly for less-than-trucklot volumes at current high price levels, and trading was light to moderate. Floor stocks were generally adequate. Shell egg supplies were adequate, and prices were higher. Liquid and frozen eggs processed under federal inspection in the Eastern region for the week ending January 13, 1996 were 14% less than last week, and 19% less than the same week last year.

National Egg Market

Prices were unchanged to lower in the Northeast, and unchanged elsewhere. The market tone was cautiously steady to weak. Demand was light to moderate, and slower than last week. Supplies were adequate and available with limited inter-dealer inquiry. Breaking stock supplies were adequate to fully adequate, and prices were lower under a barely steady to weak trade sentiment. Light hen offerings were adequate to fully adequate for the light demand.

NE Chicken Pts 1&2

Trucklot buying interest remained light and selective. Supplies of all items were at least adequate. Best inquiry centered on boneless skinless and bone-in breast. Wings were burdensome. The market tone was no better than steady.

National Grain Market

ST. JOSEPH, MO
JANUARY 24, 1996

Wheat bids continued higher in reaction to China's very large wheat purchase. Corn bids mostly lower, due to light profit taking but good export sales limited declines. Soybean bids fell slightly lower on weaker meal demand and lower corn bids. Wheat 1 to 6 cents higher. Corn 1 to 2 cents lower except Omaha 4 cents higher. Sorghum 1 to 4 cents lower. Soybeans 1 to 3 cents lower. The announcement that China bought around 1.5 million metric tons of US wheat was positive to bids. However, the long anticipation of the sale and tight stock figures kept increases under control. Indications additional purchases are in the works may keep wheat bids on the upward side. Corn and soybean bids were mostly lower, despite the foreign sales overnight, especially for corn. Some fund selling was noted in corn and bean pits after yesterday's gains. Weakness in soybean meal dragged beans slightly lower.

OK City Feeder Cattle

OKLAHOMA CITY, OK
JANUARY 24, 1996

Compared to last Monday: Feeder cattle steady to 2.00 lower. Demand moderate for feeders. Steer calves steady with good demand. Heifer calves 1.00-2.00 lower with light to moderate demand. Quality of supply plain to mostly average with modest end attractive; this will below the excellent genetic quality of last week. Feeder cattle flesh condition highly varied from fairly fleshy to slightly thin. Cattle off wheat are very limited compared to past two years and often times extra flesh due more to feed than grazing. Calf flesh medium to thin. Weigh-ups average. Slaughter cows 1.00-2.00-higher. Slaughter bulls firm. Packer demand good for lighter numbers. Total of 300 cows and bulls sold, with about 85 percent going to packers. Receipts this week 7,800; last week 12,550; last year 4,442. The OLD FARMER'S THIS WEEK WITH ALMANAC

JAN. 29-FEB. 4, 1996

FULL SNOW MOON, FEB. 4.

FESTIVAL OF ST. BRIGIT

February 1 is the day of St. Brigit or St. Bride, a patron saint of Ireland. St. Brigit's ribbon, worn around the head, is said to cure a headache. A little straw cross called St. Brigit's bow is tucked into the roof thatch to protect a house. Her day is the start of spring in Ireland, the legend being that she dipped her finger in the brook and released the hen that hatches the cold. In 18th-century Scotland, the women made Brigit's bed on the eve of February 2, saying "Bride is here, Bride is welcome!" to ensure continued fertility.

"The Irish are a fair people — they never speak well of one another."

– Samuel Johnson

TIP OF THE WEEK

☞ A raw potato, added to overly salted soup and boiled, will reduce the salt flavor.

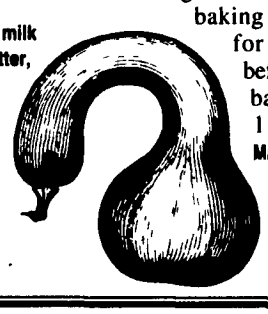
SQUASH CASSEROLE

1 cup sugar
1 cup flour
1/4 teaspoon nutmeg
1/4 teaspoon cinnamon
1/2 teaspoon salt
20 ounces frozen or cooked squash
3-1/4 cups milk
1/2 cup butter, melted
6 eggs

Combine dry ingredients in a bowl, then stir in squash. Add milk, butter, and eggs. Mix well, then pour into a well-greased 9x13-inch glass baking pan. Refrigerate for at least 2 hours before baking, then bake at 325° F for 1 hour.

Makes 6 to 8 servings.



The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER PROVERBS

If there is snow on St. Brigit's Day (Feb. 1), the ditches will be filled with rain come spring.

OPINION

Unruly Bread Lines

The blizzard of '96 destroyed the myth held by many consumers. Milk, bread, eggs, and meat do not grow on grocery store shelves.

Isn't it interesting that when people think they may not be able to get food, they go into what William Schreiber, general manager, Holly Milk, calls a "mob mentality"? And it is always the basic foods close to the farm they fight for.

A bread truck driver in south central Pennsylvania was hospitalized at the height of the empty shelf syndrome when panic-striken store customers mobbed him as he tried to unload his truck outside the store in preparation to fill the empty space in the store. If the short term reduction in our basic food supply causes such violence, what would a permanent reduction in our nation's food supply bring?

Actually, we foresee a growing permanent reduction to the supply of basic farm commodities such as milk, pork, and maybe even cereal grains. While no one really wants to face this reality, the economic pressures on the farmer has caused a reduction in basic food supplies available, especially those produced close to our eastern population centers. Pressure from the weather, housing and shopping center development, property taxation, nutrient management regulations, and the lack of competition among processors is causing farmers to give up. And many of these farms that are being abandoned are now growing houses or put into the ever-popular but unproductive "open space."

As basic commodities must be shipped from western states to our eastern markets, the opportunity increases for food supply shortages to be realized from transportation disruptions.

We think permanent shortages of basic foods are a realistic possibility. Forecasters say short milk supplies are likely in 1996. And the recent price-hit hog farmers have taken has noticeably reduced pork supplies. At the same time, exports of farm commodities are expanding.

The panic at the grocery store from the relatively small disruption in the food supply during the recent snow storm certainly indicates a much larger problem if the shortages become permanent.

Don't say it couldn't happen. It is already a very real problem in other countries where political and social programs have destroyed the farm economy.

Let's start now to take better care of our farmers by improving their paycheck for our food and for their good production practices. We have many good farmers who would like to continue their way of life if they could just make a living at it. To pay farmers well to continue to produce our abundant food supply seems like a much more pleasant prospect than to need to call out the national guard to police the unruly bread lines at the local grocery store when the shelves are empty.

To Learn About Nutrient Management

The proposed Nutrient Management Regulations have been published in the Pennsylvania Bulletin on December 30, 1995.

There is a 90-day public comment period for people to make comments, suggestions, or objections regarding the proposed regulations. The regulations define concentrated animal units, contents of a nutrient management plan, manure application, manure management, storm water runoff control, manure storage, and record keeping requirements.

Also, the proposed regulations detail manure marketing procedures, well location, manure spreading, and financial assistance.

These are very important regulations for Pennsylvania agriculture. All farmers should understand the proposed regulations and make appropriate comments to the State Conservation Commission.

To Attend Meetings On Nutrient Management Regulations

The State Conservation Commission will be holding a series of informational meetings on the proposed regulations before the public hearings.

The informational meetings will be held Jan. 30 at Sommerset County Vo-Tech, Jan. 31 at Mercer County Cooperative Extension, Feb. 1 at Wysox Fire Hall, Feb. 8 at Brynwood Inn, Feb. 12 at Shippensburg Sr. High School, and Feb. 13 at Lancaster County Farm and Home Center.

All meetings are from 6:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. There will be an additional meeting from 12:30 p.m. to 3:30 p.m. at the Lancaster site.

There will be four public hearings in March for people to make public comments. Also, people may make written comments to the State Conservation Commission, Room 304, 2301 North Cammeron Street, Harrisburg PA 17110.

For more details on the comment procedure, meetings, hearings and details of the regulations, contact Karl Brown, State Conservation Commission, at (717) 787-8821.

In addition to these meetings, this topic will be discussed at many meetings sponsored by cooperative extension, conservation districts, and other farm organizations.

Plan to attend, learn about the proposed regulations, and take an active part in this regulatory process.

To Know Wood Stove Safety

Most people enjoy the comfort and warmth of a wood fire in the fireplace or wood stove. However, safety when using the fireplace or wood stove should not be overlooked, according to Robert Anderson, extension agronomy agent.

The burning of any wood, no matter how dry, will produce creosote which will build up in the chimney or flue pipe. The creosote buildup will ignite anytime the temperature reaches 1,000 degrees Fahrenheit.

A wood fire can produce temperatures of more than 1,300 degrees within minutes. To be safe, chimneys and stovepipes should be cleaned of all soot and creosote at least once a year to prevent the damage of a fire.

It is a good idea to check the chimney or stovepipe every time the fire is left to go out. If a buildup of creosote is found, cleaning is needed.

If you have a wood stove, it should be at least 36 inches away from any combustible surfaces to the side and 18 inches above the floor.

TICKER TAPE AIN'T SPAGHETTI

TICKER TAPE AIN'T SPAGHETTI
January 28, 1996

Background Scripture:
Isaiah 52:13 through 53:12
Devotional Reading:
Revelation 3:14-21

Somewhere in Mexico there is a famous statue sculpted by Jesus Garcia. It has a most peculiar name: "In Spite Of." In the midst of sculpting the statue, Garcia lost his right hand. That should have halted forever his work on it, but Garcia determined that he would learn to sculpt with his left hand and finish the statue. He did learn to do so and some critics said he actually did better with his left hand than his right. So, in honor of this man's perseverance, they called that statue "In Spite Of." It should have been Garcia's defeat; instead, he made it a resounding victory.

I have asked myself whether, if I had been Garcia, I would have thrown in the towel if I had lost one of my hands. I like to think I would have persevered as he did, but I don't really know. Lots of life's greatest struggles are defeats only because we surrender halfway through. Bennett Cerf tells of a boy named Tommy Noonan who picked up a nice piece of change mowing neighbors' lawns after school. One day his mother chided him for not getting started right after school and he replied: "I'm waiting for them to start themselves. I get most of my work from people who are halfway through."

FOURTH SERVANT SONG

The fourth Servant Song of Isaiah (Isaiah 52:13 to 53:12) is the victory song of the servant. But until near the very end of it, it doesn't sound like a song of victory. In fact, it sounds like downright defeat. For, although God had promised, "Behold, my servant shall prosper, he shall be exalted and lifted up, and shall be very high," the Servant "was despised and rejected by men; a man of sorrows, and acquainted with grief..." (52:13, 53:3). The Servant of Isaiah had become the Suffering Servant.

The early Christian church saw Jesus Christ as the fulfillment of this prophecy. Like the Servant of Isaiah, Jesus also "has borne our griefs and carried our sorrows; ... he was wounded for our transgression, he was bruised for our iniquities..." (53:4, 5). Yet the suffering of Christ was not defeat, but victory: "upon him was the chastisement that made us whole, and with his stripes we are healed..." The victory of the Suffering Servant and Jesus Christ was not escape from suffering, but turning suffering into healing and wholeness for many.

The Servant does not seek suffering, but neither does he or she flinch from it if God's purpose may be realized. Victory is determined and pronounced, not by the world, but by God. "Therefore I will divide him a portion with the great, and he shall divide the spoil with the strong; because he poured out his soul to death, and was numbered with the transgressors" (53:12).

WOUNDED FOR US

Jesus neither sought martyrdom nor did he run from it. For the sake of the love and will of God "he poured out his soul to death." The passion of Jesus was not about dying, but about pouring out one's soul for others. And his manner was not one of defiance, but of vicarious love. He did not go to the cross cursing his enemies or protesting his innocence. Instead, "He was oppressed, and he was afflicted, yet he opened not his mouth" (53:7).

The Servant and Jesus—or Jesus the Servant, if you like—show us how to both live and die victoriously. Real victory is not winning in the world's eyes. As the late mayor of New York, Fiorello LaGuardia, once observed, "Ticker tape ain't spaghetti." It is a common human failing to spend our lives on ticker tape. But the real victory lies far beyond that.

◆ FARM FORUM ◆

Editor:

As an organization involved in agricultural promotion, we are responding to your editorial of Jan. 13, 1996.

There is no doubt that all farm organizations could and should be doing more to insure that today's young people know more about the basics of life, agriculture. But many of these organizations have many other issues to address and their agendas don't focus on the public's lack of knowledge about agriculture.

The Agriculture Awareness Foundation of Pennsylvania was founded five years ago to very specifically address this issue. To date, Ag in the Classroom, AAFPA has trained 307 teachers to include agricultural concepts in what they teach. The program will train an additional 100 teachers this summer during an intense six-day workshop at Penn State. Many would say that's not enough, but the teachers go back to their classrooms and not only use the volumes of agricultural teaching materials and projects with their own classes but share this information with other teachers who use it with their classes. If these teachers only use the information within their own classrooms, they have touched 18,175 students over the last five years. But we know that isn't all they do. Some of the graduates of the program organize school-wide events which help students at all levels learn about where they get their food, clothing and shelter. Others prepare materials for other grade levels and make presentations to other classes. Many have spoken out about the program with colleagues while taking other courses.

This year regional workshops have been added to assist over 200 teachers, graduates of the summer program and others, receive additional information and knowledge about the relationship of agriculture to the environment. As a result of these workshops, materials will be published to assist any teacher include materials, activities and projects in their own classrooms.

Though the foundation is best known for the Ag in the Classroom program, it also supports a state-wide speakers' bureau. Finding people in agriculture who are willing to be trained as speakers, representing the industry as a whole is difficult at best. The foundation has applied to the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture for matching funds to train and equip speakers to be available anywhere in the state.

Many of the state and local farm organizations and agri-business support foundation with contributions, participating on the board of directors or volunteering for the state-wide speakers' bureau but that will never be enough. The foundation is a tool to be used to get the word out about the importance of agriculture. Its only function is to communicate that message to the public. Focus and support from the entire agricultural community will see that that is accomplished.

Carol Ann Gregg,
Education Coordinator, AAFPA

We Can't Keep It Quiet Any Longer

INTRODUCING:
The Big Dutchman UniGROW360 Broiler Feeding System.
After years of broiler pan evolution, it's time for a revolution.

Now, you can quickly and easily adjust the feed level as often as you like.

This special winch enables simultaneous feed level adjustment of a line of UniGROW360 pans with a simple turn of the crank. Unlike other systems, it is not dependent upon level floors.

Everyone also knows manually adjusting hundreds of pans every couple of days is unrealistic. The income you would gain in feed efficiency would be lost several times over in labor costs. That's why the UniGROW360 system is so revolutionary.

ALL THE ANSWERS FROM KUBOTA

Kubota's new L-35 has performance features that include a GST transmission for clutchless shifting on the go through all 8 forward and reverse speeds, hydrostatic power steering, and a roomy ISO-mounted operator's platform that reduces vibration. An optional hydraulic port offers the versatility to use hydraulic breakers and other tools.

The rugged B-20 offers a liquid-cooled 20 HP diesel engine with hydrostatic transmission, integral power steering, and standard 4WD for greater traction and power.

Both the B-20 and L-35 feature a loader-integrated reinforced frame that withstands rigorous work . Loader operation is simplified with a single-lever control, and the durable backhoe can be attached or detached in just a few minutes without the use of any tools. For even more versatility, a Rear-PTO and 3-point hitch capacity allow you to till, scrape, mow, and more.

N.Y., N.J. December Milk $13.64

ALBANY, N.Y. — Dairy farmers who supplied regulated milk dealers (handlers) under the New York-New Jersey marketing orders during December 1995 will be paid by handlers on the basis of a uniform price of $13.64 per hundredweight (29.3 cents per quart).

The price for the corresponding month last year was $12.83 per hundredweight.

Market Administrator Ronald C. Pearce said the price was $13.37 in November 1995. The uniform price is a marketwide weighted average of the value of farm milk used for fluid and manufactured dairy products.

A total of 11,305 dairy farmers supplied handlers regulated under the New York-New Jersey marketing orders with 993,475,645 pounds of milk during December 1995. This was an increase of 3.5 percent (about 33 million pounds) from last year. The gross value to dairy farmers for milk deliveries was $137,258,518.82. This included differentials required to be paid to dairy farmers but not premiums, deductions authorized by the farmer, or assessments.

Regulated handlers used 424,896,486 pounds of milk for Class I, 42.8 percent of the total. This milk is used for fluid milk products such as homgenized, flavored, low test, and skim milks. For December 1995, handlers paid $15.03 per hundredweight (32.3 cents per quart) for Class I milk compared with $14.71 a year ago.

Handlers used 143,912,060 pounds of milk for Class II products, 14.5 percent of the total. Class II products include fluid cream, eggnog, ricotta and cottage cheeses, ice cream, and yogurt. Handlers paid $12.91 per hundredweight for this milk.

Milk used to manufacture Class III products including butter, cheese (other than ricotta and cottage cheeses), and whole milk powder totaled 396,873,458 pounds (39.9 percent of the total). Handlers paid $12.97 per hundredweight for this milk.

Milk used to manufacture nonfat dry milk (Class III-A) totaled 27,793,641 pounds (2.8 percent of the total). Handlers paid $11.30 per hundredweight for this milk.

The uniform price is based on milk containing 3.5 percent butterfat. For December 1995, there was a price differential of 6.1 cents for each one-tenth of one percent that the milk tested above or below the 3.5 percent standard.

All prices quoted are for bulk tank milk received from farms in the 201-to 210-mile zone from New York City.

York/Adams Dairy MAP Finance Session Planned

YORK (York Co.) — Dairy producers are encouraged to attend the York/Adams Dairy MAP finance workshop planned for Feb. 6 and 13 at the Crosskeys Inn.

The dairy industry is presently going through changing times. As a dairy farmer, you should be able to answer the following questions about your dairy business.

Do you know how much profit you made last year? Did you have financial goals for 1995? Do your financial goals match your mission statement? Do you know how to calculate your profit, better known as net farm income?

Did you prepare a cash flow projection for 1996? Do you want to impress your banker with your financial progress? Do you want to learn how to set goals to reach the standard of living your family needs and desires?

If you wish to improve your financial management ability, plan to attend this Finance Module. Dairy producers will receive instructions on preparing their own balance sheet and cash flow projection to give their lender, and will learn how to calculate their farms profit. Participants will be able to interpret the value of ratios such as the current ratio, debt to asset ratio, investment per cow, milk sold per worker equivalent, and return on investment.

These ratios help predict the future financial performance of the farm, and your banker uses these measures to evaluate your farm when reviewing your farms performance and ability to repay debt.

The tools to monitor financial progress will be provided as producers set goals and standards for 1) liquidity — ability to pay bills when due; 2) solvency — the relationship of assets to debt; 3) profitability — as measured by farm profit or return on assets and labor; and 4) debt structure — the relationship of assets to debt by current, intermediate, and long-term categories. Tips to correct financial problems in these areas will also be provided.

In previous years, the extension has required participants to first attend the Dairy MAP Managing for Success module before taking the finance program. Because of January cancellations that requirement has been changed and this program is open to any interested producer. Many agribusinesses around the state have provided scholarships for producers to attend the workshops.

Holstein Association Scholarship

BRATTLEBORO, Vt.—Dairy graduates who are interested in pursuing a master's degree in business administration are encouraged to apply for the Robert H. Rumler Scholarship. The $3,000 award is given by Holstein Association USA.

The scholarship is awarded annually to a recipient who has graduated from an accredited agricultural college or university with a bachelor's degree in dairy production or its equivalent. It may be given to a student at the beginning of an MBA program or to one who is entering the second year of the program.

The scholarship program was started in 1984 by the Association to honor Rumler, who had served as executive secretary of the Holstein Association. Rumler had worked for 36 years for the Association, and was named chairman emeritus of the Association at the time of his retirement.

Eligibility requirements include:

1. Applicants must have graduated from an accredited agricultural college or university with a bachelor's degree in dairy production or its equivalent.

2. The applicant should have ranked in the upper one-third of the agricultural graduates of the college or university granting the applicant's B.S. degree.

3. Significant extracurricular activities as an undergraduate will receive consideration.

4. While not an unqualified requirement, heavy preference will be given to applicants having had several years of work experience following receipt of a bachelor's degree. Evaluation of leadership qualities, management aptitude, executive intuition and personal traits evidenced during this period will weigh heavily in the selection process.

5. Previous applicants may reapply, providing eligibility requirements are met. A previous recipient will be eligible for only one additional scholarship to complete degree requirements.

Applications for the scholarship are due April 15. They can be obtained either through the office of the dean at agricultural colleges, or from the Holstein Association, by writing to: 1 Holstein Place, Brattleboro, VT 05302-0808; or calling (802) 254-4551.

Corporate Meeting To Feature Dr. Ferguson

DAVID BIGELOW
Training Coordinator

Associate Professor of Nutrition, James Ferguson, VMD, of the New Bolton Center, University of Pennsylvania, will be one of the featured speakers at the annual Pa. DHIA corporate meeting.

He will speak on the subject of milk urea nitrogen. Dr. Ferguson has conducted extensive research on MUN testing. He will share some of his research findings along with pointing out several other advantages to testing for MUN.

Testing for MUN allows the cow to speak for herself as to whether she is receiving a good balanced ration. Overfeeding or underfeeding protein along with other management possibilities may affect the herd's reaction to the ration.

This year's program is to consist of a one-day meeting, from 7:30 a.m. to 3 p.m., Friday, Feb. 16, at the Holiday Inn on 1450 South Atherton Street, State College.

If overnight accommodations are requested in the registration, meeting delegates and attendees can arrive the evening of Thursday, Feb. 15, and attend a 7 p.m. session designed to orient county committee members on local committee responsibilities, and state as well as national obligations.

The day starts with the annual association awards breakfast and continues through the corporate meeting.

A number of issues affecting Pa. DHIA specifically, and the industry more broadly are to be addressed and discussed during the day.

Lancaster Chamber Holds Farm Business Financial School

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — The trend in American businesses, including agricultural operations is to continue merging and international expansion that has been occuring since the 1980s, according to Dr. David Kohl, professor of agriculture finance and small business and entrepreneurship at Viriginia Polytechnic Institute and State University, Blacksburg, Va.

The implications of that trend and what it means to the agribusinessman/farmer and how his/her business finds its niche are dependent on the skills, education, and abilities of the business operator.

Kohl, well-known speaker about agricultural economic trends also is known for his predictions and economic forecasts.

On Thursday, he and Dr. Donald Jonovic, a nationally recognized authority on business management organization, ownership transition and succession of successful family business, were the speaker/instructors at a farm business financial management school sponsored by the agricultural committee of the Lancaster Chamber of Commerce and Industry.

The school is offered as part of the Lancaster Chamber agriculture committee's attempt to fulfill its mission of uniting its agriculture community and to promote and enhance the economic vitality of production agriculture and agribusiness, among other agricultural advocacy goals.

Kohl provided school participants with a current view of agriculture — through some demographic indicators — and likely scenarios for how the industry may evolve 10 to 20 years ahead.

According to Kohl, the importance of agriculture to the United State economy is going to increase. He said that while the current percentage of the nation's gross national product — an indicator of the nation's economic activity — is about 17 percent, it is expected to grow to 25 percent by 2005.

Citing such facts as half of farmers and ranchers are debt free, that 47 percent of all farm assets are rented or leased, the low level of young people entering production agriculture, the fact that agriculture employs one out of every five workers, either directly or indirectly, and the wide disparities between public perception and reality of farm production, there is a strong potential for good business.

More specifically, he said farmers and owner/managers of agribusinesses have to develop alliances in industry and learn how to grow and expand without allowing personalities, egos and non-business family matters to retard or destroy the business.

Actually, Kohl said he was optimistic for agriculture in Pennsylvania and western New York.

He said that compared to some Western states with up to 90 percent of their farm income being derived from government production support payments, Pennsylvania farmers — especially in Lancaster County with about 5,000 farms and about 3.6 percent of its revenue derived from government payments with an average payment of $2,800 — will see a benefit once those support programs are further reduced and/or eliminated.

Further, he said that, thanks to the North American Free Trade Agreement, farmers here and in western New York may well expect to find a strong market for crops and livestock to the north in Canada. He said he came to this conclusion because most of Canada's agricultural production is west, while its heaviest population is in the east, directly north of Pennsylvania and New York.

While Canadian operations in the west are marketing in California and the West, Kohl said that because the Canadian rail subsidy was eliminated, it should make shipping to the north from here more inexpensive that western Canada operations shipping product east.

He said it should mean a good market for livestock, dairy and poultry.

Other changes in American lifestyle and career expectations also can be expected to affect those in agriculture.

He said that as the bulk of the American population has been aging, it appears that people are starting to become more frugal. Also, as many consumers have found the limitations of carrying high debt, and are seeking more time for themselves and less stress, he expects some changes in consumption and therefore business opportunity.

However, Kohl said that only about 40 percent of American farms have the potential for a positive bottom line — mainly because of the generational financial differences and motivations, and also because of farm family demand for jobs and non-farm spending.

The current successful family farm generally is no longer a father/son operation, but now is supporting several generations as people live longer and as many seek employment at home.

Kohl said that while there are about 5,000 big corporate farms, and they can be expected to continue, he said that production farms can be divided into three catagories — those aged 40 or less years; those aged 40 to 60 years;

Heifer International Project Group Tours Dominican Republic

This 10-day tour led by John Dieterly, Atlantic South Region director, will visit five project sites in the Dominican Republic.

Heifer Project International is a nonprofit ecumenical organization helping to alleviate world hunger, one family at a time. HPI has goat, pig, cattle and beekeeping projects in the Dominican Republic.

"This group represents churches actively involved in supporting HPI," said John Dieterly. "They will be able to see first hand the success of the programs and how their support has made a difference."

All participants are from the Atlantic Region which includes 10 East Coast states from Pennsylvania to Florida. After this trip, they will have practical experience to aid them in their HPI work.

Since 1944, Heifer Project International has been helping rural families around the globe become self-reliant. A development organization, HPI is recognized as a world leader in addressing hunger, poverty and environmental degradation through ecologically sound, sustainable agriculture.

and those he refers to as "landbarons" who have an average age of 69.

The landbarons, many of whom are surviving farm women, own much of the land and rent it out or they or their heirs sell it.

The youngest farmers are those renting from the oldest and the middle-aged are those buying the land.

This is natural because of the different personal needs and amount of financial risk each generation is willing to assume.

In a multi-generational (more than two) farm operation, these differences in willingness to assume large debt and in sacrificing personal spending ability in the pursuit of expanding the business can and is the cause of family fights and resentments.

To avoid that, for the sake of the family and the family farm, meetings need to held, each with a stake needs to be heard and effective communications must be established.

Kohl provided a fact-dense presentation with a number of useful farm management tools, such as what to use as indicators of business health and how to determine whether the business is in position to assume more debt, or an additional family member on the payroll.

Using some personal information relating to his own farm, his own investment and retirement strategies and considerations, he taught how to use farm financial records to manage and plan, emphasizing the need to work with real numbers for such things as personal expenses — which he said are regularly underestimated by 10 to 15 percent.

He provided students with guidelines for assessing readiness to position for expansion or incurring debt; for watching world exchange rates as an indication of export potential; for determining needed additional net income level in order to justify hiring additional labor; for managing growth; for cost control; and for the number of hours that can safely be devoted to work and volunteerism before suffering personally and professionally (If the work is all mental, more than 2,000 to 2,500 will burn out most people in five years.)

Also of interest, Kohl predicted that, because of certain economic indicators, a recession should hit the United States this year, but depending on the outcome of Alan Greenspan continuing in his role as chairman of the federal reserve, and considering that it is an election year, interest rates could rise by the end of February, or more likely will be kept in check until after the presidential election.

The presentations by both men provided many tools and facts that can be used to shore up existing businesses, or help a venture get a solid start.

The cost for the school was $125, and was well attended. Vegetable Study Circle Meeting Set LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — A vegetable study circle meeting is scheduled on Thursday, Feb. 15 at 7 p.m. at the Kutztown Produce Auction.

The February study circle will focus on producing quality vegetable transplants. Dr. Pete Ferretti, professor of vegetable crops at Penn State, will help lead a discussion on transplant care at the meeting.

Topics to be covered include monitoring the greenhouse environment, when to seed plants, growing media and fertilization, and much more.

Annual Crops Conference Set For Carlisle

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.)—Farmers can get information about rotational grazing, grain marketing, growing "designer" crops, managing weeds and more at the 1996 Pennsylvania Crops Conference on Tuesday, Jan. 30, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Embers Inn and Convention Center in Carlisle.

The conference is sponsored by the Pennsylvania Master Corn Growers Association, the Pennsylvania Forage and Grassland Council, the Pennsylvania Soybean Board, and Penn State Cooperative Extension.

Delivering the keynote address will be Keith Heard, vice president of the National Corn Growers Association. From 9-10 a.m., Heard will discuss the next Farm Bill and how it will affect Pennsylvania corn producers.

The following breakout sessions will begin at 11 a.m.:

• Dairy producers Brian Moyer and Jack Fritz will lead the discussion "Is Grazing for You?"

• Rob Ratvasky of Hoober Equipment Co. will discuss "Using Combine Yield Monitors on Pennsylvania Farms." Grain producers Kenneth Martin and Donald Newhard will talk about "Alternative Strategies for Grain Marketing: Options, Contracting and Grain Marketing Clubs."

• John Bechere, CEO of the United Soybean Board, will discuss "Your Soybean Checkoff Dollars at Work." Dwight Lingenfelter, extension assistant in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences, will present "New Options for Managing Weeds in Soybeans." A discussion on "Controlling Eastern Black Nightshade in Soybeans" will be led by Edward Werner, research technologist in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciencies.

At noon, participants may attend one of three luncheons: the Pennsylvania Forage and Grassland Council lunch and awards program, the Pennsylvania Master Corn Growers Association lunch and Five-Acre Corn Club awards program, or the Pennsylvania Soybean Board lunch and soybean yield contest awards program.

At a general session at 2 p.m., Dr. Peter Coaldrake, specialty corn research coordinator of Pioneer Hi-bred International, will discuss "Designer Crops: The Wave of the Future."

Some breakout sessions will be repeated after 3 p.m., along with additional sessions on "Forage harvesting: Reducing Labor" and "Small Rectangular Bales," led by hay producer David Fink, and "Large Round Bales," led by Robert Leiby, county extension director of Lehigh and Northampton counties.

Certified crop adviser credits will be available for some sessions.

The preregistration fee is $20 which includes lunch. Participants must preregister by Jan. 23. For more information or a preregistration form, contact Penn State's Department of Agronomy at (814) 865-2543.

Northeast Cooperatives Introduce Dairy Products To Mexico

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — The Council of Northeast Farmer Cooperatives and its member co-ops spearheaded an export initiative to introduce U.S. dairy products to the Mexican marketplace in January. A variety of U.S products ranging from ice cream to yogurt to specialty cheeses were featured at "Festival de Alimentos y Bebidas," a major trade show held in Mexico City from Jan. 15 to 17.

The Council represents dairy farm families from Michigan to Maine through its member cooperatives — Agri-Mark, Milk Marketing Inc., Upstate Milk and St. Albans. In partnership with departments of agriculture in Massachusetts, New York, Pennsylvania and Vermont, the Council organized participation in the show, which this year joined forces with Expo of Americas. The show was expected to draw more than 25,000 visitors from the retail and food service industries of Mexico, Brazil, Chile, Costa Rica and El Salvador.

"We see Mexico as an important part of our export strategy," said Robert J. Gray, executive director of the Council of Northeast Farmer Cooperatives. "Mexico has long been an important market for U.S. commodity products like milk powder and butterfat. We see that market continuing to grow, and including more high-value dairy items like ice cream, yogurt, mozzarella, cheddar and specialty cheeses."

Since joining the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT) in 1986, Mexico has reduced import tariffs from 100 percent on selected items to a maximum of 20 percent across the board. The North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA), which Mexico joined in 1994, promised to open the markets even further.

"The devaluation of the peso in 1995 shook the country to its roots," according to Steven F. Justis, a marketing specialist with the Vermont Department of Agriculture. "But the economy is beginning to turn around, and it's important that our region be in position for the rebound. Even now, exports from the U.S. to Mexico surpass major markets in Europe and Asia."

In addition to dairy co-ops, several private dairy processors also provided products for the show, including Lucille Farm Products, Rhino Foods, and Vermont Butter & Cheese.

Hatfield Named Honorary County Agent

HATFIELD (Montgomery Co.)—January 4, 1996—Hatfield Quality Meats was presented with the Honorary County Agent Award by the Pennsylvania Association of County Agricultural Agents (P.A.C.A.A.) at their annual meeting in State College. It is the highest award given by the association to non-members.

The statewide award was presented to Hatfield President and CEO Phil Clemens by Tim Fritz, an agricultural extension agent with the Montgomery County branch of the Penn State Cooperative Extension, and Joe Way, a retired Montgomery County extension agent. P.A.C.A.A. gives the award annually to recognize an individual or group for their support of the agricultural industry, specifically agricultural extension and extension agents. Past award recipients have included legislators, top industry leaders and university presidents.

"This is the first time P.A.C.A.A. has given the award to an entire company," says Fritz, who co-nominated Hatfield. "It was too tough to choose one specific person." Fritz says Hatfield was nominated for its strong support of agriculture and agricultural extension in Pennsylvania. He noted the company's hog farming and water recycling with Penn State University and the time and money it contributes to support 4-H projects and the Montgomery County Extension.

"Over the last 10 years," says Fritz, "Hatfield has donated $300,000 for a 4-H/agricultural center, which houses several organizations including Cooperative Extension, the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, Montgomery County Conservation District, Natural Resource Conservation Society and Farm Service Agency."

Nancy Kadwill, Montgomery County 4-H coordinator and Hatfield's co-nominator for the award, says "Hatfield is a strong supporter of 4-H's educational programs as well as its youth hog marketing programs. Statewide, the company buys a lot of its hogs through 4-H youth livestock clubs and farm shows. Hatfield has been absolutely wonderful in Montgomery County. Their contributions not only benefit 4-H, but the community as well."

Hatfield was chosen to receive the award after nominations were submitted from every region in Pennsylvania, reviewed by a P.A.C.A.A. committee and approved by the association's board of directors.

"Hatfield is dedicated to promoting agriculture in Pennsylvania," says Rusty Ryan, marketing manager at Hatfield. "We feel it is our responsibility to do as much as we can to keep it strong and thriving. As a result, many people benefit, including Hatfield."

Hatfield Quality Meats, Inc., in business for 100 years, is a family owned and operated supplier of fresh pork products, hams, luncheon meats, sausage, bacon, hot dogs, scrapple, pork roll and other quality products to the retail and food service industries. The company's products are distributed from Maine to Florida.

DEP Secretary Testifies About Wetlands

(The following is reprinted from the Jan. 19 issue of UPDATE, the weekly publication of the state departments of Environmental Protection and Conservation and Natural Resources. Some editing changes were made to conform to Lancaster Farming style.)

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — State Secretary of Environmental Protection James M. Seif was the lead witness before a state House Environmental Resources and Energy Committee wetlands hearing held Jan. 17 in Harrisburg.

Seif announced that several new initiatives have been finalized by the department to simplify wetlands policies, including measures to simplify the permitting process, provide more options for the replacement of wetlands, provide consistency with federal wetlands requirements and increase public involvement in developing wetlands policies and regulations.

Seif outlined the initiatives designed to focus DEP's wetland protections efforts where they have the greatest impact.

"Over the last 20 years, the value of wetlands and the need to protect them has become well recognized by the scientific community and the public. It is the methods we have used to protect wetlands that have been controversial.

"These initiative will help to provide a better balance between protecting our valuable wetlands and addressing the legitimate concerns of our citizens," Seif said.

Pennsylvania has about 400,000 acres of wetlands. Once regarded as useless swamps or bogs, wetlands are now recognized as natural flood control mechanisms, filtering pollutants and providing unique ecosystems for endangered species and other wildlife.

The initiatives include the final adoption of a common state-federal method for delineating wetlands, final adoption of a wetlands replacement fund for permit applicants who are unable to provide replacement wetlands on-site, finalization of a general permit (GP15) to allow some wetlands to be used for the construction of homes by owners within subdivisions established before November 1991, and final adoption of a policy to exempt prior converted croplands — agricultural lands that were in production before 1985 and still in production today — from state wetlands regulations. The federal government adopted the same policy in 1994.

In response to public comments on the proposals, DEP made a number of changes.

A significant change to the new general permit responds to concerns about storm water impacts. DEP limited the fill area allowed by the permit to 40 percent of the lot area once .1 acres were filled.

DEP will carefully monitor use of the general permit with county conservation districts to prevent storm water problems. The proposals will be effective Feb. 3 upon publication in the Pennsylvania Bulletin.

Seif also said he will announce the members of the Wetlands Management Advisory Committee — a cross section of landowners, environmentalists, professionals and local government stakeholders in wetlands protection — in the next two weeks.

The committee also heard comments on House Bill 200, a proposed wetlands protection bill sponsored by Rep. Howard Fargo (R-Mercer) that would automatically require compensation to landowners who are denied use of their property due to wetlands regulations.

"We have concerns about the provisions of House Bill 200 that would automatically require compensation where permits are denied without the opportunity for a court to make an individual determination of a taking," Seif said.

"We are very concerned about the amount of funding needed to implement an automatic compensation provision and its potential impact on the General Fund. We believe a reasonable wetlands protection program and the reforms we have proposed will protect private property rights."

Also testifying were Turner Odell Jr., attorney for the Chesapeake Bay Foundation, and Gary Setzer, program administrator of the wetlands and waterways program for the Maryland Department of the Environment.

Rather than new legislation, Odell suggested a better approach to fixing what problems may exist within the commonwealth's wetland protection program is to make administrative reforms directly to the program.

"Secretary Seif and the new DEP are to be commended for proposing a wetlands initiative that includes many good concepts for improvement of the program. Some of the particular proposals CBF can readily support include the creation of the wetland advisory committee and the wetland replacement registry," Odell said.

The foundation also supports Pennsylvania's use of the 1987 U.S. Army Corps of Engineers Wetland Delineation Manual as "an excellent example of where it makes sense to match the federal policy," he said.

The Chesapeake Bay Foundation has reservations about DEP's GP15 permit for residential construction in wetlands saying it's far broader than necessary, allowing significant individual and cumulative adverse impacts on the commonwealth's wetlands.

"Unless the permit is significantly modified, CBF will strenuously oppose it," Odell said.

Concerning DEP's wetland replacement fund, Odell said avoidance and minimization of impacts are the best forms of mitigation and that the existence of the fund would emphasize replacement of wetlands over the protection of existing wetlands.

Odell also said the CBF supports the current method of settling takings disputes.

"In some cases, regulation of private property may go so far as to work a complete deprivation of all use of value for a property. In such circumstances, the courts remain the appropriate forum for deciding when compensation is due," he said.

During his testimony, Setzer outlined recent changes made to Maryland's wetlands program. Like Pennsylvania, Maryland committed to increase the protection of nontidal wetlands under the 1987 Chesapeake Bay Agreement. In 1989, the Maryland General Assembly passed the Nontidal Wetlands Protection Act, one of the first state laws with a goal of no net loss of wetland acreage and function.

"An important step in the development of Maryland's nontidal wetlands protection program was permit coordination between the state and federal agencies involved with the regulatory process," Setzer said.

Under Maryland's program, there are three types of wetlands project approvals — exemption, letter of authorization, and permit. Exempted activities do not require state approval.

Before concluding the hearing, Committee Chairman Rep. Robert Reber (R-Montgomery Co.) thanked Secretary Seif for his work in making the department more user friendly. "There's been a big attitude adjustment at DEP and you should be commended," Reber said.

Seif's testimony (choose James M. Seif) and the proposals (choose Water Management) are available on DEP's worldwide web site at http://www.dep.state.pa.us . For more information, contact Ken Reisinger at (717) 787-6827, or by e-mail at Reisinger.Ken@a1.dep.state.pa.us .

Holstein USA Accepts Applications For Summer Internship

BRATTLEBORO, Vt. - The Holstein Foundation is now accepting applications for its summer internship program.

The responsibilities of the intern are to assist with the Foundation's junior and member communications programs, and work out of the home office in Brattleboro, Vt.

The intern also is to help prepare events for the National Holstein Junior Convention, prepare press releases from the events, aid in publishing the summer edition of the Holstein Junior Bulletin, develop educational materials, and assist with other member and industry relations tasks.

Individuals applying for the position must be working toward a B.S. degree in an agriculturally-related field. A strong interest in dairy science and agricultural communications is required. Experience in dairy youth activities is preferable.

The intern position is to start approximately June 1, depending on academic situation, and will work for 10-12 weeks.

Applicants should submit a completed internship form, a resume including work experience and dairy organization participation, and college transcripts.

Applicants should also include two letters of recommendation, and a brief statement (200 words or less) describing three reasons high school students should be encouraged to pursue a career in the dairy industry.

To obtain an application or for more information about this internship, please contact Kelli Devino at (800) 952-5200, ext. 2124.

Applications, college transcripts, and letters of reference must be received by Feb. 23. They may be mailed to the Holstein Foundation, 1 Holstein Place, Brattleboro, VT 05302-0816.

Maryland Holstein Plans Convention

EMMITSBURG, Md. — The Maryland Holstein-Friesian Association Inc. has announced it annual convention to be held from Feb. 29 through March 1 at the Holiday Inn, in the Francis Scott Key Mall, in Frederick, Md.

In recognition of 1996 being a leap year, and the first convention day falling on that extra day, the convention theme is, "Leap foward with Maryland Holstein genetics."

Hotel reservations should be made directly by calling (301) 694-7500. The room price is $75 if reservations are made prior to Feb. 1.

Other area lodging includes a Hampton Inn (301-698-2500); a Super 8 (301-695-2881); or a Day's Inn (301-694-6600).

The deadline for reservations for convention meals and programs is Feb. 15. Payment must accompany ticket reservations. Make checks payable to: Frederick County Holstein Association.

Ticket orders and payment should be mailed to: Frederick County Holstein Association, c/o Bob & Cheryl Lenhart, 8495 Links Bridge Rd., Thurmont, Md. 2178. For more information call them at (301) 898-3788.

The deadline for ticket orders is Feb. 15.

On Thursday, Feb. 29, the Maryland convention sale is to be held starting at 11 a.m. at the Frederick County Agricultural Fairgrounds.

Following the sale, maps will be made available to convention goers interested in touring farms of Maryland Holstein breeders.

The convention's second day starts Friday, March 1 at 9 a.m. with registration, and the opening of a dairy bar and commercial exhibits.

Separate programs for youth and for women have been planned for the day, though all start at 9 a.m. at the hotel. Exhibits at the hotel include crafts by local artisans as part of the women's program.

The annual business business meeting starts at 10 a.m. At that time, breed improvement awards are to be presented, along with a slide presentation and recognition of the winners of the state progressive breeder and progressive genetics awards.

Also key for the business meeting is consideration of a change to association bylaw. Members are to vote on a proposal from the board of directors to change the name from the Maryland Holstein-Freisian Association Inc. to the Maryland Holstein Association Inc., as well as changing all references in the association bylaw.

The convention lunch is at 12:30 p.m. At 1:45 p.m., guest speaker Corey Wolff, of Pen-Col Farm, in Millville, Pa., is to discuss the genetics of the breed, and breeding decisions.

A 1994 graduate of Cornell University, Wolff started working with American Marketing Service Genetics Inc. that September. This month he became vice president in charge of genetic programs for the AMS Genetics.

In the function, he handles AMS sales in England, Holland, Germany, Denmark and Ireland. He has also initiated a bull purchasing program for AMS Genetics.

At 3 p.m., convention-goers can visit commercial exhibits, relax in the Frederick County hospitality room, or make use of the hotel's indoor swimming pool.

At 6 p.m., a social hour is planned in the FSK Ballroom.

A buffet dinner featuring Seafood Newburg and sliced roast sirloin of beef is scheduled, followed at 8:30 p.m. with the presentation of junior awards, an introduction of judging teams, a brief fun auction and then entertainment provided by a disc jockey, Soundsations.

The Ladies Program for the day, after the 9 a.m. start, begins with a 10 a.m. visit and fashion presentation by Snallygaster, a gift shop located in the square of Middletown, known for its jewelry.

At 11:30 a.m., those participating in the Ladies Program are to depart the hotel for Tauraso's restaurant, located at 6 East St. in Frederick. Participants need to arrange a car pool which will be lead by a guide from the Frederick County Holtein Association.

The meal is to be served at noon. Tauraso's is the oldest building in the Everedy Square complex, having been built in 1890. It formerly housed the Frederick City Manufacturing Company, owned by the Fahrney family, which manufactured ink.

After the luncheon, those wishing to enjoy some shopping or historical sightseeing can visit the Delaplaine Visual Arts Center, the Carroll Creek Bridge Mural, the Shab Row and Everedy Square.

The youth program for the day, after the 9 a.m. to 9:45 registration-dairy bar-commercial exhibit visit period, can tour the Maryland Department of Agriculture Animal Health Laboratory from 10:15 to 11:15 a.m.. Transportation is to be provided.

From 11:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m., the Maryland Junior Holstein Club is to hold its annual business meeting and elect officers at the Arcade Bolwing Lanes, 7540 N. Market St. Extended, in Frederick.

From 12:30 to 2:45 p.m., a pizza party and bowling tournament are to be held with trophies awarded for top performances by individuals and team.

Holstein USA Deadlines Approaching

BRATTLEBORO, Vt. — Holstein Association USA has recently announced several approaching deadlines for several of its junior-member awards and programs.

According to a news release this week, Feb. 23 is the deadline for applications for the association's summer internship program.

May 1 is the deadline for application forms for the junior progressive breeder awards, and also for the junior breeder of an excellent animal awards.

All applications for the awards and the internship are available from the Holstein Association USA.

Call Kelli Devino at (800) 952-5200, extension 2124, or write to: Holstein Association USA, 1 Holstein Place, Brattleboro, Vt., 05302-0816.

Lancaster DHIA PC Dart Information Workshop Set

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.)—Lancaster DHIA will host a meeting for dairymen interested in learning how the PCDART computer program can be used to manage their dairy herd. Steve Hershey, Vice President of Lancaster Board and an experienced PCDART user, will conduct the workshop. Easy data entry, storing health data and graphs are valuable features of PCDART. A rental fee makes PCDART an economical management tool even on smaller dairy farms.

The meeting will be held on Friday, February 9, 1996 at 1:00 p.m. at the Lancaster DHIA office, 1592 Old Line Road, Manheim. For more information call Lancaster DHIA at (717) 665-5960.

At the Tuesday night meeting, Robert Zook, president of the board for the Foundation, opened the meeting attended by about 100 persons.

The treasurer's report by Richard Haas showed that total assets for the Foundation is $518,703. Net income from rentals after expenses was $13,658.

Business manager Chester Neuin reported that an elevator was installed during the past year. The Society of Farm Women of Lancaster County donated $3,450 to be used to "spruce" things up in the auditorium. Neuin reported that a new roof will be installed, the walls painted, and eventually ceiling and flooring materials will be updated.

Dr. John Swartz, extension director, reported that seven scholarships, each $1,400, were donated during the past year. Applications are currently being taking for those that will be awarded this spring.

Seven new directors were elected to replace the expiring terms on the board of directors. Re-elected are Richard Hass, Lancaster; Edward Hess, Leola; Harold Rohrer, Lancaster; Kenneth Rutt, Quarryville; Larry Weaver, New Holland; and Robert Zook, Leola. Newly elected is Donna Kreider of Quarryville.

Comedian Ken Hussar, column writer of "Short and Snappy and the recipient of the 1994 outstanding teacher award," entertained the audience with agricultural-related jokes and songs.

Sheep Meeting Series Set

YORK (York Co.) — Both new and experienced sheep producers will find information to improve their efficiency during a series of three evening sheep meetings planned for the York County 4-H Center in Bair.

Dr. Clair Engle from Penn State University's Dairy and Animal Science Department will teach the three-part series on Feb. 15, Feb. 22, and Feb. 29 from 7 p.m.-9 p.m.

Opportunities for profit or loss in the sheep business are at their best or worst during the lambing season. After investing the money in the feeding and care of a bred ewe, the producer has the opportunity during lambing to either harvest a crop successfully or to lose profit opportunities with each lamb that is lost.

This meeting series will emphasize how to recognize and assist ewes that experience lambing difficulties and how to properly care for newborn lambs. During the Feb. 15 session, we will look at methods to assist the lambing ewe.

We will review the methods to assist with difficult lambings and we'll talk about how to care for ewes and lambs immediately after lambing.

At the Feb. 22 meeting, we will have a demonstration on docking and castrating lambs at 6 to 8 days of age. The demonstration will focus on the proper techniques to minimize the chances of injury or infection from these procedures. A review of vaccinations required for young lambs will be included.

In the Feb. 29 discussion, we'll study basic nutrition of the young lamb.

Cost for the three meeting series is $5/farm to cover the cost of materials.

Please register in advance for the meetings by calling Penn State Cooperative Extension at (717) 840-7408, or stop by the office at 112 Pleasant Acres Road.

Crops Day Covers Soybean Growing Challenges

Weed Concerns Intensify As Tillage Is Reduced

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — Pennsylvania leads the country in largest percentage increase in soybean production of any state, according to a Penn State soybean expert.

But at the same time, with reduced tillage practices becoming widespread, and with environmental concerns uppermost in producers' minds, weed control challenges are on the increase.

Part of the increase is in the amount of broadleaf weeds, particularly eastern black nightshade, a summer broadleaf that can pose a constant problem because it germinates from June through August and can create real problems at harvest time.

'Those materials are ineffective on nightshade. It's almost like pouring water on them.'

John Yocum, manager of the Penn State Landisville Research Station, spoke on Tuesday to about 109 producers and agri-industry representatives at the first in a regional series of Penn State-sponsored regional crops days at the Berks County Extension Center.

Yocum detailed results of Penn State and other university research on some of the challenges facing soybean growers about creating a good stand and how to keep it profitable.

Weed problems — as a result of nightshade, bur cucumber, giant ragweed, jimsonweed, and others — are increasing "because of several factors," said Yocum.

"One, we're reducing the amount of atrazine we're applying to our corn crops." He said that atrazine is effective in controlling the broadleaf weeds, but as producers continue to cut back on its use for environmental and cost-cutting concerns, "weeds are starting to show up" — including the grasses, which affect corn, and the broadleaves, which can have a huge impact on soybean yields.

Also, Yocum said, a lot of the weeds are coming on because "we're going to less residual programs, and the other factor is that we are doing a lot less tillage."

Producers who used to moldboard plow dealt readily with pokeweed and burdock. But with minimum or no-till, those weeds can still be prevalent.

Nightshade, a hardy summer annual, germinates from June through August, with lots of black berries. It can produce a lot of seeds — from 10,000-100,000 in a season. At harvest, not only do the seeds fall into the harvested stock, but the berries can actually plug up the combine.

"If you have enough of those plants out there, it can actually stop you from combining," said Yocum.

Soybean producers are having a frustrating time trying to deal with the weeds — often trying herbicides that simply won't work.

"A lot of us in soybean production have gone to the sulfonylureas — the Classics, Canopys, those types of materials," said Yocum. "And those materials are ineffective on nightshade. It's almost like pouring water on them."

Yocum spoke about products available to effectively handle the nightshade.

One effective way to manage the nightshade problem is simply to get a particularly troublesome field out of soybeans.

One farmer in Lebanon had a field with 60 nightshade plants per square foot. Even with that kind of weed infestation, some herbicide removal worked, with good yield results — but Yocum said those fields are generally the kind to rotate into corn.

"Don't plant soybeans back in that field if you knew you had the problem last year," said Yocum. If you do, "you're asking for real problems," he said.

In general, producers should be "scouting," he said. "You have to know what's out there, and you have to get (the herbicide) on timely and make sure you know your product. Don't go out there and try to put Classic/Pinnacle on nightshade because you'll be really sorry."

'Don't plant soybeans back in that field if you knew you had the problem last year,' said Yocum. If you do, 'you're asking for real problems.'

Some possible controls include non-chemical — cultivation and rotary hoeing at the times the seeds are germinating.

'They had good soils, no fertilizer, no soil test, or any of the tools we have to work with,' said Hoffman. 'I can truthfully say I'm glad to be an American farmer. . . .'

The label for Roundup Ready soybeans was approved in the summer last year. The seeds are available — costing about $5 an acre more, and they have competitive yields, according to the research station manager.

Yocum gave tips on how to ensure good yields, including seedbed and other management. It is important to realize, however, that producers should be aware that the label indicates applicators can't apply Roundup Ultra to bin-run seed, even though producers saved it from Roundup Ready soybeans, because it is illegal, he warned.

Soybean stands

For producers who want a good stand of soybeans, keep in mind that the earlier the stand is planted, the better.

For a first stand early in the season, "30-inch rows, provided you plant early enough, may not be a bad way to go," said Yocum.

For later plantings, producers are advised to use narrower, 15-inch or 7-inch rows, to get the vital canopy necessary for better yields.

Penn State and other research has yielded information, according to plant trials, that using a narrower row is beneficial for producers if planting occurs later in the season.

Based on work at Penn State, Yocum said that the data indicates producers should consider planting "a whole lot earlier than we've had in the past," he said.

Also, the use of corn planters over drills provides better seed spacing and depth of seed than traditional grain drills.

Yocum compared planting depths and spacing for two years — 1994 and 1995 — to the producers at the Berks Crops Day. Plantings in 1994 were on May 11 for early season, May 31 for mid season, and June 30 for late season. In 1995, plantings were on May 1 for early season, May 23 for mid season, and July 10 for the late season.

Despite two "extremely different" years, in 1994, yield from different varieties were similar. For 1995, the latest planted variety did best, with a different spread in overall harvest for many varieties. For 1995, the May 1 planting had the highest yield. In 1994, on row spacing, the 15-inch rows outyielded the 30-inch rows. That year was cooler and rainier in July and August than in 1995. In 1995, the opposite was true — July and August were hotter, with considerably less moisture. As a result, in 1995, the 30-inch rows outyielded the 15-inch and 7-inch rows.

This information is the result of "significant interactions" among the planting date and row spacing, the weather, and other factors.

The bottom line? Plant as close to May 1 as possible, use the best equipment, know which row size you want, and use mid-maturity cultivars, said Yocum.

"Plant the soybeans as timely as you do your corn," said Yocum.

'I'm all for planting beans early in those first two weeks in May.'

Economics will dictate which planting priorities you will have if planting both corn and soybeans.

Soybean panel

Several producers spoke about the challenges of growing soybeans during a special question-and-answer panel at the Berks Crops Day.

Wilson Hoffman, Bally, grows about 500 acres of crops, including 225 acres of corn and 175 acres of soybeans, and the remainder in wheat and hay. Hoffman was honored in 1993 with a first place award in the state for soybean yields on his farm — producing 74.8 bushels per acre.

'Sometimes, maybe, our best management practices (BMPs) are not the best on these vulnerable sites.'

In 1994, Hoffman's yields plummeted to the low 50s, primarily because of the less-than-ideal growing season and because he lost the use of a five-acre field. In 1995, he entered the state soybean contest, placing sixth with a 46 bushel per acre average. Hoffman used a no-till grain drill and used 200 pounds of starter fertilizer, a 3-9-12, using Squadron herbicide at two pints per acre.

Planting date was after May 1. Even though conditions were cool, the "yield done fine," said Hoffman.

'The foundation for any dairy farm is the forages,' he said. 'Forages are going to make you money.'

Hoffman thanked his suppliers and the extension service for their help. He said that a year ago he spent about a month in the former Soviet republic of Kazakhstan, where there are "no such services.

"They had good soils, no fertilizer, no soil test, or any of the tools we have to work with," said Hoffman. "I can truthfully say I'm glad to be an American farmer. . . for the services that are open to us."

Bob Tercha, producer from Mertztown, said that his operation produces 75 acres of regular season soybeans and five acres go in after hay is cut. Thirty-five acres of soybeans go in after the wheat crop.

The regular season planting begins May 16. The double crop soybeans are planted July 9 and 13.

Getting the soybeans in as close to the 10th of May as possible provides producers "with a good chance of getting a profitable yield, as long as nature cooperates with you," said Tercha.

'We better start to enjoy feeding cows as much as we like driving tractors.'

Tercha said he postponed herbicide application until the last possible minute to ensure weed emergence. "We waited, and we waited, and we waited to show some weed emergence," he said. Patience paid off. "It got to be the middle of June, and it seemed like all of a sudden, the weeds were there."

As a result, weeds were controlled and "I've had probably the cleanest soybeans I've had in years, as far as weed control," said Tercha.

Nightshade weeds continue to worry Tercha, who said that respraying was necessary to control a bur cucumber problem. "I had fields in the previous year that were corn that we actually lost acreage due to bur cucumber. It took the corn down so bad."

The best yields the past year were with 30-inch rows, according to Tercha. Also, it is important to apply inoculant — liberally.

"I always double my inoculant," said Tercha. "We use either sugar water or cream soda to keep the inoculant on the seed. We believe it's very important to keep that inoculant on the seed.

"I double-inoculate double-crop beans, too," he said. "I really think it pays. I have seen fellows that have scimped on the inoculant — (as a result), you're going to have a lot of yellowing, and to tell you the truth, at times I think it might pay to go triple (on the inoculant application)."

Jon Stutzman, who works with Brubaker Consulting in Kutztown, also manages a farm with his father in Kutztown.

Stutzman said the "number one priority" is getting the soybean stand established.

"I'm all for planting beans early in those first two weeks in May," he said.

Stutzman plants 30-50 acres of beans per year. He uses a corn planter for his soybeans because of the economics — it's too expensive to use a drill. He plants in a 30-inch row.

Producers, he said, should be aware that weed control is the number two priority in management, because weeds can severely affect yields.

"Even with just a few innocent-looking common ragweed per square foot, I've seen them do as much as a 50 percent yield reduction in fields," said the Kutztown producer.

The number three concern is inoculation. He said that a lot of beans are being grown on fields with little or no history of beans, which makes inoculation difficult. "It's important to double- and even triple-inoculate where we know there is no bean history in those fields."

Number four and five concerns are "water and sunlight," of which producers wish they had more control over.

Well study

Mena Hautau, Berks County extension agent, spoke about the reports of a recent statewide well study that indicated areas which have the most corn growing areas stand-out for the most detection of pesticides than the urban areas or areas with less production.

Those areas, according to Hautau, encompass the primary corn

Suffered An Injury?

Automobile accidents are very common. The disabilities can come about from a lot of different places.

There are five basic program areas that AgrAbility covers:

• Information and referral. The program works closely with agencies to provide information about ideas on assistive technology. The information, complied over a 15-year span, encompasses tractor lifts, one-handed tool use, hand-lever controls, foot controls — all ingenious devices to help the farmer that is disabled maintain an active livelihood.

• Assistive technology. Schaufler provided an example of a woman who operates an apple orchard in Potter County who has a spinal cord disease who is losing the use of her hands and wants to manage a hydroponics facility. This includes using voice control computer systems. But other simpler items include hand controls, solar-recharged electric gate openers, lever controls, and other equipment.

• On-site assessments, including machinery and tool and building accessibility. These include the use of special ramps and accessability to tractors, trucks, combines, and other equipment.

• Public awareness. This includes communicating with groups such as county farm bureaus, young farmers, and others interested in information on the program.

• Peer counseling. Those who suffered a disabling injury are hooked up "with someone else with the state or within a fairly regional area, that they can talk to. who has gone through maybe some of the same things," said Schaufler. One farmer who had his leg amputated because of diabetes was able to meet and speak with another who had the same problem. "That made the biggest difference in the world, to know he was going to be able to get back and was going to be able to stay in farming, and to get some ideas on ways to adapt things to make it possible to keep him going," said the project manager.

Schaufler showed a series of slides on some of the devices that are simple to build and use — yet make a big difference in the lives of the disabled.

"A lot of the adaptations that are made for people with disabilities make a lot of sense for everybody," he said. The Americans With Disabilities Act mandated that public sites be equipped with the lever on door handles to allow easy access. Schaufler showed a slide that used inexpensive wire and a radiator clamp on a round door knob that allowed easy access.

growing areas of the state — mostly in the southeast and southcentral counties. A little more than 37 percent of the wells tested in those areas had detections of pesticides, but all were within public safety limits as defined by the Environmental Protection Agency.

Of the 189 wells studied throughout the state, 27 percent of the wells had pesticides in them. Of that amount, 73 percent had a trace of pesticide and only 27 percent had "quantifiable" amounts of pesticide. No health levels were exceeded on any of those that showed pesticides.

That in itself is positive news, according to the Berks County agent.

Most pesticides were detected around application times. Of the total pesticides detected, the majority came from atrazine (41 detections) and 2,4-D (28 detections), according to the study. Other detections included metolachlor (five), chlorpyrifes (four), dicamba (two), simazine (two), alachlor (one), and others.

The detections were infrequent and at low levels. While there is no crisis, Hautau said that certain "vulnerable settings" imply that practices are going on at sites that may not be best for control of levels of pesticides in wells.

"Sometimes, maybe, our best management practices (BMPs) are not the best on these vulnerable sites," said Hautau.

Only problem is, what is a "vulnerable site?"

"We don't have a nice set of rules or guidelines that I can give you that are going to say, these are the things that you should do," said the Berks agent.

In the future, as a result, some management practices may become more conservative and site specific, according to Hautau.

"You are already doing good things. Just please remember to maybe improve practices where you know you need improvement with the handling of these (pesticide) products," she said.

Five-Acre results

Greg Roth, Penn State agronomy associate professor, presented the awards to the five-acre corn club contestants at the Crops Day.

Also, Roth reviewed some of the management strategies producers could use to obtain high-producing corn silage and reviewed other harvest management techniques.

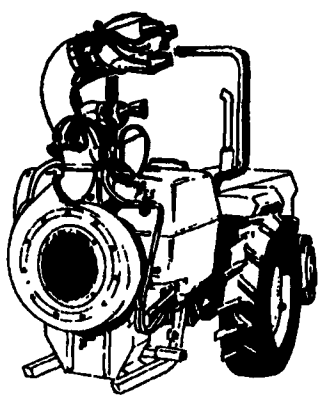
In addition, Clyde Myers, Berks County extension agent, reviewed how important it is for dairy producers to understand forage quality.

"The foundation for any dairy farm is the forages," he said. "Forages are going to make you money."

Myers said that many producers invest heavily in all sorts of harvesting and preparation equipment and don't spend the $130 or so to get a moisture tester — a simple microwave oven. This helps obtain the dry matter intake amount necessary to calculate a proper forage.

"We better start to enjoy feeding cows as much as we like driving tractors," he said.

Atomize Your Crops... Maximize Your Harvest!



We are all endeavoring to profit from the best possible yield from our crops. Fighting diesease and insects with chemicals is an on-going process.

Chemicals have proven to be effective, but the secret is in the application. Atomizers have been used since the 1970's in actual field experience, and insure clean, blemish-free, bountiful crops.

Eugene and his wife Alice still live near the farm. Brian's wife Laura is a licensed practical nurse. Brian's children — Sasha, 17 and Seth, 15 — join Laura's children — Troy, 15 and Todd, 14 and Aaron, Brian and Laura's son, age 5 — on the farm.

Also working on the farm is Larry Cole, who helps with fieldwork and feeding among other chores, and his daughter Janie, who helps Brian milk.

Seth, Troy, and Aaron took animals to the fair last year. Janie also shows her animals at various fairs across the state.

"Even though Aaron was only 4½, he kept teasing for a calf," said Brian. "I tried to hold him off as long as I could, because I was afraid the calf would be too big at fair time. He kept saying, 'Dad, if we have one that isn't too good, could you give it to me?' We had (a calf) born the last week of May. Her name is Star. He led her in the open show and came in fifth out of five animals. But he got a ribbon and that's the important part to him. He's still interested. About every week he wants to lead it again."

Although Brian is not sure what the future will bring for Sunset Ridge farm, he is very optimistic about the future of farming.

"It's awful hard to think what's going to happen in the future. I'm optimistic about the farm at this point in time. A couple of months ago I wasn't as optimistic as I am now. I'm not sure what the difference is. We got a very good corn crop. Maybe that's why," Harris explained. "We're trying to move to a place where we can decrease the costs of our inputs. I guess that's one reason we went to TMR

Sunset Ridge Farm is a 120-acre plot located near the center of Bradford County between Milan and East Smithfield.

Three augers bring soybean meal, dried distillers meal, and dry shell corn to the feed room from the three bins located outside.

Starting last year, Harris set aside eight acres that are rotationally grazed and irrigated.

"We did pretty good this year. We still have a few things we want to change. We don't have all the water we'd like to irrigate with."

The irrigation water is largely waste water from the farm, combined with collected rain water.

"In our manure system we have a picket dam. The rainwater that falls on the manure goes into this pond and also the milkhouse waste goes into this pond. Ten years ago they called it an evaporation pond. Now they just call it a holding pond because they realized that evaporation only works in Bradford County about six weeks of the year," he said, with a laugh.

That gray water is pumped to the fields to be used for irrigation purposes.

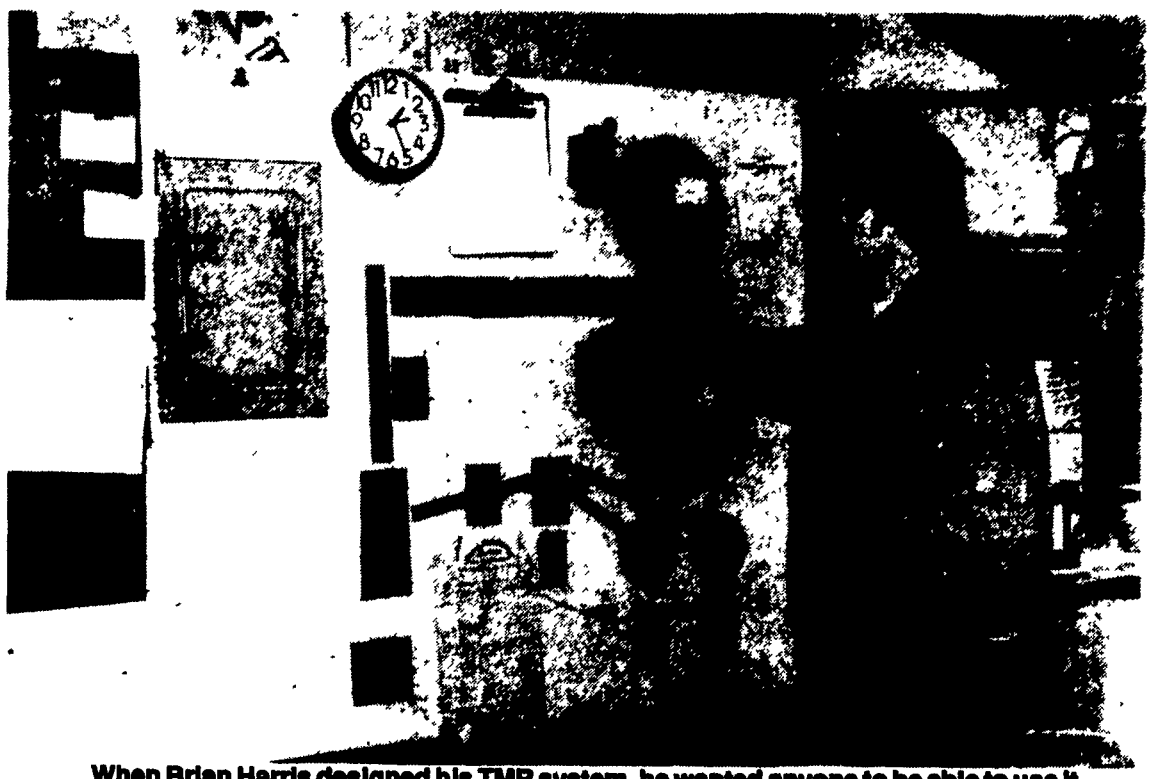
After the cows are moved from a paddock, Harris mows the area and irrigates it.

"We put in permanent fence to divide it into four two-acre pieces. Then I have some polywire that I just move twice a day," he explained.

At this point all of the animals are not pastured.

"The third top cows I leave in the barn and the lower two thirds I pasture. I'm not sure that you can get enough into these very top producers just on pasture alone and I didn't have the acreage to pasture all of them," he said. "When it got very hot we turned the top third out in the barnyard and they had hay and TMR and water. This summer it was just too hot in the barn."

Brian Harris takes a forkful of TMR as he feeds his Jerseys. The Harris family has been feeding TMR for more than 10 years.



When Brian Harris designed his TMR system, he wanted anyone to be able to use it. All the controls are located on this diagrammed panel, which links the silos, grain bins, and mixer.

Harris' TMR system is equally creative.

"We feed about 30-35 pounds of haylage, 20-25 pounds of corn silage a day and then we balance it with dry shell corn, roasted beans, dried distillers, and soybean meal," said Harris. "I guess it's been 10-12 years since we've had the TMR system. We feed one TMR ration balanced to 50 pounds and then topdress anything above that."

They topdress with a mix they make up themselves consisting of whole cottonseed dry shell corn, soybean, and minerals. They also make a calf grain.

"That's been a big help and a savings to be able to buy just the ingredients instead of a complete mix from the feed company," he said.

He designed his system to be as efficient as possible. Some of his ideas came to him after taking a tour to Lancaster County.

"I wanted to make it as visual as possible. If you flip this switch, this light comes on and you know what ingredient you're feeding. Also, if anyone new came in with a little bit of experience, they could mix. They wouldn't have to spend a week learning how to run the system."

Augers bring the grains into the converted straw shed at the top of the barn and conveyers move the haylage and corn silage to the mixer. Everything is manned from the control panel. After mixing the ingredients, the feed is dropped

Sire Power Has Sales Increase But Farmers Buy Cheap Bulls

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

GRANTVILLE (Dauphin Co.) — While Sire Power, Inc., increased sales by almost 4 percent, the average blend price per unit dropped by $1.63 to give the cooperative what officials called the poorest financial performance in it's history.

Gary Rickard, president, said dairymen are reacting to depressed income by reducing expenses. One of the things they can do is reduce the breeding bill by using lower priced bulls. "A percentage of the customers of Sire Power nationally and internationally have made just this decison which has reduced our income," Richard said. "The very basic problem in my opinion is that the world-wide dairy industry has been put in a financial situation where it can't or doesn't want to support a bull sampling program as large as the A.I. industry currently.

"Another negative with regard to U.S. A.I. is a softening demand for U.S. genetics in foreign countries. Some of our long time customers have begun to export their own genetics and become our competitors. Our markets have changed and continue to change, and we must adapt to remain competitive."

DuWayne Kutz, general manager, said operating expenses increased only 2 percent but that with the livestock industry's depressed economy it was impossible to increase sales to offset the tremendous per unit price decrease.

"Even with our poor performance year, Sire Power continues to show strong financial strength with our year end balance sheet showing almost $2 of assets for every $1 of liability," Kutz said. "However, reflecting on Sire Power's future and the agricultural economy, as we have previously forecast, the decade of the 90's will not allow the high level profitability attained in the 80's. A stable agricultural economy and a fair and equitable price for producers, as well as for our products, will need to be achieved before the U.S. A.I. industry will again regain profitability."

In the awards program, the cooperative continued annual support for the youth in the membership areas. In memory of Lew Campbell, former Sire Power general manager, Suzanne Cadwallader received the Lew Campbell memorial scholarship award for $2,000. Other scholarship winners of $500 each were: Dana Harvatine; Joshua Harvatine; Mark Iager; Dean Kahler; Amy Packard; Howard Reyburn; Kara Tussey; Brian Arnold; Angela Billick; Carrie Bryant; Colleen Kretzing; and Jennifer Rischell.

Northeast Vegetable Growers To Meet Feb. 8

SCRANTON (Lackawanna Co.)—The Northeast Vegetable Growers Meeting will be held on Thursday, Feb. 8 from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. at Thompson's Dairy Bar on the Newton-Ransom Boulevard in Lackawanna County. Reservation deadline is Monday, Feb. 5 at the Lackawanna County Cooperative Extension office.

Sponsored by the Cooperative Extension of Penn State University and the Lackawanna County Horticultural Association, program topics include plastic mulches, using disease forecasters, potato production and Colorado potato beetle control, no-till tomato production, Worker Protection Standards update, and integrated pest management.

Speakers from Penn State University include Michael Orzolek, Alan MacNab, extension specialists and county extension agents Robert Leiby, Tom Jurchak (retired), and John Esslinger. Charles Miller from the county conservation district will be a speaker. Joseph Colangelo from the Pa. Department of Agriculture will be present to assign training credits for recertification of private applicators of restricted use pesticides.

Reservations are $10 to be mailed to Lackawanna County Extension, 200 Adams Avenue, Scranton, PA 18503 by Feb. 4 or made by phone at (717) 963-4761 by Monday, Feb. 5

B.U.C.S. OWNER'S REPORT #52 & #58

The Word Is Out!

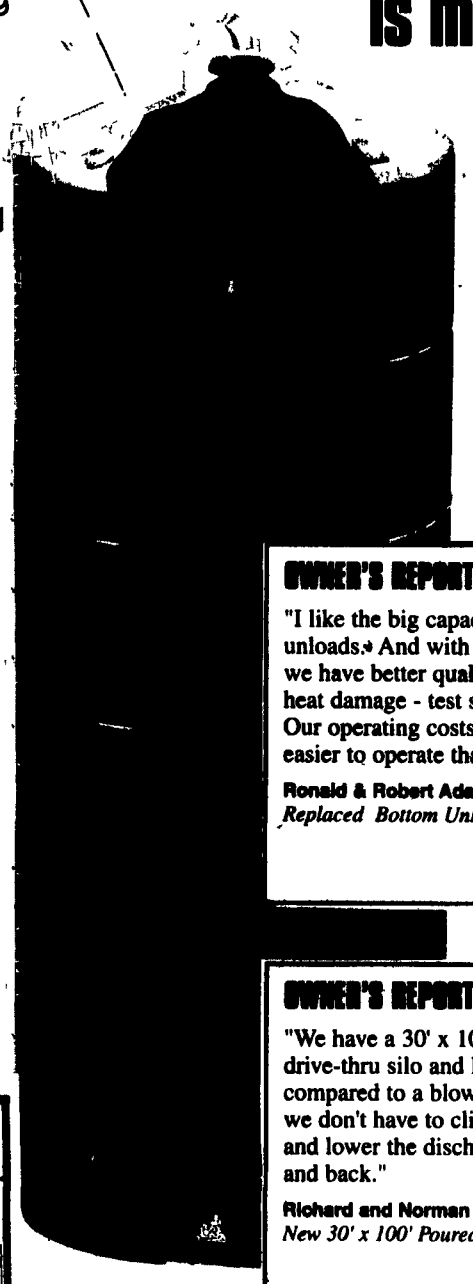
✔ Increased Storage Capacity
✔ Better Feed Quality
✔ Faster Unloading
✔ Lower Maintenance

The Jamesway Big Jim® B.U.C.S.™
(BOTTOM UNLOADING CONVERSION SYSTEM)
is making big news!



Reports are coming in from B.U.C.S. owners everywhere. And they're reporting that their B.U.C.S. systems are delivering increased storage capacity, higher quality feed, faster unloading and reduced maintenance versus their old bottom unloaders. Some are even installed in silos that had been retired! But don't take our word for it. Here's what your neighbors have to say about their B.U.C.S.

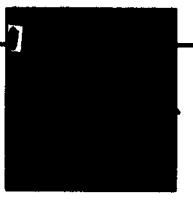
The Silo Unloader Experts

JAMESWAY

OWNER'S REPORT #52



"I like the big capacity way B.U.C.S. unloads. And with higher moisture haylage, we have better quality feed, with very low heat damage - test shows its 18% protein. Our operating costs are lower since it uses less electricity and it's easier to operate than a bottom unloader."

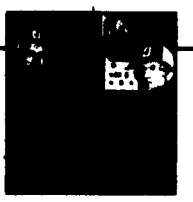
OWNER'S REPORT #58



"We have a 30' x 100' poured concrete drive-thru silo and like the rate of delivery compared to a blower type unloader. And we don't have to climb up and open doors and lower the discharge. It's easier to change from fill to feed and back."

Jerseys A Family Tradition

Much of the feed for the cows is grown on the 120-acre dairy. One hundred acres of additional ground is rented.

"We try to grow as much alfalfa as we can. Our alfalfa doesn't stay for too long, so you end up with 30-40 percent grass. Then we grow about 75 acres of corn. About 30 acres go for corn silage and the rest we dry," Harris said.

His herd average rolls at 16,350 pounds of milk, 793 of fat, and 624 pounds of protein.

"(Production's) held at 15-16 thousand pounds for a while. This is probably the highest we've been in about five years. It's gradually increasing," said Harris.

Although they try to get as much milk as possible out of their cows, they recognize that there are other important things to watch.

"Profit over feed cost is much more important in my eyes than getting 16,000 or 17,000 pounds. I guess we try to be as efficient as we can with the things we've put together," he said.

When breeding his cows, Harris tries to use the top 10 sires, matching them to the conformation of his cows. He also breeds about 20 percent to young sires.

"I'm in the Liberty Sires Program and I am or have been working with the young sire programs with ABS and Sire Power and Select Sires," he said.

As are many producers in the area, Harris is equally frustrated with the price received for bull calves at the market. For this reason he has decided to raise some of the bulls to market them himself.

"I've sold a lot of good pedigreed bulls just to the stock market. The last bull Janie sent, she got a bill for $1.72," he said, shaking his head in disgust.

While the outlook on farming for many is tainted with the ongoing debate in Washington D.C., creative ideas and a positive attitude help Harris face his job every day. Eventually he would like to give other management tools a try. BST is on his list, but Harris notes that he is not ready for the additional management responsibilities that come along with the technology.

"Farming is hard work and a lot of people who aren't on the farm don't realize what the commitment level is. But I still try to take a little bit of time off so we can do some other things besides stay home and milk cows. I think it improves your attitude."

That philosophy also ties in with the Harris' community involvement. Each year they help with East Smithfield's "Christmas on the Green" celebration. About five years ago he designed and built a carousel that fits inside the bandstand with eight horses. His wife sketched the horses and his father helped with the painting.

In addition, they are members of the Methodist Church in Smithfield and Brian is chairman of the park board in the community. They also enjoy a membership to the Guthrie Fitness Center.

While keeping the balance of work and fun, the Harris family keeps on top of what needs to be done and keeps an eye open for new ideas and technology, ensuring the future commitment of the Harris family and Jerseys.

(Editor's Note: This month's column is a letter received from a reader and the reply to that letter on the subject of grazing and low input dairying versus conventional dairying at higher input and production level.)

PLAIN COMMUNITY WRITER

I have been studying the column in 10/21/95 Lancaster Farming and others and find you know dairy rations well. But, as a grazier myself, I can see you don't understand what can be done with low input by way of profits. (What's the reason to milk cows if not for profit?)

First of all, daily average pounds per cow milked means nothing at all, unless of course you have a stanchion barn and can milk only a set number of cows. A well-known Wisconsin extension agent writes it pays better to milk three cows at 7,000 lbs. on pasture than 21,000 from one cow conventional. Now think how many health problems would a Holstein have with plenty of exercise and milking only 7,000? And how well does her ration need to be balanced? (This is comparing conventional feeding and year round milking versus seasonal grass dairy, where the cows freshen in early spring.)

We do prefer to feed a little corn silage to cows on pasture to boost energy and lower protein, also a little cracked corn in the parlor.

You mention being in debt—be sure that if you do start grazing, you may not make any extra profit the first years in the unknown system, but you know how to make quality hay, which is the same, only you use equipment to harvest, and we use cows. (The sale of equipment can be a source of money to see you through the learning phase.)

With cows harvesting, you can take the grass younger, and therefor, better quality. With equipment the cost of harvesting gets too high if taking it very short, or I should say cutting only four inches off of the grass. The next time you delay cutting until after prime because of rain, think the cow does not mind rain and cuts it prime rain or shine! Plus, any time you dry and handle feed you lose some quality. (You know your pencil.)

Saying it takes more management than conventional is true, but you'd have a lot less things to manage. With time your pasture quality becomes a lot more uniform, and if one paddock has more forage than another, well, that is the manager's fault. There is nothing magic about grazing.

Costs are lower because of less equipment, depreciation, interest, fuel, repairs, vitamins and minerals, and horses or mules. Two work horses are enough if you buy all your hay, or you might want to keep the hay equipment and have four horses (or mules).

When you say $4.25/cwt. feed cost, did you include work horse feed, dry cow and heifer feed? Did you include feeding equiment cost + repair + depreciation and manure hauling? What about pre-dip or udder wash? (Pastured cows are usually cleaner than you could wash them! That is, if they get ffesh pasture at least, after every milking; that means 60+ paddocks).

You might say with lower producing cows you'd have more money invested in cows; maybe so. But why buy super cows that need super feed and are hard to breed, more health problems and less replacement calves. Three cows produce three calves and have three mouths to eat grass faster than one that is trying to eat enough to produce 21,000. Intensively managed cows usually have very low somatic cell counts.

Fence cost need not be very high even if you don't use movable electric. We use steel T posts, $1.99 to $2.30 each, spaced at about 20 feet with two barbed wires @ $25 a roll on cross fences. Perimeter fence needs four wires and closer post spacing. Gates are usually wire. When the cows are on the best pasture available and moved every 12 (or 6) hours or before harvesting, more than half the grass available, there is no reason to test the fence! Most types of grass should never be more than 12 inches tall, some not more than eight when the cows start eating.

The amount of cows per acre varies. We buy all our hay and grain and have 96 head on 90 some acres of "poor shaley hill country." (12 ton silage an acre in a good year) Your soil could do much better, but pugging could be a problem.

Yes, making only hay for several years would be wise to build a good sod and give you more time to study other operations and read the Stockman Grass Farmer magazine!

Now your limitations are your management, soil type, climate and acreage, so now we talk about profit per acre not profit per cow! Say about $900 an acre is possible.

Most grass farmers are willing to teach, but we don't see any need to push or run down another man's way of doing things. Feel free to write!

Just another grazier,
Isaac Stauffer
Port Trevorton

Dear Friend:

You are right that I don't fully understand low input dairying. To me the quote about milking three cows at 7,000 lbs. versus one at 21,000 lbs. means it is better to make a profit at 7,000 lbs. than it is to lose money at 21,000 lbs., and I certainly agree that a herd average of 21,000 lbs. means nothing if you can't make your payments. But I wonder how it could even be possible for a young family to get started with a traditional herd size of 40 cows milking 7,000 lbs., since that is only 2,800 cwt. of milk sold per year.

I did a little bit of figuring and tried to come up with what I though might be a typical low input dairy budget.

40 cows @ $1000 each =	$40,000
30 heifers @ $500 each =	15,000
Mower	2000
Manure spreader	2000
Work horses	3000
Fence + water equipment	10,000
Milking Equipment	5,000
Total	$77,000

A typical loan on equipment and cows is seven years. The total payments would be $14,784 if you could borrow money at 8% interest.

	Total Annual Cost	Cost/Cwt Milk
Debt payments	$14,784	5.28
Family living	12,000	4.29
Rent	8,000	2.86
Hauling, dues, promotion	1,960	.70
Driveway stones, repairs	1,000	.36
Supplies	1,000	.36
Fuel	800	.29
Feed cost	5,600	2.00
Heifer feed + hay	2,000	.71
Horse feed + hay	1,000	.36
Bedding	500	.18
Total	$48,644	$17.39

We all know that if it costs us $17.39 per cwt. of milk, we won't be in business very long. I realize that this budget is not real numbers, but I challenge anyone to show me numbers to prove that a young family with payments to make can make ends meet at 7,000 lbs. of milk per cow.

You do have a point about buying super cows that need super feed, etc., but I do believe that you can make 21,000 lbs. of milk with just regular cows, basic grain and forage with very little health problems.

I have heard of different ways to calculate profit per acre, but this writer with a lack of understanding of low input dairying, sure wonders how $900 an acre profit is possible. Would someone please show me?

A management consultant we work with adds these comments.

1. All studies show that in general the more milk produced per cow, the more profit there is in the operation. There are individual exceptions, however.

2. Feed costs are usually 50-80% of the total production costs. Intensive grazing definitely lowers feed costs, but it doesn't significantly lower other costs, such as veterinary care.

3. Studies show that typically 25% of the feed in pastures is wasted (that is, not eaten), whereas 10% of feed is wasted in cropping systems (such as rained-on hay or moldy silage). Cows will certainly eat wet pasture grass, but they will also trample a lot of it, making muddy spots where the grass may not grow back.

4. Grazing may be profitable on poor ground worth around $600 per acre, but it is not profitable on good ground worth $3,000 an acre. When figuring profit, the cost of the land must be taken into account, including principle and interest payments and taxes. For example, compare what it costs per acre for a year to have land at these two values on a 40-acre mortgage of 10% interest and taxes at 10 mills:

	@ $600/acre	@ $3,000/acre
Principle	$15	$75
Interest	30	150
Taxes	6	30
Total Cost	$51	$255

If the milk price is $12.50/cwt., it would take 4 cwt. per acre (or 600 cwt. for 150 acres) a year to pay for the land at $600/acre and 20.4 cwt. per acre (or 3060 cwt. for 150 acres) a year for the $3,000/acre land.

Your comments are appreciated, and let's have some fun learning together! If you would prefer not to have your comments published, please indicate so.

Tioga County To Feature Dairy Day, Pancake Breakfast

WHITNEYVILLE (Tioga Co.) — The Tioga County Dairy Day is scheduled Wednesday, Jan. 31, from 11:30 a.m.-3 p.m. at the Tioga County Fairgrounds.

The day, which features an all-you-can-eat pancake breakfast from 10 a.m.-11:30 a.m., has a new format that should make it easier for dairy farmers to attend.

The day will start with a pancake breakfast and time to visit with friends and the sponsoring dairy businesses in the morning. The program will start at 11:30 a.m. and continue until 3 p.m. with an afternoon break.

Scheduled are the following:

- Jud Heinrichs, Penn State calf and heifer specialist, will cover liquid feeding of calves and evaluating milk replacers, heifer feeding and importance of healthy heifers, six months to calving, and contract heifer raising.
- Steve Ford, Penn State economic specialist, will cover heifer raising cost and heifer contract raising. Other topics include heifer housing and silage particle size demo.

The breakfast is sponsored by area dairy industry representatives.

The Tioga County Fairgrounds are located in Whitneyville, six miles west of Mansfield on Rt. 6.

Please call the extension office with the number of people that may come from your farm, (717) 724-9120.

Dairylea Reports Strong Financial Position

SYRACUSE, N.Y.—Due to a reported strong financial performance, Dairylea Cooperative Inc. recently redeemed the balance of equity contributed by members and former members during the fiscal year 1987.

The redemption, which totaled nearly $650,000, was made possible due to the Cooperative's continued profits, growth and financial position. Dairylea ended its most recent fiscal year with a profit of $1.2 million. As a result, tax-paid retained earnings grew $769,000, boosting the Cooperative's permanent equity.

"During the past six years, Dairylea has returned more than $16 million in equity to members and former members," said Rick Smith, chief executive officer of Dairylea. "These repayments underscore our commitment to minimizing the need for member investment in the Cooperative, thus allowing important capital to be invested at the farm."

Smith noted that accelerating repayments of equity while, at the same time, growing the equity base of the Cooperative, can only be accomplished with strong performances year after year. "We look forward to future financial and operational success to warrant additional repayments of equity," he said.

Dairylea Cooperative is a Syracuse-based dairy cooperative with more than 2,500 member-farms throughout the Northeast. It markets more than 4 billion pounds of milk annually and participates and is invested in a milk marketing network stretching from Maine to Maryland to Ohio.

In other news, Dairylea President Clyde E. Rutherford spoke recently at Ontario Agri-Food Cooperative Conference in Kingston, Ontario. He said the United States and Canadian dairy industries must work together to become international partners of the North American continent.

Rutherford, who was the only speaker from the United States on the program, explained to more than 200 industry leaders and farmers from both Canada and the United States that international lines are already disappearing and that barriers are being broken down every day through international agreements such as the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT) and the North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA).

"For these reasons," Rutherford said, "Canadian dairy cooperatives must adopt ways to become more competitive in the world marketplace. The distinctive difference between the structure of cooperatives in the United States and those in Canada is that U.S. cooperatives focus on providing their farmer-members with services beyond milk marketing."

Rutherford also provided an update on Dairylea's activities and discussed diverse programs and services that the Cooperative offers to enhance its members' profitability.

"At Dairlyea, we are committed to adding value to our membership by providing our members with offerings such as quality and production incentives, fixed price forward contracting, financial and farm management services, livestock marketing, and comprehensive insurance programs and benefits."

Select Sires Updates Classifications

PLAIN CITY, Ohio—Select Sires' December Holstein bull classification yielded 14 new Excellent bulls. That brings the total number of living Excellent sires to 45.

In fact, more than half of Select's active lineup is scored as such.

7H3716 Metcalfs Sel-C Starboard-ET, raised from EX-93 to EX-94.

7H4213 Robthom Integrity-ET, from EX-92 to EX-93.

7H3993 Coldspring Vertuosa-ET, from EX-92 to EX-93.

7H3257 Highlight Mr Mark Cinder-ET, from EX-90 to EX-91.

7H3847 Ameldin II Pontiac Hunter, from EX-90 to EX-91.

7H4152 Kenjo Prescott, from VG-87 to EX-90.

7H4226 Sharistibos SW Mo V-ET, a first score of EX-91.

Horse Model Show To Benefit Saddle Cinches 4-H Club

KRISTEN KAUFFMAN
President,
Saddle Cinches 4-H Club

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.)—In recent decades, a new hobby has taken the world of horse enthusiasts by storm. Come the end of July, thousands of this pastime's devotees converge on Kentucky Horse Park for an annual three-day convention known as Breyerfest. Participants come from all age groups: it attracts followers from the ages of six to sixty...or above! What is this equine hobby? It's a relatively new pastime known as model horse showing!

Several manufacturers produce high-quality, realistic horse models; Breyer and Hartland are perhaps the top names in the field. But collections of models don't have to be consigned to dusty shelves. Many of these animals are works of art, and, as such, deserve to see the inside of a show ring. Model horse showing works like this: a shower packs up his or her best models and travels to the show site. There, a minimal fee allows the competitor to enter models in showmanship classes (in which the model is judged on appropriate position, condition and quality of finish, and proper adjustment of tack), breed classes (where the animals are judged against their breed's conformational standard), and performance events (in which properly tacked-up jumpers, pleasure horses, or barrel racers compete for the most appropriate tack, set-up, and manners). Models are placed, 1st through 6th, as real animals would be; each collection (or "stable") has the points its models have earned tallied, and championships are awarded. In short, model showing gives horse enthusiasts of all ages the chance to learn more about equine conformation, breed standards, and competitions.

The Saddle Cinches 4-H Club of Manheim is planning its first annual open show, to be held on Saturday, March 16, at the Farm and Home Center in Lancaster, PA (just off PA's Route 72). The building will be open to entrants at 9:30 a.m. on show day, with classes beginning at 10:00. Divisions for all ages (both children and adults) are planned; ribbons will be awarded to the 1st through 6th place models in each class, with the champion person in each division receiving a rosette and a Breyer model.

One of the highlights of the day is the scheduled model signing party. Breyer manufactures various models inspired by the classic Misty of Chincoteague childrens' books. Most recently, a gift set consisting of Misty II, Black Mist, and Twister was added to the Breyer line. Misty II is the great-granddaughter of the original Misty of Chincoteague; she is owned by Kendy Allen of Manheim, as are her daughters, Black Mist and Twister. As members of the famous Misty family, the animals travel to schools, fairs, and shows all over the region. They're also shown in 4-H competitions locally. In October, I rode Black Mist in the Western Pleasure Pony class at the State 4-H Horse Show (I lease and train this animal). Having your horse immortalized as a Breyer model is a rarity, but a letter I sent to the Breyer company last year brought results. When I reminded the company of the talents and fame of Misty's family, it decided to produce the models! Breyer then worked from photos to create portraits of the real ponies.

The Misty II gift set will be in stores by the time of the show, and owner Kendy Allen will be available to sign the models. Maureen Beebe Hursh, who was featured as a character in the original Misty books, is also scheduled to sign Misty models and books ($3 per signing). A signed model always escalates in value and collectability, and a model signed by the real horse's owner is very rare.

Now on to show specifics: A model horse which is left exactly as the company manufactured it, with no touch-ups or repainting, is known as an original finish model. Some collectors choose to customize original finish models, using heat, epoxy, and Dremel tools to resculpt the models into unique or more correct positions. Models can be repainted as the collector chooses; hair manes and tails and even glass eyes are often added in an effort to create a more realistic model. At this show, all classes will consist only of original finish models, with no repainted or customized divisions. The customized horses are often more competitive — and more expensive — than their manufactured counterparts, and so must be shown separately.

First on the list are the showmanship classes. In these classes, models should have correct conformation, be in mint condition (not scratched, faded, or marked), and should be standing square, as they would in a real grooming and showmanship class. The model is required to wear a miniature replica of a halter or bridle; this would make it possible for the handler to control it were it an actual animal. Models are anatomically correct, so classes are divided by sex, and, to give foal and yearling models a chance, maturity.

Breed classes are an assembly of models from the same breed category; the animals are judged against their breeds' conformational standard, as at any livestock show. Many models come packaged and labeled as being a certain type of horse or pony, but the best way to figure out where a model should be entered is by sitting down with a horse breeds book. Photographs, descriptions, and rules about what coat colors a breed registry accepts can help entrants to properly place an animal. And of course, asking the judge at the start of the show can be a big help. Most model judges are very helpful, often offering entrants suggestions for successful showing.

Performance classes are perhaps the most interesting division. In these, models are expected to wear correct, well-fitted saddles, bridles, and harness. The models are then judged on how realistically they appear to be performing a given event. For example, a barrel racing horse would be expected to be galloping through a barrel race pattern, complete with miniature barrels. The model would be wearing a western saddle and bridle. The only thing lacking would be the rider! Incidentally, model tack isn't hard to come by: most tack shops carry Breyer's model tack. Private collectors also offer custom-made saddles.

Here is a brief explanation of what each performance class requires: An English pleasure horse should appear to be moving quietly and willingly at the walk, trot, or canter. It should wear an English saddle and bridle. In jumping, a horse with English tack should be trotting or cantering toward a jump. Some models are positioned in a jumping position, and these are fine, too. Both English and Western trail classes require the horse to be negotiating an obstacle (such as a bridge or low jump). Western pleasure entries should wear Western saddles and bridles. They should be walking, trotting, or cantering, and should appear relaxed and calm. Western events include barrel racing, pole bending, calf roping, etc. Here, a properly tacked-up horse should be executing the given event, complete with barrels, poles, or calf. Cart and harness requires a model or team of models harnessed to a sleigh, cart, or wagon.

Costume class requires models to be decked out in realistic costumes. Popular costumes include an Indian warrior's skin blanket and feathered bridle, an Arab's tassled saddle and bridle, and a knight's richly-ornamented warhorse. Finally, the barn class is simply a creative, realistic set-up of models and a stable.

The aim of model showing is to recreate an actual horse show on a small scale. Not only is this less expensive than attending an event at Quentin, but it also opens up the field of competition to children and non-horse-owners as well. Model showing provides a chance for horse enthusiasts to learn more about various breeds and events ... without the high stakes or high expenses of actual showing. It also makes a great weekend event for riders sidetracked by slushy spring weather!

A pre-entry fee of $8 allows showers to enter over 20 classes; it also guarantees them table space to set up and store their models at the show. $10 on show day allows a competitor to enter, but table space is not guaranteed.

If the concept of model horse showing sounds interesting, register for the Saddle Cinches show! Send an SASE to Saddle Cinches Model Show, c/o Kirsten Kauffman, 761 Hess Rd., Elizabethtown, PA 17022-9520, or call (717) 367-5295 (evenings). Checks can be made out to Saddle Cinches 4-H Club. Upon registration, a class list and details will be mailed to entrants. Support the 4-H horse program and give the hobby of model showing a try!

Cattle Consistency Program Set

YORK (York Co.) — "Cattle Consistency: Implications for Packers and Producers," a program designed to encourage producers to remain competitive in the beef business, is set for Tuesday, Feb. 20 at Hoss's Steak and Sea House West beginning at 6:30 p.m.

With the continued trend toward value-based marketing in the industry, it is extremely important for beef producers in all segments of the industry to be aware of beef packers priorities when purchasing cattle.

Beef packers are increasingly trying to produce branded and specification products that are consistent for characteristics such as quality, product size, weight and shape. Under present marketing conditions, they are constantly faced with the challenge of finding a market for vastly different kinds of cattle.

There is a cost to producers associated with marketing this wide variation in quality. The value-based marketing approach encourages producers to first investigate the specifications demanded in the marketplace and then attempt to design a product to meet the guidelines.

[illegible] will provide an opp[illegible] about the beef-ing practices of a major Pennsylvania beef packer, Moyer Packing Company.

Steve Bryce is the head cattle buyer for the company and he will address the effects different kinds of cattle have on the packer.

The meeting is important to both the cow/calf producer and the feedlot operator. Feedlot operators have the opportunity to adjust their feeding programs and strategies to meet market demand and to carefully consider the kind of finished cattle the market demands when they buy feeder cattle.

The cow/calf producer is the design engineer who can breed cattle that meet the specifications feedlot operators want. Regardless of your niche in the production process, dont miss this opportunity to learn more about the importance of cattle consistency to the entire beef industry.

Advance registration is requested for the meeting so that adequate seating is available at the restaurant. Each participant will order the dinner of their choice from Hoss's menu.

To register for the meeting, call Penn State Cooperative Extension at (717) 840-7408 or stop by the office at 112 Pleasant Acres Road, York, PA.

York To Host Four Seasons Of Grazing Teleconference

YORK (York Co.) — Dairy and livestock producers interested in rotational grazing are encouraged to attend the Four Seasons of Grazing Teleconference planned for Feb. 8 in Meeting Room 1 at the York County Extension Office.

Designed for individuals considering or already grazing livestock, this seminar will give participants an opportunity to visit, via videotape, three Pennsylvania farms using rotational grazing.

For a year-round look at the various operations, each farm is visited during each of the four seasons. The morning presentations and discussion will focus on the spring, summer and fall tapes. The afternoon satellite broadcast will feature the winter tape and will have a call-in question and answer session with the farmers featured in the videos and Marvin Hall, Penn State forage management specialist. The program begins with registration at 9:30 a.m.

Farmers featured in the tape include Alex Linde and Millie Widmann, Lancaster County producers who have used rotational grazing for more than 30 years; Larry Lohr, a Somerset County producer who has been grazing nine years; and Garry VanDeWeert, a Bradford County producer who has been grazing for six years.

Discussion topics will address the following questions: When and how do you start grazing in the spring? How important are water and shade in summer? What can be done when pasture growth slows in the summer? How late can you graze into the fall or winter? How do you stop grazing in the fall? How much does it cost to feed cows on pasture vs. in confinement? How does grazing management change as the seasons change? How can calves and heifers be raised in a pasture-based dairy operation? How do experienced grazers adjust their grazing system each season?

York Atlantic Dairy/Crops Day Set

YORK (York Co.) — Dairy producers are encouraged to attend the Wednesday, Feb. 14 Atlantic Dairy/Crops Day planned for the Shrewsbury Fire Hall.

The program begins with coffee and donuts at 9:30 a.m. This year's York Atlantic Dairy/Crops Day will focus on corn silage.

With this year's dry weather, some dairy producers are experiencing lower than expected milk production if their rations include heavy use of corn silage. There are few things more important than producing high quality forages to achieve outstanding milk production.

Once forages have been harvested, the nutritionist can only build the best ration possible with the raw materials available — the producer's forages. At this session we will focus on the first step toward producing quality corn silage — selecting varieties best suited for silage.

Dr. Elwood Hatley from Penn State University will open the morning session with a discussion on what various research findings reveal about the differences in silage quality among various corn hybrids. Dr. Jud Heinrichs from the Penn State Dairy Nutrition Group will then discuss troubleshooting corn silage and haylage. Heinrichs will look at evaluating silage quality, determining appropriate chop lengths, evaluating preservatives and inoculants, and dealing with quality problems.

The corn silage segments will provide excellent background information for the dairy nutrition workshops planned for Feb. 22 and 29. These workshops will look at silage fermentation and the effect it can have on forage quality.

Emphasis will be on how to prevent problems in various structures. The use of silage additives and how to handle mycotoxins will be discussed.

York County will provide a host site for the Dairy Nutrition Satellite Conference at the extension office in meeting room 1. Advance registration is requested for both events.

To get the full picture on corn silage, plan to participate in both the Atlantic Dairy/Crops Day program and the Dairy Nutrition Satellite. The morning Dairy/Crops Day program will conclude with a discussion on interpreting Milk Urea Nitrogen (MUN) test results by Extension Agent Tim Beck. Because this test is relatively new, guidelines will be provided to help producers and their nutritionists interpret MUN test results.

Cost for the Dairy/Crops Day program is $3.50/ticket. The Dairy/Crops Day is jointly sponsored by Atlantic Breeder's Cooperative and Penn State Cooperative Extension. Please register in advance for the meeting by calling Penn State Cooperative Extension at (717) 840-7408, or stop by the Extension Office at 112 Pleasant Acres Road, York, PA 17402.

WATTSBURG (Erie Co.) — For being only 17 years old, Rhonda Joy Kieklak's resume reads like the All-American girl who excells at everything.

She is both the Erie County and state dairy princess, homecoming queen, president of her class, yearbook editor, student council member, cheerleader, and — get this, guys — she's bagged two nine-point and a six-point buck in the years she's been hunting.

Recently, at the Pennsylvania State Farm Show, Rhonda generated some Hollywood excitement when she emceed the Middle Atlantic Milk Marketing Association's Game Show. As the announcer, Rhonda exuded poise, confidence, and audience interest.

"I get my talking ability from my dad," Rhonda said. She also credits her dad's hunting skills for rubbing off on her.

After a week at the Farm Show, Rhonda was homesick for her parents.

"My parents are the best. I really miss them. They are supportive in everything I do," Rhonda said.

She speaks with longing of the family farm in Wattsburg "where there are no neighbors," at least none close enough in the sense that most people consider neighbors.

The Kieklaks' 100-acre farm with 35 milking Holsteins is called 4R Farm in reference to the beginning letter R in the names of her parents, Richard and Robin, an older sister Renee, and Rhonda herself.

Although the Wattsburg area is rural with only 600 kids attending Seneca High School, Rhonda said that there aren't many farms left in the area. At one time, 20 farms were located along Macedonia Road where the Kieklaks live. Now, there are only three working farms. The farms are not being developed, it's just that farming is not profitable enough to continue.

The area does have mountainous slopes for skiing. Rhonda works part time at the Wilderness Ski Lodge, where she hands out passes and skis in the rental area.

Dairy princess appearances often require Rhonda to miss job and school days.

"My employers and the teachers are just great about allowing me to go (on promotions)," said Rhonda, who has trained her best friend to fill in at the ski resort and also help with some local promotional work.

When Rhonda competed for the state dairy princess crown at the state pageant with 34 other county princesses, she swept awards in every category — presentation, speech, scrapbook, Miss Congeniality and ultimately, Pennsylvania Dairy Princess. But Rhonda brushes aside any comments about this unusual feat by saying, "Not one girl was there to take everything. Every one was friendly and concerned about promoting dairy products. I think it is wonderful to represent farmers, but I didn't go to the pageant thinking I want to win."

Instead, Rhonda said, "I went with the attitude that if God wants me to be the state dairy princess, then it will happen."

God, according to Rhonda, plays a vital role in her life.

"Our family is built on love and I was raised to follow God's footsteps," she said.

Rhonda is assisted by two state alternates, Heather Oberholtzer of Lancaster County and Yvonne Peterman of Lycoming County. On most occasions the three work independently in dairy promotion, but at large state events, the three join forces in promotional duties.

Of her assistants, Rhonda said, "We are just like a family who doesn't fight."

"I'm overwhelmed at the immensity of the dairy princess program. I knew it would require hard work and time, but Jan (Harding who is program director) is incredible."

To find more room in her busy schedule, Rhonda gave up cheerleading for the school's basketball team. A surprise to many of her friends, and one not devoid of pain for Rhonda.

"But, it's worth it," Rhonda said of the sacrifice. "I meet so many new and interesting people. Sec. Brosius took me to lunch. It was so exciting crowning the supreme champion cow with Governor Ridge."

(Turn to Page B3)

"My parents are the best," says Rhonda of Robin and Richard Kieklak who farm in Erie County.

Despite achieving almost every position that she ever wanted, Rhonda, right, said that several years ago her sister Renee was chosen instead of her to become an Erie County dairy maid. At the time, it was a big disappointment to Rhonda who maintains that competition builds character.

At 7:10 a.m., before she reached her tree stand on the opening day of hunting season this year, Rhonda bags another buck. This is a six point, but in previous seasons, Rhonda bagged two nine-point bucks.

HOMESTEAD NOTES

Rhonda hands cash and a savings bond to Matt Hurley of Waynesboro shown with his mother Barb Hurley and a friend, Shannon Erieu. Matt is a student at Penn State and a student agriculture education teacher at Dover High School.

On The 'Moove'

This year was the first time that Rhonda attended the Pennsylvania Farm Show. Impressed by the diversity, she plans to make the six-hour drive from her home to attend future Farm Shows held after her reign.

At this point, Rhonda is uncertain of the direction her career will take.

Unlike most dairy princesses, Rhonda said that college is definitely not a certainty for her.

"At school, I'm in the office technology class. I'm training to obtain a good secretarial position, but I'm not sure what will happen. I'd love to find a job in communications," she said.

One thing is certain for Rhonda. She said, "I want to stay in the area. I've traveled a lot as the dairy princess, but my parents' home is the best."

International Public Market Conference To Be Held Feb. 8-11

PHILADELPHIA — Philadelphia will host the Third International Public Market Conference from February 8 - 11. Entitled "Public Markets, Community Revitalization," the conference will bring together community development specialists, public administrators, market managers and other interested parties to explore the role markets serve within a community.

There are now over 2,000 public markets (including farmers', street, and open air markets, market halls and market districts) in the United States alone and the numbers are growing. Experts and professionals from across the country will conduct lectures, lead discussion groups, and hold panel discussions in an effort to promote public markets as an effective vehicle for community revitalizaton and as a link between local agriculture and urban populations. The conference will provide a forum for investigating the revitalization of communities and rebuilding of local economies through the development and restoration of markets.

As part of the conference, tours of markets in Philadelphia and Lancaster County will be conducted as a means of showcasing the many types and sponsorship forms of markets today.

The conference will be held at the Philadelphia Marriott, across from the newly renovated Reading Terminal Market.

For more information, call David O'Neil, conference director, at (215) 482-5130.

Are you a believer?

I've never really been. Though for years I've collected the books and found them interesting and entertaining.

Almanacs. Repositories of astronomical information, planting recommendations, assorted helpful as well as whimsical tips, tidbits and recipes. And weather predictions. Not that I've ever taken those weather predictions too seriously. After all, how can the weather be predicted months, a year, in advance?

So, fellow scofflaws of almanac weather predictions — like myself — take note.

The Farmer's Almanac for 1996, or at least the condensed version on our desk, made this forecast for the period of January 4 to 7: "Severe storm Mid-Atlantic states to New England brings heavy snow, followed by fair skies."

Lest it slipped your mind, the "heavy snow" we shall all tell our grandchildren about for years to come came on . . . Sunday, January 7. Just coincidence, you say? Maybe. Maybe not. But for the record, here are some of the predictions for this part of the country through the rest of 1996.

February 24 to 29, moist southerly winds are expected to dump snow from Atlanta up through the Mid-Atlantic. You might want to stock up on milk and bread.

March 8 to 11, a severe storm is predicted east of the Rockies, across the Mississippi Valley to the Northeast. Stock up on milk and bread. Again. But two weeks later, March 24 to 27, heavy rains are called for across the Mid-Atlantic. Keep the boots and buckets handy.

Boy, will we be ready for the stretch of April 4 through 7, when it's supposed to be mostly fair in the East. Welcome weather for the Easter weekend. But don't put away the foul weather gear just yet, since April 20-23, storms are predicted to continue in the East. Storms? What kind of storms?

May 28 to 31 is expected to be rainy. About four out of five Memorial Days usually are, for whatever reason. Probably caused by the outbreak of picnics.

Then, get ready for the June 16 to 19 heat wave, a thought that sounds almost appealing right now. And to add my own prediction, the annual June hatch of pesty flies. Predictably, by the time June 28 to 30 rolls around, severe thunderstorms are expected, with possible tornados. We could skip that one.

A nice Independence Day is called for, making up for those wet Memorial Day picnics.

Look out for August 4 to 7, when Farmer's Almanac projects a hurricane threat for the Eastern Seaboard. Make a cautionary run to the supermarket, just in case. The end of August, 28 to 31, calls for clearing in the East and turning hot. A good portent for the beach resorts to have a great, end-of-summer wrap-up weekend. Make your reservations early.

October, my favorite weather month, is supposed to start off with storms the first few days. Trick-or-treaters can take heart that Halloween weather is to be pleasant in our area. Storms from Maryland through New England are predicted in the December 4 to 7 time slot, followed by colder in a few days. No almanac prediction for Christmas. My prediction? No white Christmas a second year in a row.

There you have it. Consider yourself warned.

And don't forget your extra milk and bread.

Communications Internship Available With Dairy Association

SYRACUSE, N.Y.—The American Dairy Association and Dairy Council, Inc. (ADADC) is seeking applicants for a summer internship in the communications department. A dairy background with strong communication, writing and organizational skills are required for the position. Applicants must be pursuing a career in agricultural communications and must have completed their sophomore year of college to be considered.

The intern will gain a variety of "hands on" experience in the fast-paced field of dairy promotion. Some of the responsibilities include writing news releases/public service announcements, coordinating special events at the New York State Fair, Empire Farm Days and the Dairy Promotion Training Seminar. The intern will be based in the Syracuse office during the months of June, July and August.

To apply for the position, send a resume and two writing samples to: Stephanie Meyers, American Dairy Association and Dairy Council, Inc., 219 South West Street, Suite 100, Syracuse, NY 13202-1205. Deadline to apply is Thursday, February 29.

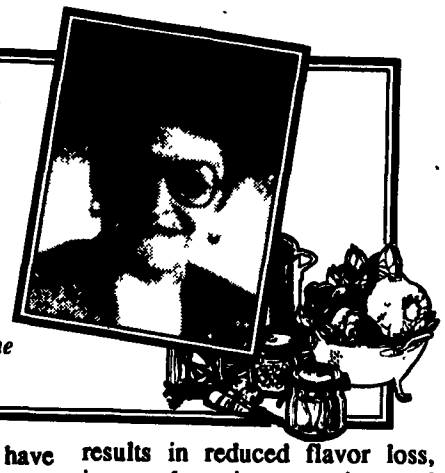
Penn State Extension Home Economist For Berks Co.



You and dry bean cookery have a friend — the crockery style cooker. These electric low temperature-long time cookers are ideally suited for the preparation of tasty bean dishes.

Crockery cookers have a long heritage including low temperature cooking of foods in earthenware pottery buried under open fire coals for many hours, followed by cast iron skillets in ovens, and now as countertop units with removable ceramic crocks.

Home use of crockery style cookers has increased dramatically in recent years because of their convenience, versatility and adaptability to fine recipes. These cookers provide for slow, unattended cooking of products at subboiling temperatures, which results in reduced flavor loss, increased nutrient retention, and improved marination of ingredients.

Beams are especially well suited for preparation in crockery cookers, and are a tremendous help to the cook and a joy to the palate.

Beans prepared by low temperature long time cooking will cook to consistent and more uniform texture. Variations in heating time during low temperature cooking will not significantly change the textural properties. Furthermore, beans of different sizes or color classes can be readily blended and cooked at low temperature. This provides for easy and successful preparation of mixed bean dishes. The pre-soaking and cooking procedures are combined into one when using the crockery cookers to further facilitate ease of preparation.

The temperatures used in crockery cooking are above the temperature zone suitable for the proliferation of food poisoning organisms, and products properly prepared in this manner are safe. A crockery cooker should not be used however, for reheating or refrigerating leftovers because the slow heating or cooling could potentially result in microbial growth.

Dry beans will increase in weight and swell in volume during the soaking and cooking procedures. Sufficient water must be provided to enable this to occur if the beans are to be properly cooked. Six cups of water per pound of beans is sufficient to cover and hydrate dry beans.

During menu planning, remember that beans are always an excellent source of protein, selected vitamins and minerals, and are increasingly recognized as an outstanding source of dietary fiber.

Beans by the Crockfull

1. Sort, clean and wash beans.
2. Place beans in ceramic crock (provide ample space for swelling, do not exceed 1/3 the capacity of the crock with dry beans.)
3. Cover with sufficient boiling water to cover the beans (6 cups per pound of beans).
4. Set temperature range and cook — "low" range — 12 hours; "high" range — 6-7 hours.

Crockery Cooker Baked Beans

1 pound dry navy beans
6 cups water
1½ teaspoons salt
1 teaspoon dry mustard
½ teaspoon pepper
½ cup chopped onion
½ cup molasses
¼ cup brown sugar
¼ pound salt pork, cubed

Place beans in boiling water (enough to cover) and simmer for 10 minutes. Then combine beans, water and salt in crock. Cover and cook on low about 12 hours. Drain beans, reserving liquid. Combine beans with remaining ingredients and add enough bean liquid to cover beans. Cover and cook on low another 6 hours.

Pizza Any Way You Slice It

No matter how you slice it, Americans love pizza. Thick or thin crust, that's a matter for debate, but we all seem to like it by the fistful, drooping under the weight of bubbling mozzarella cheese, tomatoes, and a gamut of other toppings.

Gennero Lombardi, the cook who in 1905 opened the first U.S. pizzeria in New York City, would be pleased with the meteoric rise in pizza's popularity. In Gennero's days, pizza satisfied the cravings of the many Italian immigrants who, homesick for their national flavors, came to his restaurant for feast and fellowship.

The Americanization of pizza came with the return home of GIs from southern Italy after World War II. Their cultivated taste for Italian pies contributed to the boom that catipulted pizza into the genre of hamburgers, hot dogs, and ice cream.

MEATZA PIE

Crust:

1 pound ground beef or use a mixture of ground beef and pork
1 scant cup soft bread crumbs
¼ cup milk
1 egg
¼ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper

Pat all this into a 9-inch pie plate, bottom and sides

Topping:

Spread over "crust"
½ cup tomato sauce
4-ounces mushrooms
¼ teaspoon oregano

Bake in preheated 375-degree oven for 25 minutes. Remove. Spread over crust:

1 cup sharp grated cheddar cheese
2 tablespoons grated parmesan

Return to oven and bake 10 minutes longer. Let set after removing from oven for 5 minutes before cutting wedges.

My family often enjoys meatza pie. The taste is similar to pizza so children and adults love it equally. So easy to prepare and with a salad and baked potato, it's a complete meal.

REUBEN PIZZA

4 6-ounce balls pizza dough
½ cup grainy Dijon-style mustard
½ cup heavy cream
1½ cups thoroughly drained sauerkraut
6 ounces dill pickles, quartered lengthwise, sliced
¾ pound Swiss cheese, shredded (divided)
10 ounces lean corned beef, thinly sliced

Heat oven to 550 degrees. Work each ball into 8-inch circle. Spread each with ¼ mixture of cream and mustard. Spread sauerkraut over each pizza. Scatter pieces of pickles over the sauerkraut. Divide cheese among the four pizzas. Lay corned beef over top of cheese. Scatter remaining half cup of cheese over the corned beef. Place pies on baking sheets sprinkled with similar flour.

Bake 8 to 10 minutes or until dough is crisp and cheese is golden and bubbly. Serves 4.

FAJITA PIZZA

Crust:

1½ cups biscuit baking mix
⅓ cup hot water

Grease cookie sheet or 12-inch pizza pan. Mix baking mix and hot water, beat vigorously 20 strokes. Turn on to hard surface generously sprinkled with biscuit mix. Roll in baking mix and knead about 60 times or until smooth and no longer sticky.

Press dough into 13-inch circle for cookie sheet or press into pizza pan, pinching edge to form a ½ -inch rim.

Topping:

½ pound boneless, skinless chicken breast
2 tablespoons oil for frying
½ medium bell pepper, sliced in thin rings
1 small onion, sliced
½ cup picante sauce
1½ cups shredded mozzarella cheese

Heat oven to 450 degrees. Move rack to lowest position. Heat skillet, add oil and chicken. Cook and stir for 3 minutes. Add bell pepper and onion. Cook and stir 3 to 4 minutes. Stir in salsa.

Sprinkle ¼ cup cheese over crust. Top with chicken mixture. Sprinkle remaining cheese over top. Bake 12 to 15 minutes.

STRAWBERRY PIZZA

1 cup all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
¼ cup confectioners' sugar
½ cup melted butter
8-ounces soft cream cheese
½ cup water
1 can sweet condensed milk
⅓ cup lemon juice
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
½ cup granulated sugar
2 tablespoons cornstarch
4 cups fresh halved strawberries

Combine flour, baking powder, salt, and confectioners' sugar. Add butter and mix well. Pat dough into 14-inch pizza pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 10 minutes or until lightly browned. Take out of oven and let cool.

Combine cream cheese, condensed milk, lemon juice, and vanilla. Mix well until smooth and spread on top of cooled crust. Chill in refrigerator.

Combine granulated sugar and cornstarch in large saucepan. Add water. Mix until smooth. Cook over medium heat until thickened, stirring constantly.

Add strawberries to sauce. Cool completely. Spread strawberry mixture over cream cheese layer and chill until ready to serve.

Fresh blueberries or raspberries may be substituted for the strawberries. Cut into small wedges. Serves 8-10.

Featured Recipe

Today's featured recipe comes from Lancaster County Poultry Ambassador Deb Landis.

Since her reign began in September, Deb said that she has been privileged to take part in a wide variety of activities that have broadened her horizons.

The fall brought with it county fairs and the thrill of riding on a float accompanied with a six-foot tall ceramic chicken.

She has gone to the Lancaster County Courthouse with George Georges, Guy Martin, and John Schwartz to issue a proclamation declaring October to be Poultry Month.

"Another milestone for the industry took place at Willow Valley's Palm Court when the Poultry Association held their annual banquet with much celebration and enjoyment."

She writes that she enjoys meeting people at Lancaster Farm Women's banquets, Farm City Banquets, Cherry Hill Orchards, and the Lancaster Farmer's Market where she hands out recipes.

RASPBERRY CHICKEN

Marinade:

1 cup unsweetened raspberry preserves
½ cup unsweetened pineapple juice concentrate ½ cup soy sauce
2 tablespoons rice vinegar
½ teaspoon chili powder
½ teaspoon curry powder
1 clove garlic, minced
¼ cup fresh basil or 2 teaspoons dried
¼ cup fresh raspberries, mashed
8 chicken breast halves, boned and skinned

Combine marinade ingredients and marinate chicken overnight in the refrigerator. Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Place chicken in shallow baking pan, pouring in half of marinade. Bake uncovered for 30 to 40 minutes or until tender, basting often with reserved marinade. Serves 4 to 6.

Pizza Any Way You Slice It

MEXICAN PIZZA

1 package corn muffin mix
1 can refried beans
¼ cup shredded cheddar cheese
¼ cup shredded Monterey Jack cheese
1 cup tomato sauce with tomato bits
3 tablespoons chopped green pepper
3 tablespoons sliced green onion
2 tablespoons hot salsa ranchera
½ avocado, peeled and sliced
Chopped tomato

Preheat oven to 400 degrees. Make corn bread according to package directions, reducing milk to ¼ cup. Spread evenly in well-buttered 14-inch diameter pizza pan. Bake 20 minutes. Cool about 5 minutes. Spread refried beans over entire corn bread surface. Sprinkle with half of cheeses. Combine tomato sauce, green pepper, onion, and salsa. Spoon over refried beans. Sprinkle with remaining cheese. Reduce oven temperature to 350 degrees. Bake 15 minutes, or until cheese is melted and mixture is hot. Garnish with avocado slices and chopped tomato.

QUICK PIZZA FOR CHILDREN

1 English muffin, halved
1 spoon pizza sauce
1 slice cheese

FIVE MINUTE PIZZA CRUST

2½ cups flour
1 cup water (105 degrees)
1 package dry yeast
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon sugar or honey
1 tablespoon cooking oil

Combine water, salt, sugar, and yeast. Stir until solids dissolve. Add oil and flour. Mix to form thick dough. Let set 5-10 minutes while fixing sauce and cheese. Divide and flatten on 2 large oiled pizza pans. Add sauce and toppings, etc. It is ready to bake in a hot 475-500 degree preheated oven.

Upper Falls, Md.

VERY VEGGIE PIZZA

8 ounces mushrooms, chopped
1 green or yellow bell pepper, chopped
¼ small red onion, chopped
8 ounces fontina and provolone cheese, shredded
1 tablespoon olive oil or garlic-flavored olive oil
12-inch ready-made Italian bread/pizza shell
½ cup prepared chunky vegetable spaghetti sauce or pizza sauce

Heat oven to 450 degrees. Stir-fry vegetables in oil in a large skillet over medium-high heat, 4 to 5 minutes or until liquid evaporates. Season vegetables with salt and pepper to taste, if desired. Place bread shell on baking sheet. Spread spaghetti sauce evenly over bread shell. Top with half the cheese, all the vegetables, and the remaining cheese. Bake 12 to 14 minutes or until cheese is melted and crust is golden brown. Cut into wedges.

VEGETABLE PIZZA

2 packages refrigerated crescent rolls
2 8-ounce packages cream cheese
1 cup salad dressing
1 package party dip mix
Fresh chopped vegetables (cauliflower, broccoli, celery, peppers)
Shredded cheese
Pepperoni

Place crescent roll dough over large cookie sheet. Bake as directed until lightly browned. Cool. Mix together softened cream cheese and salad dressing, add party dip and mix well. Spread on cooled crust. Top with sliced fresh vegetables and mushrooms if desired.

Add shredded cheese and pepperoni. Put in refrigerator until ready to serve. Do not bake. Cut into small pieces.

MINI-MUFFIN PIZZA

1 English muffin, split in half
2 tablespoons spaghetti sauce
½ cup shredded mozzarella cheese
Choice of chopped vegetables (green peppers, onions, sliced tomatoes)

Preheat oven to 375 degrees. Toast English muffin halves in toaster. Remove, put on cookie sheet. Spread with spaghetti sauce. Top with chopped vegetables. Sprinkle cheese over both halves. Bake for 8 to 10 minutes or until cheese is melted and bubbly. Let cool three minutes. Children will enjoy!

PIZZA CRUST

4 cups flour
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup warm water (115 degrees)
3 tablespoons olive oil (extra virgin)
2 packages yeast
2 teaspoons brown sugar
½ cup warm tap water

Mix ½ cup warm water and brown sugar in a small bowl. Dissolve, add yeast and mix. Let set for 5 minutes.

In a big bowl, add flour, salt, 1 cup water, and olive oil. Add yeast mixture to the flour.

Put ½ cup flour on surface and knead for 8-10 minutes. Place dough in a greased bowl. Cover and let rise for 1 hour.

Upper Falls, Md.

THREE CHEESE PIZZA

4 ounces sharp white or aged yellow cheddar cheese
4 ounces Edam cheese
4 ounces smoked gouda, provolone, or mozarella cheese
12-inch ready-made Italian bread/pizza shell
½ cup prepared pizza sauce
¼ cup chopped, fresh basil leaves
¼ teaspoon crushed red pepper flakes

Heat oven to 450 degrees. Shred cheeses. Place bread shell on baking sheet; spread evenly with pizza sauce. Combine cheeses, basil, and pepper flakes; sprinkle evenly over sauce. Bake 12 to 14 minutes or until cheese is melted and crust is golden brown. Cut into wedges. Makes 6 servings.

SHUMAKER'S PIZZA

Dough:
1 package yeast
1¼ cup warm water
1 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons vegetable oil

Sauce:
15-ounce can tomato sauce
Dried onion
Parmesan cheese
Oregano
Basil

Toppings:
Mozzarella cheese
Pepperoni, browned ground beef or hot dog slices

Thirty minutes before serving, preheat oven to 425-450 degrees.

For dough, dissolve yeast in water. Add other ingredients and knead. Let rise in greased bowl 2 hours or more.

Divide dough into 2 balls and form crust on 2 greased pans. Spread sauce on crust and put toppings on. Bake for 15 minutes.

Mom makes the dough and I made the sauce right after Sunday lunch. Then we have it for Sunday supper.

ANSWER — B.W. Pue, Rocky Ridge, Md., wanted directions for making realistic gingerbread people that are used in crafts. Thanks to Marlene Martin, Mohnton, for sending recipes. Painting the features is done with a small paintbrush and craft paint.

Ginger Cookies
(Makes puffy, soft gingerbread people)

½ cup shortening, melted
¾ cup molasses
¼ cup sugar
2 cups flour
¼ teaspoon salt
1½ teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon ginger
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ cup buttermilk

Heat molasses and sugar, stir in melted shortening. In separate bowl, mix dry ingredients. Add dry ingredients and buttermilk alternately into molasses mixture. Chill several hours.

Roll out to desired thickness and cut with gingerbread man cookie cutter. Bake at 350 degrees for 20 minutes.

Crafty Cookies
(Makes thick, flat gingerbread men)

1 cup ground cinnamon
1 tablespoon cloves, ground
1 tablespoon ground nutmeg
¾ cup applesauce
2 tablespoons tacky glue

Mix together and knead until smooth. Roll out on cinnamon dusted surface to desired thickness. Use wax paper on top. Cut with cookie cutters. Let dry until hard.

CORRECTION — The recipe for Texas sheet cake that was printed in the Jan. 5th issue should read that 1¾ cups confectioners' sugar should be added to the icing.

ANSWER — A reader wanted a recipe for baked doughnuts that are light in texture. Thanks to an anonymous reader for sending the following recipe.

No Fry Doughnuts

2 packages dry yeast
¼ cup warm water
1½ cups milk, scalded and cooked
½ cup sugar
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon nutmeg
¼ teaspoon cinnamon
2 eggs
⅓ cup vegetable shortening
4½ cups flour, sifted and divided
¼ cup melted butter, divided
¼ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon cinnamon

Dissolve yeast in warm water. Add milk, sugar, salt, and nutmeg, ¼ teaspoon cinnamon, eggs, shortening, and 2 cups flour, beat with electric mixer. Beat 2 minutes. Stir in remaining flour. Cover and let rise until double.

Gently roll out dough to ½ -inch thickness on floured surface. Cut with doughnut cutter. Place on greased cookie sheet 2 inches apart.

Mix together sugar and cinnamon. Brush warm doughnuts with butter and sprinkle with the sugar and cinnamon mixture.

ANSWER — I.M. Filler, Brookfield, Mass., wanted a recipe for souse. Thanks to Sanford Landis, New Providence; E.J. Woods (who is 90 and still loves to cook), Nottingham; Josephin Matenus, Dallas; Leora Petet, Hollsopple, and others for sending recipes.

Souse

2 pig tongues
5 pig feet
4½ pound pork roast
1 tablespoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper
5 drops hot pepper sauce (optional)
Water
1 cup cider vinegar
3 envelopes unflavored gelatin
½ cup cold water
½ cup pimento, diced and drained (optional)

Place pigs feet and pork in pan. Cover with water. Simmer 4 hours until soft. Remove meat from broth. Strain and save broth in refrigerator overnight. Skim and discard fat. Remove meat from bones, sliced meat, and skin. Bring meat, skin, and broth to boil. Add vinegar, simmer for 30 minutes. Add gelatin to hot mixture, stir, add pimento. Pour into loaf pan, and refrigerate.

Pizza

GARLIC SHRIMP AND PEPPERS PIZZA

8 ounces mozzarella cheese
2 ounces parmesan cheese
½ each red, yellow, and green bell pepper
12-inch ready-made Italian bread/pizza shell
½ cup prepared pizza sauce
1 pound medium uncooked shrimp, peeled and deveined
1 tablespoon olive oil
2 cloves garlic minced

Heat oven to 450 degrees. Shred cheeses and peppers.

Stir-fry shrimp in oil with garlic in a large skillet over medium-high heat 2 minutes. Add pepper strips; continue to stir-fry 1 to 2 minutes or until shrimp are cooked through. Place bread shell on baking sheet. Spread pizza sauce evenly over bread shell, add shrimp and peppers; top with both cheeses. Bake 12 to 14 minutes or until cheese is melted and crust is golden brown. Cut into wedges. Makes 6 servings.

PIZZA RISO

Crust:
1 cup coarsely grated carrots
2½ cups cooked brown rice
⅓ cup whole wheat flour
½ cup low-fat cottage cheese
2 tablespoons minced onion
½ teaspoon basil

Topping:
½ -¾ cup tomato sauce
1½ cups shredded part skim mozzarella cheese
½ teaspoon basil

To make crust: Place the carrots in a strainer and weigh down with an unopened can of fruit or vegetables. Let drain for 20 minutes. Pat dry.

Combine carrots with the rice, flour, cottage cheese, onions, and basil.

Coat a 9x13-inch baking pan with non-stick spray. Transfer mixture into pan, spread over bottom and ¼ -inch up the sides. Bake on middle rack at 350 degrees for 25 minutes. After crust bakes, place under broiler to seal crust. Remove from oven, spread tomato sauce over the top; spread cheese. Sprinkle with basil, and return to oven. Bake at 350 degrees for 20-25 minutes or until cheese is bubbly and browned. Slice into 8 pieces and serve.

Cook's • Question • Corner

Thanks to Patricia Varchol, Reinholds, for sending what she says is by far the best cookies that ever came across her kitchen. After searching for several years for a moist, chewy cookie, she writes that this find ends her search

Chocolate Chip Cookies

2¼ cups flour
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 cup butter
¼ cup granulated sugar
¾ cup packed brown sugar
4-ounce package instant vanilla pudding mix
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 eggs
2 cups chocolate chips
1 cup chopped walnuts (optional)

Mix flour and baking soda; set aside. Combine butter, sugars, pudding mix and vanilla; beat until creamy. Beat in eggs. Gradually add flour, then stir in chips and nuts. Drop onto ungreased cookie sheet. Bake at 375 degrees for 8-10 minutes, until edges are just beginning to brown. Allow to cool several minutes before removing from cookie sheet.

Contributor writes: A friend with whom I've shared this recipe prefers to use only half the amount (⅓ cup) pudding mix. It still makes a very moist cookie, but is a little less rich).

I store these cookies in a covered but not airtight container and have never had a problem with them drying out, but then, they're never around for more than a few days at our house!

Soft Chocolate Chip Cookies

1 cup shortening
1 cup brown sugar
¾ cup granulated sugar
3 eggs
1½ teaspoon baking soda
¾ teaspoon salt
3½ cups flour
1½ teaspoon vanilla
1 cup chocolate chips

Cream shortening and sugars together; add remaining ingredients. Bake at 350 degrees.

M.M. of E-town

ANSWER — Carol Grove wanted a recipe for chocolate chip cookies that stay moist and chewy and secrets for keeping the cookies from drying out in a few days. Thanks to Mrs. Burnell Moyer, Manheim, for the hint that cookies should be removed from the oven just before you think they are finished baking. To keep them soft, store in a tightly closed container with a piece of bread. Thanks to Linda Dice, Chambersburg, for sending a recipe.

Pumpkin Chocolate Chip Cookies

1 cup cooked pumpkin
1 cup sugar
½ cup oil
1 egg
2 cups flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
2 teaspoons cinnamon
1 teaspoon baking soda dissolved in 1 teaspoon milk
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup chocolate chips
1 teaspoon vanilla

Combine pumpkin, sugar, oil, and egg. Stir together flour, baking powder, cinnamon, and salt.

Add pumpkin mixture along with dissolved soda mixture and mix well. Add vanilla and chocolate chips. Drop by teaspoonful on greased cookie sheet.

FFA HAPPENINGS

The West Snyder FFA Chapter at West Snyder High School has recently been informed by the National FFA Center that they will be receiving an environmental stewardship grant in the amount of $500 sponsored by the National Rifle Association and the National Fish and Wildlife Foundation.

This nationally competitive grant will be used to pay for lumber and other expenses incurred during the FFA Conservation Field Day to be held at West Beaver and Beaver Adams Elementary Schools on April 22.

Cosponsored by the West Snyder Junior and Senior High FFA chapters, Conservation Day involves elementary students from kindergarten through grade 6. This year, each sixth grade student will be building their own blue bird box to take home with them. This will be the third year for the Conservation Field Day.

A Blizzard Game Plan

I, like many of you, have been preoccupied lately with thoughts about snow. A favorite phrase of my mother's keeps running through my head, "When faced with the inevitable, relax and enjoy it." I'm trying, honestly. But when faced with more than a week of blizzard-like weather and poor driving conditions, the "relax and enjoy it" part becomes more difficult. It is with that challenge in mind that I composed my game plan to deal with the next round of frosty weather.

I call my game plan, The Twelve Days of a Blizzard. And the first few days are the same (aren't they always!).

Day 1: Shovel snow.

Day 2: Shovel snow.

Day 3: Shovel more snow.

Day 4: Turn off the TV and play "Find the mitten." Pick an old, brightly-colored mitten. Most families have at least one glove or mitten that has lost its mate. Use it. Designate an indoor or outdoor hiding vicinity. For example, between the front door and the maple tree or in the living room. One person hids the mitten making sure at least some part of it is visible. (The game is no fun if the mitten is completely buried in the snow!) The rest of the family seeks it. Take turns hiding and finding the mitten. Try different locations. With younger children, play as teams to help each other.

Day 5: Do an inventory of your pantry/canned goods cupboard. What do you have that could be made into a meal? Hold a family contest. Who can come up with the most creative stir fry or casserole recipe using things on hand?

Day 6: Use a scooped out grapefruit/orange rind or a pine cone from your stored Christmas decorations and make a bird feeder. Fill the holder with suet or peanut butter, then top it with bird seed, nuts, raisins, or cracker crumbs. Hang it on a tree or fence post. Toss stale bread outside. Then watch what birds come to visit your outdoor diner.

Day 7: Mend clothes that have been stacking up.

Day 8: Call a friend who lives in a warmer climate.

Day 9: Take turns visiting and hosting neighbors who are within walking distance. Take an evening and play board games together. Young children will appreciate the change of scenery as much as you do. They'll also like having different games/toys to try.

Day 10: Exercise outdoors for at least 20 minutes if temperatures permit. You might take a walk, build a snowman, help out a neighbor who is not able to do an outdoor task. For some, getting to your mailbox and digging it out would be a perfect assignment. By Day 10, you'd really like to get some mail!

Day 11: Write a letter to someone who is just as snowbound as you are. If you have young children, allow then to add pictures and decorate the envelope. If you're a computer junky, surf the net and send a note to someone in another state.

Day 12: Get out some unlabeled photos and add descriptions to at least two rolls of prints. Have others help you with the task. This is a great way to reminisce. Be sure to throw out the pictures that aren't so good. And if you haven't already done so, before you completely dig out of the snow, take some more picutres. Our children, grandchildren, and great-grandchildren need evidence of the winter we lived through!

Ida's Notebook by Ida Risser

On one of these snowbound days, I decided to sort through a drawer in my cedar chest. It has been a catchall for years.

The items that I decided to remove were a hundred or more postcards and a collection of loose stamps. In my youth I faithfully put stamps in a special book, but over the years I lost interest or became too busy. Now I can hope that someday a grandchild will take up where I left off.

There were several old leather coin purses that contained pennies and nickels. There were four unusual bone and cloth fans. There were two pairs of chopsticks and lots of special letters written by my sisters or my children to me.

One item that I found was a small, black book made to hold name cards. Most of the cards belonged to my high school classmates but some were our children's official name cards connected to their business affiliations.

In the bottom of the drawer was a large Christmas book given to me by an older lady in 1945. I had forgotten about it, but I took it out and read some of the stories.

Probably the most interesting were the postcards. Some were sent to great uncles and great aunts. There were messages written on the front and on the back. Many said, "Sorry I can't come to your home on Saturday." Others said, "Meet me at the trolley station Friday evening." They seemed to take the place of our telephone today. And, they had a one cent stamp and not a 20¢ stamp as we must use today.

CHORE-TIME ...nobody knows more about feeding

The Right Choice in broiler feeders

Feed broilers and pullets your way! As the world leader in poultry feeding systems, Chore-Time offers you the best choices in feeders. You will love what our newest feeders —the Model C2™ and Model H2™—do for you.

Features include (1) labor-saving Patented Feed Windows that open to let chicks eat from day one—without additional feed on paper or "lids", (2) feed-saving features like easy feed adjustment settings, and (3) cost-saving all-plastic designs with Chore-Time Warranty.

Pick a Chore-Time feeding system—including our rugged feed bins and Genuine Chore-Time FLEX-AUGER® Feed Delivery System, plus ventilation—and you know you've made the Right Choice—because it's from Chore-Time, the leader!

The Right Choice in cage feeders

Chore-Time's popular ULTRAFLO® Cage Feeding System is now even more outstanding! We've developed and tested the second generation of ULTRAFLO feeders and named it the ULTRAFLO® II.

ULTRAFLO II offers you even greater reliability, durability, and outstanding feed-saving performance—up to 1 gram of feed per bird per day—over the original ULTRAFLO. And even the original ULTRAFLO was beating our competitors in feed savings!

So, join the cage feeding leader. Contact us today. Find out how Chore-Time and ULTRAFLO II can help you be a leader, too!

New Shape
The difference is the shape of the feeder's trough (at right). ULTRAFLO II's higher trough lip reduces feed waste by keeping it in the trough and not on the floor or in the pit.

Winter Wonderland In Cambria County

LORETTA GOLDEN
Cambria Co. Correspondent

PORTAGE (Cambria Co.)—The Blizzard of '96 is history. The snowstorm left its mark on Cambria County just as it did in much of the rest of Pennsylvania. The emergency travel ban enacted by Governor Tom Ridge closed area roads to all traffic except emeregency vehicles and essential personnel. The Cambria County Courthouse, state and federal offices, and many area businesses were closed. The two feet of snow which fell closed area schools, but most were only shut down for one day.

Cambira Countians are used to now—we always seem to get our share during the winter months, specially during Farm Show Week. This year's blizzard forced many area residents, including a busload of inner-city students from Johnstown High School, to curtail travel plans to Harrisburg.

The average person may not realize that the snow affects farmers a little differently than cityfold. Animals still have to be fed and the milking still has to be done. Farmers can't wait for the snow plow to open things up. There are additional fuel costs to run the large equipment for snow removal from lanes and barnyards. Time is money too. Time spent by the farmer removing snow from roadways and buildings is time away from doing other chores.

In spite of the abrupt changes in schedules and extra work caused by the large snowfall, many area residents found the silver lining in this weather. There is a calm beauty in this force of Mother Nature. The daily pace slows down a bit out of necessity.

The Norm Long family resides at "Long Farm," a Century Farm in Sidman, RD. Norm and Josie Long and son Ray, hitch their work horses, Bob and Dan, to a bobsled to enjoy nostalgic sleight rides as well as do some of the daily farm chores. They use the horses to haul manure and gather wood. During the maple syrup season, the horses pull a tank wagon to gather the sap.

Even though the Longs run a farm equipment and machinery repair business, Norm comments that he would never want to be without his horses, especially in the event of heavy snow. They offer him a sense of mobility and independence when the roads become closed to vehicular traffic.

Bart Borlie, of Portage, RD, wouldn't want to be without his winter vehicle of choice-his snow mobile. He says that this gives him independence and mobility. Local snow mobile enthusiasts are finding quite a bit of enjoyment in the snow as evidenced by the many snow mobile tracks criss-crossing area fields.

Farmers fields have become trailways for cross-country skiers. Frozer ponds which have been cleared of snow provide ice skating opportunities for children of all ages. Youngsters seem to enjoy sled-riding as their "hands-on" favorite winter activity. This activity can keep the youngsters occupied for quite a long period of time provided they are dressed properly and do their sledding in a safe area. Whole families of snowpeople seem to appear spontaneously in many yards.

Yes, Mother Nature has left her mark on the area with the Blizzard of '96. Whether it was good or bad, depends upon your perspective.

Egg Rolls By Julie

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — The Vietnam War ended 20 years ago, but those war years left an indelible mark on American society.

Much has been exposed about the unpopularity of the war that couldn't be won, the senseless loss of lives, and the after effects of Agent Orange. But good things have happened too.

One of the results of the war is the availability of authentic Vietnamese food introduced by the influx of Vietnamese who came to the states. These new food choices often appeal to us. Often those who enjoy ethnic tastes know little about the country and background from which they are derived.

Julie Stauffer, a Vietnamese war bride who settled in Ephrata, often shares her culinary specialties with friends and coworkers. She grows accustomed to hearing rave comments for cooking the best egg rolls ever made. She agreed to share her egg roll secrets and a bit of her life story.

Julie grew up accustomed to fleeing from Communist invasions and hearing the boom of exploding bombs every night.

Born in North Vietnam, her parents fled to the South in 1954, where her father joined the Americans Forces.

Her grandparents and a few uncles remained in the North and there was little contact between them. Julie returned home from school one day to find her mother rolling in agony on the floor. At that point, Julie was told only that her grandmother had died, but later she heard the whole story. Her grandmother had been executed by the Viet Cong because her sons fought with the enemy (the American side).

When Julie was 14 years old, her father was killed in battle. Her mother worked in a government office. When Julie was a teenager, she became employed in the mess hall of the Americans GIs.

Like many of her friends, Julie fell in love with an American GI. When he ended his tour of duty and returned home, he sent for her. The couple married, settled in Ephrata and had two sons before they separated and divorced.

"I remember being so overwhelmed and scared when I came here," Julie said. Accustomed to cooking with charcoal, Julie was terrified of using an electric stove and other appliances.

Food in the grocery stores was all strange. At that time, ethnic items were not available locally.

"I didn't know how to cook American food — only Vietnamese," Julie said.

With the help of her husband, Julie learned to select and cook American foods, and to adapt to the language and customs.

After the couple divorced, she learned to drive and worked in a sewing factory to support herself and two sons, who are now 23 and 19 years old. The oldest is employed full time and lives with Julie, the youngest is in college studying to become a doctor.

Julie was here three years before the Vietnam War ended. Naturally, she was eager for an end of the killing and fighting, but the end of the war ushered in another terror.

"When I heard on the news that Communists from the North had taken over the South, I was concerned about my family in Vietnam. It was a horrible feeling because I had no way to contact them and I didn't know where they were at the time. I feared they would shoot my mother because she worked for the American government."

Indeed, her mother was taken to a concentration camp, and no one knew of her whereabouts for six months. When she was released, she had to hunt in the jungle for her own food while finding her way back home.

"Most Communists had lived in the jungle and were good fighters but not good workers," Julie said. Because her mother had a background in office work, the Communists soon recognized they needed her skills, and she was ordered to run an office and manage the paper work. She did her work well and taught the Communists the office skills that she knew. Although she remained under parole, the Communists seem to respect her. A friend of her mother refused to cooperate with the Communists, and they killed her.

It was difficult for her mother to resume a normal life with the two children who remained in her care. They lived in constant fear. Her mother was considered on probation by the Communists and had limited freedom, but amazingly enough, several years ago she and her children were able to come to America with the money sent by Julie and another brother, who had arrived in America at the end of the war.

"All my life, my family was looking for peace. We thought that by moving over here, we would have automatic peace, but we don't. We are refugees to our own selves," she said.

"Now that we live in America. We no longer fear who is going to kill us, but we have a different enemy — a struggle for inner peace.

This realization that peace is not automatically found in circumstances has cause Julie to reevaluate life.

"I needed God to heal me of many memories and of a lot of things that I grew up with. I discovered that peace can be found only by trusting in God," she said of her gratefulness to American people who have shared their lives and faith with her.

"American soldiers went to Vietnam to fight for our country. I want them to know that even though we didn't win, we are grateful to the soldiers," Julie said.

Those who are connoisseurs of egg rolls recognize that they vary greatly in flavor and ingredients, depending on the ethnic background of the cook. The wrappers are sometimes thick crusted and other times thin.

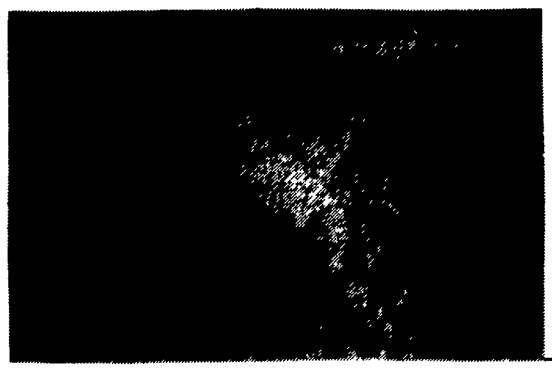
(Turn to Page B15)

Julie combines the ingredients for the vegetable and meat mixture that is placed in egg roll wrappers before being deep fried.

Vietnamese food is increasing in popularity, mostly as a result of the Vietnamese who settled in the U.S. because of the Vietnam War. Like Julie, many share their food with neighbors and friends, who like the taste and either learn to make the same dishes or frequent ethnic restaurants and grocery stores.

Because the odor from deep frying lingers indoors, Julie fries the egg rolls outside in warm weather or inside a garage during inclement weather.



Egg rolls are deftly wrapped by placing about ¼ cup of the meat mixture in the center of the egg roll wrapper, tucking in one end and the sides and rolling to the point. Fasten the end by dabbing a bit of raw beaten egg on the final point and pressing against the dough.

E-Town FFA 8th In Nation

Team members included Heather Oberholtzer, Dawn Witmer, Bethany Brosey, and alternate Krista Hoffmann.

This event tests members' abilities and skills in the total sales process by having members deliver sales presentations of a product of their choice to a panel of national business judges. The team members used products that are raised and studied in agriculture at Elizabethtown.

The E-Town Bear Creek Farm facilities provide all students the opportunity to study honey bees and development marketing strategies for honey by-products. The team selected pure honey, honey flavor snack sticks, and hand-rolled beeswax candles as their product for a sales presentation to the panel. The team was also evaluated on product display, market analysis, customer service, and employment skills.

The team obviously knew how to market their products as they placed eighth in the nation and were awarded a gold emblem in the event. The team was coached by William Erikson, agricultural teacher at Elizabethtown.

used in the egg rolls Julie grew up eating, she prefers egg rolls made with ground beef and finds that Americans generally prefer them also. She has Americanized the egg rolls even more by substituting ground turkey for the beef.

Eggs are not used except to seal the edges.

Julie said that even when she lived in Vietnam, everyone that she knew always purchased the egg roll wrappers instead of rolling them out by hand. Egg roll wrappers come in packs of 25 and must be carefully separated by peeling apart each layer. The egg roll wrappers are available at Vietnamese stores and in supermarkets that carry ethnic foods.

Julie doesn't measure the ingredients and you don't need to either. The mixture can easily be made by adding more or less of the ingredients you prefer. Here is an approximate recipe derived by watching her dump and add ingredients.

Egg Rolls

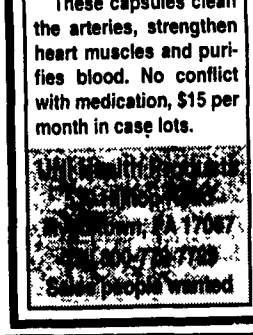
1 small head cabbage, finely sliced
2 cups ground beef or turkey, browned
2 cups finely grated carrots
1 cup onion finely grated
¼ cup fresh parsley
2 cups cooked Vermicelli (bean thread noodles)
Salt and pepper to taste
25 egg roll wrappers

Combine cabbage, ground beef, carrots, onion, parsley, vermicelli, salt and pepper.

Separate the egg roll wrappers. Place desired amount of the meat mixture (about ¼ cup) in the middle of the wrapper. Fold the wrapper around the mixture like an envelope by starting diagonally at one end, folding up the bottom, tuck in the sides and continue rolling to the tip. Seal the tip by moistening with beaten raw egg and pressing against the wrapper dough.

Fry in hot oil (about 385 degrees) until golden brown, about 10 minutes. Remove from oil, drain, and place on paper towels until oil is absorbed. Best if served immediately, but may be refrigerated or frozen. To reheat, place in 350 degree oven for 15 minutes or until thoroughly reheated. The wrapper should be crispy. Reheating in a microwave makes them soggy.

Egg rolls may be eaten plain or dipped in a sweet and sour sauce called duck sauce.



These capsules clean the arteries, strengthen heart muscles and purifies blood. No conflict with medication, $15 per month in case lots.

The One Spreader Big Enough For Poultry Litter, Rugged Enough For Lime.

The Stoltzfus Poultry Litter Spreader is specifically designed for the demands of this challenging job. The 20 foot hopper holds a whopping 400 cubic foot load, meaning fewer trips for you. The big 30-inch drag chain moves large volumes of litter fast. And the dual hydraulic spinners spread a wide, uniform pattern up to 40 feet wide.

But its real beauty may be its versatility. Now you can spread fertilizer, stockpiled lime, compost, poultry litter and more, all with one machine.

Long considered "top-of-the-line" ag spreaders, many Stoltzfus Spreaders are still in use after 20 years. That makes a Stoltzfus Spreader preferred not only for quality and performance, but also for terrific economy in the long run.

Sure you can settle for buying on initial price alone. But with a Stoltzfus Spreader you won't be shopping for another spreader just a couple years down the line.

Mid-Winter Tree Care
This is the first article in a series on caring for snow-bound plants

If you're surveying your Arctic snowscape that used to be your yard and finding lots of broken limbs, snapped trunks and bent-over saplings from snow . . . well, at least you have lots of company.

Snowstorms have taken their toll on trees and shrubs now buried under tons of snow. Snow has bent over evergreen branches, snapped stems and branches and has even broken the trunks of trees.

First, don't remedy snow broken branches by tying or propping broken branches back in place. The wounded area never heals properly. Prune all the way back to undamaged live wood.

Remove all broken portions of branches and trunks to help prevent further snow damage. If broken branches are left hanging in the crowns of the trees, future wind or snow loads may result in additional damage and possible loss of the entire tree. If the trunk is snapped, there's nothing to do but remove the tree.

If loss of limbs and main stems has dramatically changed the shape of a tree, plan to do additional corrective pruning next spring. Start by thinning the remaining healthy branches to reshape the tree.

Many shrubs have also been injured from snow loads. Dig out valuable shrubs from snow drifts. Many hedges like arborvitae or hemlock are bent to the ground. As soon as possible attempt to reduce the snow load from shrubs and return the branches close to their normal position.

Support evergreen shrubs like Taxus by wrapping with cord or wire mesh to prevent further damage.

Any shrub branches that snapped should be removed as soon as possible to prevent further splitting. Don't worry about plant shape at this time of year. There will be plenty of time next spring to thin and shape the plant to return them to better form. Don't be surprised if a severely injured tree or shrub dies even though it appears to be recovering. There may be enough life and moisture in the plant to cause weakened growth next spring, but as this growth continues, the plant may still die.

When spring comes, give surviving trees a light application of 5-10-10 fertilizer. This fertilizer at a rate of one pound per 100 square feet is adequate.

Apply it on the soil around the base of the plants, about six feet out from the trunk. Also, apply fertilizer 4 to 6 feet past the drip line of the remaining branches.

Shrubs in landscape beds are also helped with the same amount of fertilizer spread over the entire area under the plants. If it doesn't rain within a few days after fertilizer application, water the area well. Add a two-to-three-inch layer of coarse textured mulch, such as shredded wood bark, over the entire root zone.

Cook's Question

ANSWER — For the readers who request lowfat recipes, here are two from Nancy Kramer, Newmanstown.

Oven Puffed Peach Pancake

½ cup all-purpose flour
2 tablespoons sugar
½ cup skim milk
½ cup fat-free egg product, thawed
1 tablespoon margarine
16-ounce can lite peaches, drained
2 tablespoons chopped pecans

Heat oven to 425 degrees. Lightly spoon flour into cup, level off. In medium bowl, combine flour, sugar, milk, and eggs. Beat until smooth. Place margarine in 9-inch pie pan, melt in 425 degree oven 2 to 4 minutes or until margarine sizzles. Remove from oven and tilt to coat pan. Immediately pour batter into pan. Top with peach slices. Sprinkle with pecans. Bake at 425 degrees for 16-20 minutes or until puffed and golden. Serves 4. Calories 240. Sat. fat 2 g.

Seafood Broccoli Stir-Fry

1 tablespoon oil
¾ pound uncooked shrimp
2 cloves garlic, minced
¼ cup water
14-ounces frozen broccoli
1 onion, chopped
1 can chopped water chestnuts, drained
1 tablespoon cornstarch
2 tablespoons soy sauce

Heat oil in large skillet or wok over medium heat. Add shrimp, garlic, and onion. Cook and stir 6 minutes. Remove shrimp, keep warm. To same skillet, add water. Bring to boil. Stir in broccoli and water chestnuts. Cook 8-10 mintues. Add shrimp. Mix cornstarch and soy sauce. Stir into hot mixture, cooking 2 minutes or until thickened. Serve on rice. Serves 4. Calories 140, sat. fat 1 g. total fat, 4 g.

ANSWER — L.G. of Mechanicsburg wanted a funnel cake recipe and wants to know where to obtain a funnel cake mold. Thanks to Jami Glick, Lewistown, and E.J. Woods, Nottingham, who sent recipes and wrote that there is no need for a mold because the design is made when the batter is drizzled into the hot oil.

Funnel Cakes

1 cup plus 1 tablespoon flour
¾ cup milk
1½ teaspoons baking powder
1 egg
Pinch salt

Mix together ingredients thoroughly. Heat deep fat oil in heavy iron skillet. Pour about ⅓ cup batter into funnel. Spiral the batter into the hot oil. Lightly brown, turn, and brown the other side. Remove from oil and sprinkle with confectioners' sugar.

Funnel Cakes

Mix together:
2 cups milk
2 beaten eggs
2 cups flour, sifted
1 teaspoon baking powder

Combine ingredients and mix thoroughly. Test mixture to see if it flows easily through a funnel. If the batter is too thick, add milk until batter consistency is right. If too thin, add more flour.

Heat deep fat in heavy iron skillet. Pour batter through funnel into deep fat. Spiral and other shaped cakes can be made by manipulation of funnel and control of funnel outlet with fingers. Fry until golden brown, drain, and sprinkle with powdered sugar while still hot. Serve hot.

SOIL COMMANDERS

The New Brillion Soil Commanders take Residue Management to the next generation of soil conservation efficiency.
The Soil Commanders are versatile tillage tools designed to meet the needs of the mid-size farmer who uses a 150-200 H P tractor. One of the keys to the machine's versatility is that it uses interchangeable shank legs and individually mounted disk assemblies instead of a disk gang. This makes possible a machine with disk assemblies on the front and rear of the frame with chisel plow or deep-ripper shanks on 15", 24", 27" or 30" spacings

COMPACTION COMMANDERS
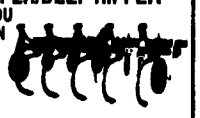
DESIGNED FOR YOU R CONSERVATION NEEDS
3-5-7 Shank
CCD 500



Brillion introduces their new Compaction Commander designed to break up hardpan and compaction as deep as 20". The standard V-shaped alloy point and wear strip leaves residue on the surface with minimal soil disturbance. Auto-reset shanks with 20" of trip height allows for non-stop tillage. Parabolic shanks lift and fracture the soil. 39" of underframe clearance assures trouble free operation even in heavy residue.

The daughter of Dean and Paula Thomas, Butler, Feather has been involved in other contests, taking second runnerup in the past year's Butler Junior Miss contest, and winning her county's Junior Miss Presence and Composure award, and the 1996 World Beginning Two-Baton Championship.

The recipient of the Nights of Knowledge Award, she is also an honor student. While a student at Knoch High School, she was a feature twirler/majorette with the band, a member of student council, its Ski, Spanish, Pep, and Senior Cabinet clubs, and served as a student baton instructor.

She has also been active in volunteer community work such as working for the Saxonburg Library, Habitat for Humanity, and the Jerry Lewis Telethon.

Further she served as Bulter Fair announcer and as a judge. She was also involved in the BAMA auction.

Runnerup state queen was Lori Coale, 19, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Coale, of New Milford. As runnerup she received a $500 award.

Currently a dean's list student at Daemen College, Amhurst, N.Y., where she is studying physical therapy, Lori finished in the top third of her Mountain View High School graduating class. The recipient of scholarships from Tyler Memorial and Montrose General hospitals, she has also received an Air Force mathmatics and science award and a Bausch and Lomb science award.

In school she was a member of the National Honor Society, the high school scholastic team, Students Against Drunk Driving, Future Business Leaders of America, and she participated in band, chorus, basketball and a mock trial program.

On a stage decorated with a large blue, pink and white rainbow of balloons background, in front of hundreds of county fair volunteers and family, 1995 state Fair Queen Jennifer Marie Randall, of Somerset, placed the queen and runnerup tiaras and the banners on the new state fair royalty.

There were five finalists in the queen contest including Green-Dreher-Sterling Fair Queen Lina Dee Yacovelli, daughter of Charles and Gloria Yacovelli, Newfoundland; Somerset County Fair Queen Christy Croner, daughter of Norman and Carol Croner, Berlin; and Fayette County Fair Queen Christy Griffith, daugther of Donald and Virginia Griffith, of McClellandtown.

Contestants were judged on several different criteria during a two-day contest schedule. In general they were judged upon their poise, appearance, neatness, and ability to communicate verbally and in writing.

After checking in at the Hershey Convention Center Thursday, from 9 a.m. to 3:15 p.m. Friday the contestants were interviewed individually and privately by three judges.

The three judges for the queen contest were Patricia Sueck, of Airville, Dr. Donald Evans, of Penn State University, and Ann Knab, of Tyrone.

At 3:30 p.m. at a nearby Comfort Inn, all fair queens were required to attend a seminar also open to fair representatives and parents. It included a question and answer session on what is expected of fair queens.

According to an outline of what fair queens are expected to do, as part of pre-fair promotions, they are expected to serve as a public figure for the news media, hand out fair books and promotional items and encourage people to attend the fair, as well as doing school promotions, attending youth organization meetings, and adult community organizational meetings to promote the fair.

During the fair, they are expected to serve as host and guide for visiting dignitaries, help with show presentations such as awards, participate in any related ribbon-cutting ceremonies or dedication events.

They are also expected to help with announcing fair events and to serve as fair hostess for other promotion royalty, such as commodity princesses and queens.

Farm-City activities, parades, and other high-visibility events which could help advance public awareness of county fairs are also to be attended as much as possible, though arrangements must be approved by the local county fair committee chairman or the fairboard.

Following the seminar, the queens gathered at the Convention Center for an official group photograph, then proceeded on to an evening gown competition and introduction to the PSACF delegation just prior to the convention banquet.

Saturday morning from 7 a.m. to 11:15 a.m., the queens had to present speeches to the judges.

The complete poem appeared in the 12/9 issue, but we need to condense for space. It's her grandmother's favorite poem and she could recite every word until a stroke took her voice. She is 89 and in a nursing home, but Glenda reads this poem to her every Christmas. Glenda said that there may be parts missing or wrong since she wrote it from memory.

The yule log blazed in the ancient hold.
The baron's only daughter, the little Lady Grace was better dressed than any guest and fairer in the face.
Yet never a thought of pride had she

Butler Fair Queen

At the end of the coronation luncheon, the queens were reintroduced and one-at-a-time took their places on stage, with a spotlight fixed on each as they walked across a darkened ballroom.

Standing at a podium on stage, Brad Hicks, an area television newscaster dressed in a tuxedo, announced each queen's name, affiliated fair, and interests.

The winner of the award was West Lampeter Fair Queen Shannon Noecker, daughter of Deborah Sharrow, of West Lampeter.

With the judges sitting at an elevated table across the room, the finalists were taken out of the room out of earshot, and individually brought back on stage to answer a question from Hicks, to test their abilities at impromptu response.

The questions was, "How would you promote the values and qualities of county fairs and farm shows?"

Thomas's response was that family values are reflected in fair values and to that extent she would do everything she could to highlight the different aspects of the fair that promoted family values.

Coale's answer was along the same line, in that fairs portray family values and she would do what she could to promote and support those values at fairs. She suggested that even such things as family discounts at fairs help to promote those values.

After all five gave their response, the judges retired to another area to make the final selection.

In the meantime, outgoing queen Randall told the group about her experiences. "I have wonderfull memories of so many wonderfull people," she said.

She talked about the fairs she visited, her meeting with state Gov. Tom Ridge, her Farm Show experience and the support of her family.

At the request of Hicks to provide advice to parents of a state fair queen, Randall said, "As long as you stand behind your daughter and support her she will do well."

In other business, Britcher was selected fairperson of the year for his more than 25 years service to the promotion of county fairs. He and his wife Ruth live in Newport.

"It came as a surprise," Paul said. "I had no idea and she (Ruth) didn't tell me. I feel quite priviledged to receive it."

A retired textile worker in the Newport area, as a member of the Perry County Pamona Grange, on April 29, 1969, Paul Britcher reported to his Grange members that efforts were underway to organize a Perry County fair. At that meeting the Grange approved financial and volunteer support of the project.

Paul said the committee started with $165.

The first Perry County Fair was held Oct. 6,7 and 8, 1972, after Paul and a committee with full support of the Grange continued work to contact appropriate state agencies and community people and found a site to serve as fairgrounds.

Paul and Ruth, who also raise

(Turn to Page B20)

American Kennel Club registered Dalmatians, have been involved in the fair ever since. Paul has been president of the county fair board for all of its 25 years.

Now held for five days in late August, the Perry County Fair sits on land previously owned by John Snyder, who originally leased the land to the fair committee for $1 per year, and then after about three years, sold the land to the committee under a 5-year agreement to pay it off. A year later, Snyder's life was claimed in a farm accident.

There are three buildings at the Perry County Fairgrounds, one is dedicated to Harry Schreiver, also a founding director, another to Stew Gibb and family, and another to Paul and Ruth.

The original nine-member board has been expanded to its current 15 members, and Paul said that again it has been his experience that many of the same people involved in the Grange have been driving forces behind not only the Perry County Fair, but many other county fairs.

"I would say we have a well-rounded fair, a nice exhibit of agricultural livestock, foods are pretty well distributed, a nice display of produce and commercial exhibits. It's an all-around nice county fair," Britcher said.

For its 25th anniversay, Britcher said the fair featured The Flying Wallendas — a world known high-wire acrobatic family act — that performed 11 shows in five days.

He said the fair attracts from 30,000 to 35,000 people during the week and has no admission charge, though it charges a parking fee.

Paul has also served as a member of the state fair association board of directors for eight years and he and Ruth have traveled to Las Vegas to the national fair convention for the past seven years.

"I personally like this (the state) convention more than the national," he said. "Here you're working with fairs about the same size. At the national they have some big fairs and there isn't always a lot in common."

In addition to his volunteer efforts for the county fairs, Paul also has been involved with helping with the Farm Show family living exhibits and competitions for the past four or five years.

A Grange member for 58 years, Britcher said he has met a lot of interesting and "wonderfull" people through his fair activities and Grange activities. "A lot of fair people are Grange people." He was state Grange chaplain six years ago.

As an aside, Britcher had brought along to Hershey a rabbit doll that he sewed to give to a fellow fairperson who had earlier bought another rabbit doll he sewed and donated for a fund-raising auction.

The rabbits were sewed from discarded World War II medical cloth and same-era feedsack cloth. The first rabbit was a female, named Ruth and her dress was made of the flower-pattern feedsack cloth.

The rabbit he brought along to give to the owner of "Ruth" was a male mate named, appropriately, "Paul," wearing a shirt made of the same feedsack cloth.

He said the person who bought "Ruth" paid $75. "I thought that was too much," he said, "so I made this one to give to her.

"I'm a much better sewer than a carpenter or handyman," he said.

And just as Randall advised parents of fair queens to support their daughters efforts, Paul said his five children and four grandchildren, especially Stacy Ebersole "have backed us 100 percent" in supporting fairs.

In addition to the fair queen selection and coronation, the annual PSACF convention serves to provide an opportunity for fair people, show people and associated people to meet.

Along with entertainment act promotions, exhibits and displays, as well as a talent showcase evening when acts perform in an attempt to get performance bookings at fairs, the convention goers have meetings of fair officials and seminars to attend.

Some of the topics this year included how to handle missing or lost children, the media during emergencies, violence on the fairgrounds, emergency management, concession management, taxes, ticket sales, methods of identifying paid attendees, show ethics, judging, and publicity.

As the American Dairy Goat Association Youth Representative, Katie Biddle will represent the ADGA at their national show and at the annual convention the following year. Katie was a former Pennsylvania Dairy Goat Ambassador.

Pennsylvania Woman Touts Goats Around The Nation

SPINDALE, N.C. — Mary Katherine Biddle, 19, daughter of Lewis and Gail Biddle of Boalsburg, Pennsylvania, was selected the 1995-1996 American Dairy Goat Association (ADGA) Youth Representative on October 17, 1995, during the ADGA Annual Convention held in Syracuse, New York. The ADGA, one of the most progressive livestock associations in the United States, is a registry for six breeds of dairy goats, with a current membership of more than 13,000 dairy goat enthusiasts from all over the world.

Each participant in the ADGA Youth Representative Competition was required to present a speech on a topic assigned to them at the meeting, answer questions about dairy goats, and provide a resume of achievements for the judges to consider. The winner represents the ADGA at their National Show and Annual Convention the following year.

When her parents became aware that she was lactose intolerant at only two years of age, they tried goat's milk at a friend's suggestion, and were astonished at the sudden improvement. Lactose intolerance is a problem faced by many people and Katie is dedicated to educating the public about the wonderful properties of goat milk as well as the other products of the goat industry such as cheese, yogurt, soap, ice cream, and butter.

Katie has been involved with the dairy goat industry for 14 years and currently has a herd of 32 Saanens, Alpines, and Nubians, which includes four permanent champions. Katie was the overall winner of the 1990 Centre County Livestock Judging Contest and the 1995 Champion overall fitter and showman at the Centre County Grange Fair. Katie is the president of the Penn State Students for the Responsible Use of Animals (SRUA) club and a volunteer at local wildlife rehabilitation facilities. Chairman of the Pennsylvania Governors School for Excellence in Agricultural Science, she was also the recipient of two Agricultural Science Scholarships this year.

Katie is pursuing her B.S. in dairy and animal science at Penn State University and plans to go on to graduate school to obtain an M.S. in animal behavior or nutrition. Afterwards, she hopes to become a professor, dividing her time between research and teaching.

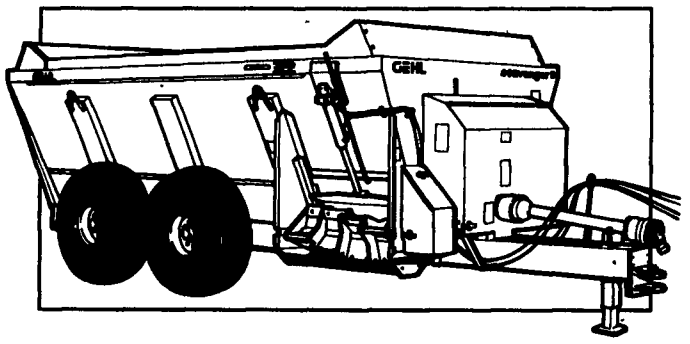
GEHL

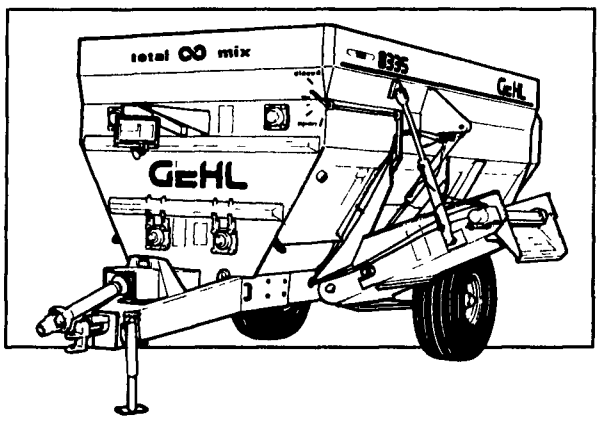
North America's #1 V-Tank Spreader



The Gehl Scavenger® II is the "original" V-Tank spreader and still the best. It delivers outstanding performance in all types of manure, from liquid to semi-solid to pen-packed manure

- Patented square-tube auger - Hydraulically powers up and down to break up solid material.
- Varifio discharge - Spreads smoothly and evenly for complete application control
- Five models - From 192 to 596 bushel heaped capacities to match your operation
- 10-Year warranty - Against rust-through on the tank for peace of mind.
- Options include - Truck-mounted units and hydraulic lids.

TMR "Total Mix" Mixer Feeders



Total Mix" TMR mixer feeders let you mix more long-stemmed hay into your ration - up to 30% by weight depending on hay type and moisture content

- "Hay - slicer auger "- Incorporates knife assemblies into the two bottom augers.
- Better mixing action - Four-auger design creates a double figure-8 mixing pattern for fast and complete mixing of all feed ingredients
- Five sizes - 150 to 455 cubic feet capacities.

Specialist Says Run Cattle On Paper, Then CRP Land

COLUMBUS, Ohio — An Ohio State University study shows that land coming out of the Conservation Reserve Program (CRP) can be profitably converted to a management-intensive grazing system.

However, livestock specialist Stephen Boyles said farmers should check the economics before buying cattle, fencing, and watering equipment. The cattle-feeding business might not make sense after start-up and production costs are figured against the likely livestock marketing price, he said.

"Run the cattle on paper first," Boyles said.

The federal government's Conservation Reserve Program contracted farmers to take land out of crop production for 10- or 15-year periods. The program was designed to limit supply of major grains, but it also took on conservation goals to keep highly erodible lands out of row crops and to provide wildlife habitat. Some of the contracts will expire Sept. 30, and farmers are considering how to put this land back to use, such as for growing grains or else raising livestock.

Boyles studied conversion to livestock production in this joint study last spring and summer in the Indian Lake Watershed in Logan County of west-central Ohio. Co-researchers were Max Mohler, Hardin County Extension agent, and B.W. Stoll, Natural Resources Conservation Service.

Cattle were rotated daily on 1.4-acre subplots among four sections of a 40-acre site seeded eight years ago in orchard grass, timothy and clover before entering the CRP. Red clover was frost-seeded there last March. The soil type was Napponnee St. Clair silty loam.

The project called for a stocking rate of 100 cattle, or an average 2.5 steers per acre. The herd was cut by 20 head when the steers arrived 100 pounds heavier than expected. The herd was reduced by another 20 head two months later due to low rainfall that slowed forage growth.

The study found forage quality sufficient to average a 1.4-pound daily rate-of-gain, or an average 351.1-pound gain per acre for the 149-day grazing period. Gross returns were $87.77 per head based on a charge of 25 cents per pound of gain.

The researchers found adequate forage quality, but the quantity was less than would be found on grazed land. This site had been mowed annually, and the clippings were not removed. The resulting thatch accumulation lowered soil temperature, diminished the stand, and created bare spots.

"Total forage production per acre may be less, the first year at least, on CRP land than on previously grazed pastures," Boyles said. "An initial stocking rate of less than two steers per acre may be more prudent."

However, intensive grazing kept forage in a vegetative state, and protein levels remained high at 18-30 percent on a dry matter basis.

As for animal requirements, the forage had adequate levels of most minerals. However, producers should consider providing salt, phosphorous, and selenium supplementation free-choice to insure against deficiencies.

Producers need to remember that pre-CRP cropping practices can affect forage quality. A forage analysis should be done to avert problems. The site in the study, for example, had high potassium levels. This can aggravate magnesium absorption and cause grass tetany sickness, although none occurred in this project.

As for water quality, the CRP-converted pasture was generally environmentally friendly. A rare problem occurred, however, when a heavy rainfall caused a high nitrate runoff after a fertilizer application.

Berks 4-H Offers Tractor Safety Certification

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — Tractors contribute to more than half of all fatalities on the farm, with the occupation of agriculture being the third most dangerous behind construction and mining.

Youth who operate farm machinery, often underestimate their vulnerability when operating a tractor. Also by law, youth under the age of 15 must be certified to operate a tractor as hired labor.

For these reasons, a 4-H Tractor Safety and Certification program is offered by Berks County Cooperative Extension for all youth. Youth need not be 4-H members in order to participate.

The program is scheduled for Tuesday and Thursday evenings beginning on Tuesday, Feb. 27. The course ends with a written and driving tests scheduled for Saturday, March 16.

Classes are held at the Berks County Ag Center and the Teen Challenge Farm Rehrersburg. The cost for the program is $5 to cover the cost of educational manual.

NEW WATER REGULATIONS TO IMPACT POULTRY PRODUCERS

Leon Ressler
Extension Agent
Agriculture/Environment

The Susquehanna River Basin Commission (SRBC) adopted a new regulation on May 11, 1995 that requires all surface and groundwater withdrawals of 10,000 gallons per day (based on the average over 30 consecutive days) to be registered with the SRBC.

This regulation applies to all current water use regardless of when it began.

Pennsylvania, New York, and Maryland are member states in the commission. Each member state must individually approve the registration program before it can be implemented in that state.

Existing agricultural water use operations have until March 31, 1997 to register water use. This includes any operation coming into existence prior to March 31, 1997. New agricultural operations begun after March 31, 1997 must register their intended water withdrawals before initiating water use.

The SRBC has developed a simple registration form for your use. There are no registration fees.A layer operation with 125,000 birds would use approximately 10,000 gallons per day. A broiler or pullet operation with more than 250,000 birds would also use approximately 10,000 gallons per day.

If you have other livestock, irrigate, or use water in an evaporative cooling system, you need to add that use as well to determine your total use.

While at first glance this could appear to be an additional regulatory burden, there are a number of benefits for agriculture with this program. The SRBC has the responsibility to manage water use in the basin to ensure that the needs of all water users are met. With water use information provided by registration, the SRBC will be better able to protect current users needs when evaluating new proposals in your area which would consume significant amounts of water.

There is no question that demand for water in the Northeast will continue to grow. While we are a water rich region relative to the arid west, our water supply is not available uniformly throughout the year. Therefore there are times each year when demand exceeds supply. This inevitably will lead to more water use conflicts in the future as demand grows.

Registration enables current users to document current water use which will put them in a stronger legal position should future conflicts occur. Registration does not create a water right. However, registration does not limit property rights in any way either.

Since each state must individually approve the registration program, the program will not be identical across the states. Since Maryland already has an existing registration program in place, information from the Maryland state permit program will be used for the SRBC program to avoid duplication of efforts.

Pennsylvania has agreed with implementing the program according to the effective dates in the regulations. As of this writing, New York has not yet decided on an implementation schedule.

Another regulatory change passed last spring requires approval of any new surface water withdrawal of over 100,000 gallons per day. This is not likely to impact poultry producers since very little surface water is used in poultry operations.

Aging Silos Raise Safety Concerns

SCHILLER PARK, Ill. — According to a story in the October 1995 issue of the Wisconsin Agri-view, a "silo collapse crisis" is evident throughout Wisconsin, according to Wisconsin Reinsurance Corporation, the umbrella insurer for 87 of the 99 town mutuals in the state.

According to the magazine, more than 15 uprights have collapsed in Wisconsin in the past couple of years. That's the number reported to the town mutual — not to other insurers.

There's a potential for loss of life and thousands of dollars in damage because of the aging, dangerous silos. Many are getting old and are in need of repair. According to Agri-view, many have been subject to too-wet hayl-age or corn silage, which results in seepage, rusts metal components, and eats away at cement.

Bruce Johnson is president of the International Silo Association, with members that include silo manufacturers, silo repair companies, silo hardware suppliers, and unloading equipment manufacturers. Headquartered in West Lafayette, Ind., the association has a silo operator's manual which outlines preventive maintenance, safety concerns, and the like. Silo owners can get a copy, for a small fee, from the asssociation by calling (317) 742-0083.

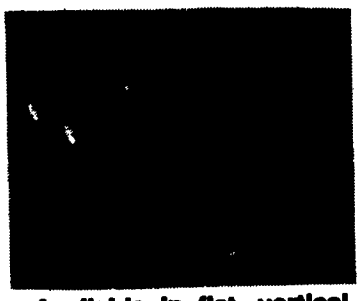
Mulch-Till Cultivator Is Versatile, Powerful

RACINE, Wis. — The new Case IH 4300 mulch-till field cultivator offers unsurpassed versatility and flexibility in soil preparation.

Available in flat, vertical-fold and double-fold profiles, the 4300 cultivator's modular design gives farmers the flexibility to grow. It is available in widths ffom 16 to 53 feet and can be increased in size if desired. The 4300 grows with the farmer.

And it creates some excellent growing conditions, according to Dave Duff, Case Corporation product marketing specialist.

"The Vibra Shanks® bring the clods and residue to the surface where they are broken down, while the fine, loose soil is shifted down around the seed bed," Duff said. "With just one pass, even in high-residue conditions, the 4300 prepares a seedbed that's really going to enhance seed-to-soil contact during the planting operation."



Available in flat, vertical-fold profiles, the new Case IH 4300 mulch-till field cultivator offers versatility and flexibility in soil preparation. It is available in widths from 16 to 53 feet.

The Vibra Shank vibrates faster than other shanks, causing aggressive stirring action for better chemical incorporation. The soil stirring is accomplished with the Vibra Shank trip load system, set with 110-pound tension. This trip load tension allows for optimum vibrating action which is essential for accurate fertilizer and chemical incorporation. Less trip load could lead to constant tripping or forcing the shank on its nose, leading to erratic depth control. Too much tension slows down the vibrating action and interferes with chemical and fertilizer incorporation.

But when customers need more trip force, for instance, when facing exceptionally tough soils during spring primary tillage, Case offers the Vibra Chisel® shank which is set with a 180-pound trip load.

Farmers concerned with meeting compliance levels for soil erosion will find the 4300 makes it easier to manage residue. "The 4300 will recapture residue buried by previous tillage practices," Duff said. "The cultivator has a true five-rank shank spacing. Heavy residue passes through the ranks without plugging because of the wider distance between shanks." The results are greater flexibility to meet varied field conditions and reduced trips through the field.

Dekalb Appoints Vet Director

DEKALB, Ill. — Dekalb Swine Breeders, Inc. has announced the appointment of Dr. Bill Brown to the newly-created position of director of veterinary services.

Brown began his career with Dekalb in 1992 as staff veterinarian at the Dekalb Foundation Farms in Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas, and Illinois. He earned his bachelor of science and doctor of veterinary medicine degrees from Kansas State.

Brown is a member of the American Association of Swine Practitioners, the American Veterinary Medical Association, the Kansas Veterinary Medical Association (KVMA), the United States Animal Health Association, the American Association of Industrial Veterinarians, and the American Association of Food Hygiene Veterinarians. He also serves on the Kansas Board of Veterinary Medical Examiners and is the chairman of the KVMA Strategic Planning Committee.

Grain Sorghum Yield Contest Names Winner

DEKALB, Ill. — Richard Schmalz, of Doylestown, has been named Pennsylvania first place winner in the National Grain Sorghum Producers yield and management contest.

Schmalz earned First Place in the no-till non-irrigated division with a yield of 99.76 bushels per acre of Dekalb brand DK36 grain sorghum.

The farm conosists of 510 acres of grain sorghum, wheat, corn and soybeans. Schmalz planted 175 acres to grain sorghum in 1995.

In addition to 43 years of farming experience, Schmalz attributes his success to good management and good seed. "I used soil tests to get my lime and fertilizer to proper levels," he said, I also used a good seed number."

Feed Specialist To Open Facility

LITITZ (Lancaster Co.) — EMM Sales & Service, bulk feed transportation specialist, has just signed an agreement to purchase four acres of land located at 127 Zook Mill Road in the Brownstown Industrial Park.

There is a 15,000-square-foot pre-engineered metal building and 3,000-square-foot outside covered storage area. The facility will include offices, parts department, four drive-through service bays, a 60-foot paint booth, and Pennsylvania State Inspection station.

Thurmont Cooperative Holds Meeting

THURMONT, Md. — The annual stockholders meeting of the Thurmont Cooperative, Inc. was held recently at the New Midway Fire Hall.

Manager Jerry Lillich reported an 11.9 percent increase in sales and a profit of $49,000 after taxes for the fiscal year October 1, 1994 to September 30, 1995. Several new pieces of machinery were put in service and two new (used) trucks were purchased. He also reported the retirement of life-long employee, Clarence Harbaugh.

Kim Stup gave a report of the Maryland Institute of Cooperatives held at the Maryland 4-H Center and the National Institute of Cooperative Education Conference in Minneapolis, Minn. Stup urged the youth in attendance to fill out an application for the 1996 Maryland Institute of Cooperative Education Conference to be held March 8 - 10 at the Frederick County 4-H Camp Center. These can be picked up at your milk or feed cooperative.

Directors elected for 3-year terms were Dallas McNair, Robert Black, and Doug Long.

The other members of the board of directors are president, Rodman and Myers; vice president, Mehrle Ramsburg; secretary, Paul Baumgardner; treasurer, Dallas McNair, Jeff Wivell, James Stup, and Joe Wivell. Manager is Jerry Lillich and assistant manager is Mary Ann Sharer.

Shop Has Hydraulic, Pneumatic Supplies, Service

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — Beiler Hydraulics, which offers a full line of hydraulic and pneumatic supplies and service, began as a small two-man operation with a goal to serve Lancaster County.

At a time when farm prices skyrocketed and demands for land exceeded supply, the Amish were forced to either go into business, move to remote areas, or find a job. Since the Amish do not use electricity, this created an increasing demand for hydraulics and pneumatics.

Established in 1979, Beiler Hydraulics operated in an old 2,000-square foot chickenhouse and repaired pumps, motors, and cylinders. They also converted all types of machinery into hydraulic or air-motor powered devices.

On the July 4, 1985 weekend, Beiler Hydraulics moved to a new 10,000 square foot building with a 4,000 square foot shop area, including two truck bays. Exactly 10 years later, the business was sold to James N. Zimmerman and moved to a new location on South Groffdale Road in Leola, expanding to 20,000 square feet and 20 employees.

At the time Beiler Hydraulics was sold, it consisted of hydraulics, pneumatics, power transmission, and pressure washers. The hydraulics, pneumatics, and power transmissions moved into the new building. The washer business stayed in the old building with its original owner (John L. Beiler) operating as Beco Equipment.

Beco Equipment and Beiler Hydraulics have scheduled open houses. Beco Equipment has set an open house on Tuesday, Jan. 30. Beiler Hydraulics has scheduled an open house on Thursday, Feb. 15. Both open houses will feature plenty to eat and product information and educational seminars.

Angus Pen, Carload Champions Named At National Western

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. — A total of 41 Angus pens and five carloads competed for championships Jan. 13 at the 1996 National Western Stock Show's Angus Pen and Carload Show in Denver, Colo. The show was judged by Jim Newsome, Jackson, Miss.; Keith Russell, Berthoud, Colo.; and Ken Stielow, Paradise, Kan.

Whitestone Krebs, Gordon, Neb., captured the grand champion banner for their pen of three bulls sired by Connealy Dateline. The pen had an average weight of 1,027 pounds, average frame score of 6.1, average backfat depth of .17 inches, and an average scrotal circumference of 36.5 centimeters. Late calf champion pen honors also went to the calves born in March and April 1995.

Reserve grand champion pen of three honors went to Express Angus Ranch, Shawnee, Okla., on January yearling calves sired by Rito 9FB3 of 5H11 Fullback and Rito 3W3 of OJ2 Rito 9FB3. Averages on the pen were a weight of 1,287 pounds, frame score of 6.0, backfat depth of .17 inches, and scrotal circumference of 35.1 centimeters. They also won the early calf champion division.

In carload competition, Quirk Land & Cattle Co., Hastings, Neb., took the grand champion award. Ten calves born in February and March of 1995 and sired by Krugerrand of Donamere 490 and Jauer 92R Oscar 2112 6126 were in the winning load. The average weight of the group was 1,207 pounds, with an average frame score of 6.6. The average backfat depth was .26 inches and scrotal circumference was 37 centimeters.

Whitestone Krebs, Gordon, Neb., exhibited the reserve grand champion carload. The winning load was sired by O S U 6T6 Ultra, D A R Fortune Teller 320, E&B 711 Oscar 350, Gardens Fortune 132 S1, Connealy Dateline, and G A R Sleep Easy 1009. They had an average weight of 1,212 pounds, an average frame score of 6.4, and average backfat depth of .22 inches, and an average scrotal circumference of 38.4 centimeters.

NFU Convention Set For Cincinnati March 8-11

DENVER, Colo. — The 94th anniversary convention of the National Farmers Union has been set for March 8-11 at the Hyatt Regency Hotel in Cincinnati.

Nearly 1,000 Farmers Union members from across the United States are expected to attend the four-day meeting, which carries the theme, "Family Farming — The American Way."

The convention will open Friday, March 8 with a keynote address by U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Dan Glickman. Glickman is expected to discuss the implications of the ongoing federal budget debate and new farm policies on U.S. farmers. It's unclear now as to whether a new five- or seven-year farm bill will be in effect by March since farm bill proposals have been sidetracked by the budge impasse.

Glickman has enjoyed a friendly relationship with the farm group, having been recipient of NFU's "Golden Triangle Award" last summer for his work on crop insurance reform. Glickman took over as agriculture secretary in 1995.

Former U.S. Senator and 1972 presidential nominee George McGovern will address the Farmers Union's annual political action committee luncheon on March 9. The South Dakota Democrat who served three terms in the Senate will discuss the 1996 political climate heading into the fall elections and the recent effects of farm policy decisions on farmers.

Representative Marcy Kaptur (D-OH) will speak Sunday, March 10. Kaptur, a strong farm policy advocate, received national attention for her opposition to the North American Free Trade Agreement in 1994. Kaptur continues to be a critic of NAFTA and has called for hearings into the agreement's effects on farmers and workers.

The NFU convention will feature a workshop on precision farming that will demonstrate how satellite technology is allowing farmers to isolate problem crop areas and pinpoint fertilizer and pesticide applications. Another workshop will examine the environmental impact of highly concentrated livestock production.

The convention will culminate with the adoption of the farm group's annual policy statement on Monday, March 11.

To Hold Beginning Farmer Workshop

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.)—If you are an aspiring or new farmer and not fortunate enough to have an older farmer show you the ropes, or if you would like to learn new, sustainable methods of farming, a day-long conference is scheduled on Thursday, Feb. 8 at the Nittany Lion Inn in University Park.

The conference begins with registration from 7:30-9 a.m. and ends at 4:30 p.m.

Organic vegetable grower Chip Plank promises to begin your day with his inspiring messages about learning by doing and by starting this spring. Plank's upbeat and useful comments will provide the groundwork for a panel discussion by experienced livestock and produce farmers on what it takes to get started.

Following the panel discussion, concurrent sessions will address beginning farmer loans, management intensive grazing, vegetable production, writing a business plan, legal considerations in a farm transfer, farmland protection efforts, marketing/planning, dairy production, cash flow, alternative agricultural ventures, and the workings of the Pennsylvania Farm Link program.

In an effort to promote and sustain family farming in Pennsylvania, the Pennsylvania Farm Link program and the Pennsylvania Association for Sustainable Agriculture (PASA) are jointly sponsoring this beginning farmer workshop.

Pennsylvania Farm Link, a component of the Center for Rural Pennsylvania, brings together experienced farmers nearing retirement, or other interested landholders, with beginning farmers looking to operate their own farm.

There is a fee to cover lunch, breaks, and administrative costs. Please contact the PASA office at (814) 349-9856 or Pennsylvania Farm Link at (800) 9PA-FARM to obtain registration information.

Silo Unloader Has High Performance Features

FORT ATKINSON, Wis. — A new surface drive silo unloader, combining a high performance impeller with specially designed augers for greater capacity and reduced maintenance, is available from Van dale.

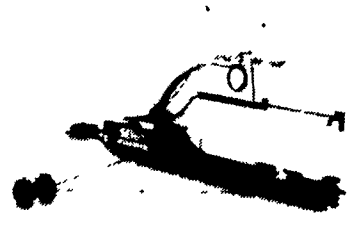
The Van Dale Magnum II Surface Drive Unloader incorporates new high performance features to improve durability and increase operating efficiency.

The Magnum II's new design includes a Hi-Perform™ impeller that offers greater capacity and easier maintenance. The Hi-Perform™ impeller uses a specially designed ¼ -inch stainless steel backwrapper that reduces gum buildup to increase throwing velocity and durability. An adjustable ¼ -inch abrasion resistant cut-off plate minimizes wear in the upper throat area. And the 27-inch diameter impeller allows greater unloading performance, while 10-gauge steel side plates provide added rigidity for longer service life.

For greater service life and improved durability, the Magnum II unloader uses Van Dale's exclusive Saber™ Edge Augers. The Saber™ Edge Auger design features a cold rolled steel manufacturing process that beefs up the outside edge of the auger flighting, the area of greatest wear, with an average flighting thickness increase of up to 20 percent.

This new auger design provides even more durability and dependable performance. The 16° forward pitch flighting moves material toward the center of the auger tube for more capacity, with less wear and greater efficiency.

The Magnum II's new "Sure-Shot" discharge assembly features a stainless steel chute adapter and starter chute — along with a galvanized steel chute extension — for added durability and greater protection in high wear areas. The multi-radius chute also allows more accurate and improved out-the-door throwing power.



A new surface drive silo unloader, combining a high performance impeller with specially designed augers for greater capacity and reduced maintenance, is available from Van Dale.

N.Y. Farm Bureau Schedules 'Classroom At Capitol'

ALBANY, N.Y.—At the end of April, high school juniors from around the state will come to Albany for New York Farm Bureau's 27th Annual Governmental Awareness Institute. Slated for May 14-15, this year's program will be headquartered at the Albany Marriott.

According to Mark F. Emery, NYFB's director of communications, "This Institute offers students a firsthand look at how their state government really works and what role they can play. We bring in the key players in Albany to give them an inside look at our state governmental process."

Emery said, "Last year's students heard from Governor George Pataki, State Senate Majority Leader Joe Bruno, State Senator Nancy Larraine Hoffmann, State Assemblyman Bob Oakes, political commentator Dr. Alan Chartock, Assistant New York Attorney General Bob Farley, Dwight Brown of the N.Y. Farm Bureau, and David Salmonsen from the N.Y. State Department of ag and markets. We are currently lining up a number of excellent speakers for this year's institute. In addition to a tour of the capitol, the program also includes a three-hour computer game that tests the political mettle of each student by putting them in the shoes of a lawmaker for a full term."

High school juniors interested in attending the 1996 Governmental Awareness Institute should contact the chairman of their school's social studies department, an agriculture teacher, the county Farm Bureau president in their area, or call N.Y. Farm Bureau's Communications Department at (518) 436-8495 before Feb. 5.

Forage Conservation Easily Done In Former CRP Ground

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Land coming out of the Conservation Reserve Program can keep a good thing growing if farmers convert it to forage production, said agronomists for Ohio State University and the Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS).

Former CRP ground may be easily converted for hay production or pasture since much of it was planted in cool-season, warm-season grasses or legume mixes, said Norman Widman, NRCS agronomist for Ohio. Keeping the land for forage uses will maintain the soil conservation benefit and be a good habitat for wildlife, he said.

"That's our No. 1 recommendation and hope, that much of it stays in pasture or hayland if possible," Widman said.

Ohio State University forage agronomist Mark Sulc said farmers need to assess their grass stand and fertilization needs before converting to forage production. Nitrogen might be needed because legume populations probably deteriorated during the CRP contract lifetime, he said.

The 10-year CRP contracts begin to expire on Sept. 30. To get land ready, this summer farmers can spot mow species listed on the Ohio Noxious Weeds List. Otherwise mowing is prohibited until Aug. 1. Farmers are allowed to use herbicides any time to control noxious or other weed problems.

After Aug. 1, farmers should start mowing monthly to even out clumpy forage growth, Widman said. Warm-season perennial grasses should be mown no less than 6-8 inches and not between Sept. 1 and a killing frost.

Some farmers will benefit right after contract expiration by baling the clippings for straw, Widman said. Producers also can turn cattle loose to pasture right after the contract expires. At least one mowing or continued grazing is recommended after a killing frost to reduce the dead stubble in next year's hay crop.

As for fertilization needs, Sulc recommends that farmers assess their legume populations in CRP lands. "If less than 20 to 25 percent of it is in legumes, then we recommend nitrogen applications of 150 to 180 pounds per acre per year," Sulc said.

Nitrogen applications should be split the year after contract expiration, Sulc said. A farmer should apply 70-80 pounds in early spring or right after the grass turns green. Fifty pounds more per acre should be applied after each of the next two cuttings.

Reducing excessive thatchy growth is important if farmers want to interseed legumes, Sulc said. Thatch buildup will blanket the ground, preventing seed penetration into the soil. Thatch can be reduced considerably by either harvesting or grazing the field for the year prior to interseeding.

Sulc also recommends that producers base phosphorous and potassium fertilization on expected hay yields. A yield of one dry ton of alfalfa or tall grass hay per acre removes 50 pounds of potash (K20) and 13 pounds of phosphate (P205). At those rates, a 5-ton per acre hay crop will remove 300 pounds of potash per acre and 65 pounds of phosphate per acre. Top-dress fertilizer to replace these nutrients.

If CRP land is grazed, the above fertilization levels should be lowered. Grazing animals will recycle nutrients as manure back to the soil. The adjusted fertilizer rate depends on how uniformly the manure is distributed across the pasture.

For more information about converting CRP lands to various uses, consult Ohio State University Extension Fact Sheet, AGF-024, "Converting CRP Land to Cropland or Pasture/Hayland: Agronomic and Weed Considerations." It is available at local Extension offices or via the OSU Ohioline home page at http://www.ag.ohio-state.edu/-ohioline/ .

General information about forage production and management is available in the recently revised Ohio Agronomy Guide, also available at local Ohio extension offices.

National Western Show Draws Record Entries

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. — Angus breeders from across the United States and around the world gathered Jan. 10-13 for the 1996 National Western Stock Show Super Roll of Victory (ROV) Angus Show in Denver, Colo.

A record-breaking 363 entries were paraded for lead judge Gary Dameron, Lexington, Ill., and associate judge Doug Hixon, Laramie, Wyo., during the two days of Angus shows.

WK Sadie was selected grand champion from the 254 heifer entries in the competition. The February 1994 daughter of Leachman Right Time was first named the junior champion. She is owned by Whitestone Krebs, Gordon, Neb., and Nick Wagner, Lafayette, Ind.

Reserve grand champion female laurels were awarded to VAR Forever Lady 4304. Vintage Angus, Modesto, Calif., exhibited the March 1994 reserve junior champion heifer that is sired by G D A R Executive 727.

Sedgwicks Dividend 4174 collected his third Super ROV grand champion title in the 109-head bull competition. The March 1994 son of TC Dividend 963 first won the junior division. He is owned by McCurry Brothers, Sedgwick, Kan.; Black Wave, Middletown, Md.; and Middlefield Farms, Ft. Collins, Colo.

WK Status walked away with reserve grand champion bull honors. Whitestone Krebs, Gordon, Neb., and T S Farms, Holdrege, Neb., exhibited the March 1994 son of C H Stacker 7040. He first won reserve junior bull champion.

North American Farm Director Marketing Conference Feb. 22-24

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N.Y. — The 11th annual North American Farmers' Direct Marketing Conference will be hosted by New York and the seven New England States in Saratoga Springs, N.Y. on Feb. 22-24.

The conference will have 30 concurrent sessions with more than 54 hours of education available and offer two tours of New England farm markets.

The trade show, which runs concurrent with the educational program, will include 80 to 100 exhibitors displaying supplies and services for farm direct marketers.

Just before the educational programs start, there will be a three-day preconference tour on Feb. 20-22 to innovative farm markets in New England. On Thursday, Feb. 22, there will be a special seminar for farmers' market managers and the New York State Berry Growers meeting, as well as an inservice training program for extension and dept. of agriculture staffs.

The two-day educational program for direct marketers begins with an opening session on Thursday evening highlighted by New England story teller Judson D. Hale Sr., editor-in-chief of "Yankee Magazine," and "The Old Farmer's Almanac." This will be followed on Friday and Saturday with multiple sessions on topics pertaining to farmers markets, roadside markets, pick-your-own operations, agricultural tourism, value-added marketing, and agricultural economic development.

The opening session will start at 9 a.m. on Friday with New York Governor George Pataki and his wife Libby as the keynote speakers. They will be followed by a panel discussion entitled "Direct Marketing, a Turning Point for Farming in New York and New England."

There will be concurrent educational sessions the rest of the day, with topics including strengthening community linkages, readjusting pick your own to today's realities, physical layout, attracting motorcoaches, consumer connections, using technology to track business performance, purchasing products for the farm market, special events, benefits of selling at a farmers market, and making mail order work.

On Friday evening from 4:30 to 6:30, there will be a tasting event in the trade show area featuring New England specialty foods. Exhibitors and local businesses will be serving specialty items for people to sample. From 8:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. there will be an auction and free ice cream social. The proceeds of the auction go to the New York State Farm Direct Marketing Association.

On Saturday morning, several meetings will take place. From 7:30 a.m. to 8 a.m. the New York State Farm Direct Marketing Association annual meeting will be held followed by the annual meeting of the North American Farmers' Direct Marketing Association which will feature the election of board members.

A full day of concurrent educational sessions will follow, with topics including making the most of media contacts, strategies for business expansion, designing displays to communicate a market's image, agri-tourism, the do's and don'ts of salesmanship, developing processed food products, integrating education into the shopping experience, understanding the younger employee, creating quality newsletters, farm markets of New Zealand and Australia, customer service, pricing, tricks of the trade, and Halloween Canadian style.

The annual banquet will be held Saturday starting at 6 p.m. and will feature a New England country buffet dinner and the musical comedy act of Burns & Kaufman. There will also be dancing starting at 9:30 p.m.

A one-day post-conference tour will be held on Sunday, Feb. 25, where farm markets in New York's Hudson Valley will be featured.

The conference is being cosponsored by direct farm marketing associations, agriculture departments, and the extension services in New York, Massachusetts, and the other New England states, as well as the North American Farmers' Direct Marketing Association. Headquarters for the conference are the Saratoga Springs Sheraton and City Center located in the resort community of Saratoga Springs, New York, 25 miles north of Albany off Route 87, the Northway. Major airlines are served by the Albany airport and conference shuttle service is available.

Hotel reservations can be booked by calling the Sheraton at (518) 584-4000. The conference rate is $75 plus tax, single, double, or triple. Other information about the area can be obtained from the Saratoga Convention and Tourism Bureau by calling (518) 584-1531.

Ag In The Classroom Workshop Set

GETTYSBURG (Adams Co.)—The 1996 Ag-In-The-Classroom teacher working will be conducted by the Agriculture Awareness Foundation of Pennsylvania (formerly the Pennsylvania Foundation for Better Living) during the week of July 21-26 at Penn State University in State College.

The week-long course, which excites and educates the elementary school teachers about agriculture, is sponsored by the Adams County Farm Bureau for any teacher who is interested in becoming more familiar with agriculture.

Teachers attending this workshop learn about all aspects of the agricultural industry, get to tour farms and meet real farmers, and leave with lots of hands-on materials they can use in their classrooms. They will return home inspired to teach their children about agriculture.

For many teachers attending, this will be their first introduction to agriculture within Pennsylvania. The programs serves as an educational tool which can help to bridge the gap between farmers and the public. It helps those who do not have an agricultural background to understand the broad scope of the industry and are introduced in creative ways to integrating agriculture into their existing curriculums.

A special emphasis will be placed on jobs relating to the agricultural industry. There will be hands-on projects that can be taken back and integrated into the classrooms. The activity-packed agenda includes tours of evergreen, beef, sheep and fruit farms, supermarkets, mushroom research center and the dairy processing center, in addition to the many presentations.

Anyone knowing of an interested teacher who would want to benefit from a valuable seminar, contact Tina Wilkinson, chairperson of the Adams County Farm Bureau Women's Committee, (717) 677-4477.

Growers Earn Top Honors In Sorghum Contest

ABERNATHY, Texas—Although many producers had a hard time getting Mother Nature to cooperate this past year, some producers got the good weather they needed to produce some outstanding yields. Twelve of those producers are national winners in the 1995 grain sorghum yield and management contest.

Contestants earn a score based on the amount they produce over their county's five-year average yield per acre as reported by the National Agricultural Statistics Service. Contestants with the highest score win state honors, and only state first-place winners are eligible to compete for national honors. The contest is divided into four divisions, with winners being named in first, second, and third places in each division.

In the irrigated conventional tillage division, first place went to Leila Beaver of Sterling, Neb., second place went to Jerry Kelm of Plainview, Texas, while third place went to Mark Witt of Hooker, Okla.

Winners in the dryland conventional tillage division are Edward Nossick of Secretary, Md., in first place; Rolling Acres Farms of Concord, N.C., in second place; and Patrick Newcomb of Hanover, Va., in third place.

The no-till irrigated division winners are Chris Beaver of Sterling, Neb., first; James Newcomb of Hanover, Va., second; and Louis Hatcher and Magnolia Plantation of Leary, Ga., third.

First place in the no-till dryland division went to Lindy Knoettgen of Clifton, Kan.; second place went to G&B&J Eden Farms of Iowa City, Iowa; and third place went to Ken-Maur Farms of Owensboro, Ky.

Leila Beaver's yield of 194.78 bushels per acre more than doubled Johnson County's five-year average yield and earned a score of 105.98. She said that a poor spring with too much rain got things off to a slow start and the field which had been intended for corn was replanted to sorghum. The rain was followed by hot June weather and a good growing season. Four inches of supplemental water were applied to the field during four waterings. Although an early freeze hit the area, the crop was ready to harvest and suffered no freeze damage.

Kelm, who had a yield of 179.69 bushels per acre, said that he has grown more sorghum than corn in recent years because it is more willing to wait for water than corn is and, with less irrigation water available in his area, that's an important consideration in deciding what to plant. With only 12 inches of rainfall for the entire year, he furrow-irrigated the crop three times during the growing season. Kelm said that he plants his sorghum in rotation with cotton and feels the rotation helps improve the yields for both crops.

Witt thinks that luck had much to do with his outstanding yield of 170.12 bushels per acre. While the area received moisture in the spring, little rain fell during the growing season. To compensate for the lack of rainfall, Witt ran his half-mile sprinkler system almost constantly from about the first of June until his crops were mature.

Nossick reported a yield of 161.23 bushels per acre, more than 102.43 bushels over Dorchester County's five-year average yield. He credits good weather for the outstanding yield, and said that rains fell just at the right time. Rains prior to planting provided good moisture to get the crop off to an excellent start and a 2-inch rain at flowering helped the crop along. Although the area sustained a warm, dry spell during July and August, the good soil moisture helped get the crop through.

Rolling Acres Farm is a family farming operation consisting of Larry Taylor, his cousin, Danny Cline, and Cline s mother, Betty Cline. Taylor said that the weather cooperated and provided a perfect growing season for the sorghum with above normal rainfall. Rolling Acres Farm uses a three-way rotation of soybeans, sorghum and wheat, and Taylor thinks that rotating the crops each year definitely improves yields.

Patrick Newcomb's yield of 156.89 bushels per acre almost tripled the county's five-year average yield per acre of 58.8 bushels. The grain sorghum was planted after dryland soybeans on 18 inch rows at a rate of 6 pounds per acre. Newcomb applied Bicep and AAtrex before planting to control weed problems.

Chris Beaver's no-till irrigated entry produced 162.99 bushels per acre, more than 74.19 bushels over Johnson County's average yield. He said that heavy spring rains were followed by a hot summer, so when an early freeze hit the area, the crop was already mature. The yield would have been better, Beaver said, but the sorghum followed soybeans and carryover from herbicides put on the field last year damaged the sorghum and decreased the yield.

James Newcomb double-cropped his sorghum behind barley and produced 110.14 bushels per acre. He said he has used no-till farming methods for a number of years and has had good luck with it. Newcomb uses a center pivot irrigation system to provide supplement water to the field. He applied about two inches of water to the contest field.

Hatcher, farm manager of the Magnolia Plantation, produced 72.01 bushels of sorghum per acre. He said that area rainfall was well short of the normal yearly average of 50 inches. A flowing springs pond on the farm provides irrigation water. Hatcher applied 6 inches of supplemental water to the sorghum, using a central pivot irrigation sprinkler system.

Knoettgen produced 137.20 bushels of sorghum per acre, which was double Clay County's average yield of 68.5 bushels per acre. He attributes his winning yield to luck, with the rains coming just right. At planting time, the fields were too wet to work so Knoettgen used no-till methods to plant the crop. He said that no-till conserves moisture and the soil still had moisture left when the sorghum crop needed it. He said that his no-till yields were better overall than the yields from the fields where he used conventional tillage methods.

Gary Eden of G&B&J Eden Farms said that the weather was not especially cooperative this year, with too much rain in the spring followed by a long dry spell during the summer. Although only 20 inches of rain fell, much of it fell during the spring causing planting to be delayed. After the first of July, almost no rain fell and soil moisture began to be depleted. Eden said the sorghum was able to tolerate the drought and produced 123 bushels per acre.

Ken-Maur Farms is run by the Ebelhar brothers: Lynn, Jerry and Grady. The Ebelhars were able to produce 148.04 bushels of sorghum this year, which is more than 60 bushels over Daviess County's five-year average yield per acre. The Ebelhars began using no-till about two years ago and liked the results they got since their soil is sandy and no-till methods help conserve vital moisture. While the area received about 40 inches of rainfall during the year, almost a third of it or more than 12 inches fell in May.

The state and national winners in the contest will be honored during the 1996 Sorghum Conference to be held in San Antonio on Feb. 18-19. For more information about the contest or the Sorghum Conference, contact the NGSP office at (806) 298-4501.

Year-Round Grazing Teleconference Set

HONESDALE (Wayne Co.)—Penn State Cooperative Extension will be hosting a teleconference designed for individuals considering or already grazing livestock.

The Four Seasons of Grazing will give participants an opportunity to visit, via videotape, three Pennsylvania farms that use rotational grazing. For a year-round look at the various operations, each farm is visited during the four seasons.

The morning presentations and discussions will focus on the spring, summer, and fall seasons. The afternoon satellite broadcast will feature the winter period and will have a call-in question-and-answer session.

The three farmers and Marvin Hall, Penn State forage management specialist, will address the questions. The discussion topics will include:

- How much does it cost to feed cows on pasture vs. confinement?
- How can calves and heifers be raised in a pasture-based dairy operation?
- When and how do you start grazing in the spring?
- What can be done when pasture growth slows in the summer?
- How do you stop grazing in the fall?
- How do experienced grazers adjust their grazing system each season?

The teleconference will be on Thursday, Feb. 8 from 9:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. at the Wayne County cooperative extension meeting rooms in Honesdale. A registration fee of $5 per person must be received by Feb. 2 to guarantee room at the site and to plan for the lunch that will be provided.

It's not too early to begin planning for storing your valuable feeds for 1996! Quality forages and grains become more important as margins decrease in the dairy and livestock industries.

When you think of "quality" feeds, you need to consider "quality" storage. Farmers all over the East (from Maine to Florida, and West to the Mississippi River), are turning to the poured concrete SOLLENBERGER SILO to protect the quality of their feeds.

Listen to what these farmers from VA say about their switch to a poured concrete silo for their hi-moisture shelled corn storage: "Even during the hottest summer in our memory, the shelled corn from our poured concrete silo has kept its bright yellow color and has not heated. We have the best hi-moisture shelled corn ever."

Signed: Keith Wilson, Paul Wilson, Gerald Garber, Cave View Farms, Inc., Weyers Cave, VA.

"THE BLIZZARD OF '93, THE SEVERE WINTER OF '94, and THE SNOWY FALL OF '95, all INCREASE YOUR APPRECIATION OF THE CONCRETE TOWER SILO"

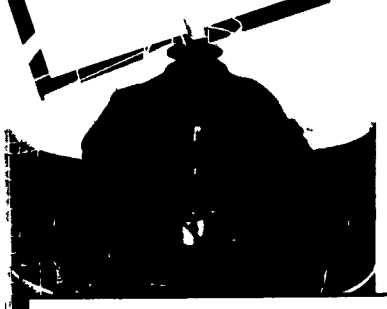
The Word Is Out!

B.U.C.S. Owner's Report
- ✔ Increased Storage Capacity
- ✔ Better Feed Quality
- ✔ Faster Unloading
- ✔ Lower Maintenance



The Jamesway Big Jim® B.U.C.S.™
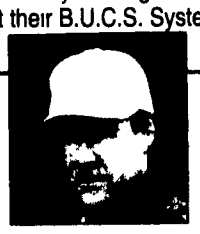
is making big news!

Reports are coming in from B.U.C.S. owners everywhere. And they're reporting that their systems are delivering increased storage capacity, higher quality feed, faster unloading and reduced maintenance versus their old systems. Even in silos that had been retired! But don't take our word for it. Here's what your neighbor has to say about their B.U.C.S. System!



OWNER'S REPORT #51

"We have two B.U.C.S. unloaders and get more material into the silos with much faster unloading And tests prove we have better quality feed. We have had no problems and feel these unloaders will have much lower maintenance and service costs "

Melvin Kreider, Millstone Acres, Mt. Joy, PA

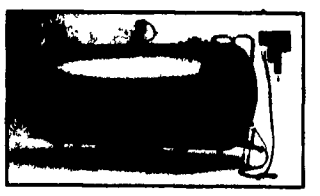
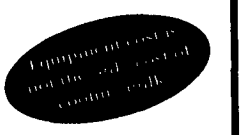
MUELLER
DAIRY FARM EQUIPMENT

Scroll-Compressor Technology
New in 1994



You may pay less for some dairy farm equipment... but it can cost you more!



In the long run, total operating costs of a Mueller® milk-cooling system are generally substantially less than those of "bargain-brand" milk-cooling equipment.

Example	Mueller	Competition
Cost of equipment	$31 000	$28 000
Cost of electricity @ .08 kW for 12 000 lbs milk/day for 10 years	$17 550	$22 850
Total operating cost for ten years	$48 550	$50 850
Savings	$ 2 300

HIGH TENSILE FENCE...THE FARMER'S BEST INVESTMENT
717-899-7617
BEAVER FENCE SYSTEMS

Darren Peachey, Belleville, PA

"The spring of 1995 was a turning point for our dairy operation as we moved from a high input operation to an intensive grazing system. Intensive Grazing has been everything we hoped it would be. Our cows are healthier and we have less labor per cow. The life of our machinery will be longer. All in all it spells higher profits.

The first thing we did was talk to other people who were grazing to get ideas that we could incorporate into our dairy operation. We hired Beaver Fence Systems to build high tensile fence around the entire farm and we use portable fence to divide the interior into paddocks.

Today's dairy economy does not allow us to keep doing things the way we have always done them. We need to keep looking for more profitable ways of producing milk and managing our land. Intensive grazing has made our business more profitable."

EARL SINKS - Brock, Texas

Say "Good-Bye" to back-breaking manure handling and cut stall clean-out time in half. Hook an affordable Millcreek Compact Spreader to your 10 hp garden tractor, take it right to the stall for easy loading. No more wheelbarrow.

Millcreek Spreaders last and last
Since spreaders are our specialty, we put more into each one. For example our 20-year guaranteed floor will never rust or rot. Positive chain drive provides excellent spreading action. And tough steel construction holds up to rugged farm use. Seven sizes, for 1-horse barns to 50-horse stables. PTO and ground drive models available.

For Snook, Standability's Most Important Factor

CAROLYN N. MOYER
Bradford Co. Correspondent

JERSEY SHORE (Lycoming Co.) — Some people say it's the rich river bottom soils that allow Ed Snook to take home the first-place ribbons in the Pennsylvania Corn Club's annual production contest. But according to the long-time corn grower and hog farmer, there are many factors that contribute to bumper corn crops.

"In the Five Acre Corn Club, I don't enter the same fields every year. I've had them in the Nippenose Valley on limestone ground and along the river. It's always pushed up to me that I have pig manure and river field, but we've had the Five Year Corn Club in seven or eight locations and we've won awards on all of them," he said.

In this year's contest, Snook placed first in the three-year average shelled grain class for the regular harvest size. His yield in 1992 was 191.8 bushels per acre. In 1993 he produced 201.6 bushels per acre and in 1994 he produced 194.1 bushels per acre for an average

Know Farm's 'Microenvironment,' Says Corn Grower President

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

MONTOURSVILLE (Lycoming Co.) — "You have to know the microenvironment of every place you farm in order to be able to make an intelligent choice in seed corn selection," said Curt Rakestraw, newly elected president of the Pennsylvania Master Corn Growers Association, Inc.

During an interview early last month with Lancaster Farming, Rakestraw toured several of the 31 different farm sites he rents in the farm valley north of North White Deer Ridge. At one Penn State research test plot (one of several early to medium season plots statewide) on land leased from Joe Youman's Farm in Fairfield Township, Rakestraw spoke about some of the important factors growers should consider when picking a variety.

Rakestraw farms about 1,100 acres of crops (700 acres in corn, 150 acres in small grain, and 150 acres in hay) with his brother Dave. Curt said that a farmer must know the qualities of the soil and the environment as a whole.

"We have some clay and rock," he said. "They say this is where the glaciers did their most damage. The edge of the glacer was right here. So we get a little bit of everything around here."

Rakestraw said a lot of the land he rents to grow corn has a lot of different varieties of soil, ranging from a Hagerstown silt loam to shaley loam to red clay. At one farm near the Lycoming Mall, he said "we were told there were 17 different soil types in three of the strips," he said "And I believe it. When you plow it, it just changes every hundred feet or so.

SIMPLY GRAND

The 2WD and 4WD Grand L-Series are powered by Kubota's low noise and vibration ETVCS diesel engines

Choose from Kubota's Glide Shift or Shuttle Transmissions A Creep Speed option is available for planting and spraying

Tilt wheel, power steering and full-floating ISO-mounted operator's deck lets you work in comfort Optional cab available for the L3600 and L4200

Take a look at a Grand L-Series today, and see why we call them simply grand Kubota.

KUBOTA'S HIGH EFFICIENCY, LOW NOISE TRACTOR

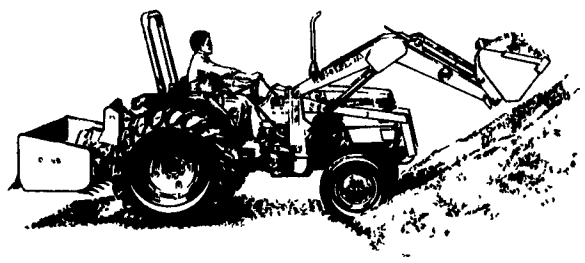
Kubota's newB2400 (24 HP) multi-functional tractor is extremely versatile and efficient, yet quietly powerful Equipped with Kubota's new E-TVCS 3-cylinder, liquid-cooled low emissions – "low noise" engine and an enclosed muffler and enclosed exhaust pipe.

Available in both 2WD and 4WD, a hydrostatic transmission – single pedal control of tractor speed and direction with no clutch, and Kubota's Bi-Speed Turn (reducing front wheel resistance) is optional.

Power steering, mid- and rear-PTO, operator comfort features, Kubota's performance-matched loaders and a line of heavy-duty implements enhance production and efficiency.

Kubota.

KUBOTA'S OUTSTANDING IN THE FIELD



Kubota's Grand L-Series and new M-Series diesel tractors have the power and versatility to farm all your fields

The 2WD and 4WD Grand L-Series delivers 25 37 PTO HP with four compact models to choose from

Equip the Grand L-Series with Kubota's Synchro-Shuttle or Glide Shift Transmission (GST)

Kubota's new M-Series diesel tractors increase your power with two models producing 42-50 PTO HP

Available in 2WD and 4WD, the new M-Series with Synchro shuttle constant mesh transmission, with 8 forward, 4 reverse speeds

The Grand L and new M-Series are powered by Kubota's Low Noise and Vibration E-TVCS diesel engines These high torque engines are economical, environment-friendly and easy to maintain

Kubota's performance matched implements connect in minutes keeping the Grand L-Series and new M-Series farming all your fields

Kubota.

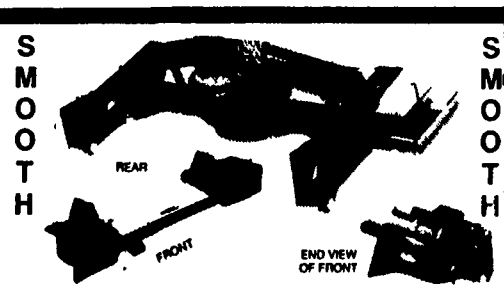
KELDERMAN AIR RIDE



Adding a Kelderman Air Ride Conversion system to your present suspension will result in a two stage suspension system. This is not to be confused with adding an Air bag mounted above the axle. Allows adding extra spring leafs to increase load rating and still maintain Air-Ride comfort.

Also available for some Ford, Chevy and GMC truck models. Special orders available for most motor homes. This option will smooth out the ride on those rough-road fishing/camping trips.

GEHL Box Spreaders

Low profile design means easy loading by skid loader, front end loader or barn cleaner.

Gehl-Tuff Flooring prevents the apron from freezing to the floor, allowing manure to slide out with little resistance. Less apron pull means less wear and tear on drives and apron chains. One piece construction won't flex under heavy loads.

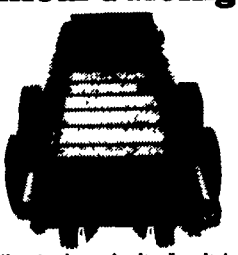
Optional hydraulic endgate rests in front of the beater paddles to secure sloppy loads and keep heaped material out of the beater unit you're ready to spread. An available litter pan reduces spills in the yard or roadway while enhancing the spread distribution.



Oscillating tandem wheels allow faster ground speeds while providing greater flotation. They're standard on the 325-bushel and 425-bushel models and optional on the 250-bushel model.

Twelve extra wide one-piece beater paddles are symmetrically positioned for broad, uniform spreads. Paddles are fabricated from tough, ¼" thick high strength steel. Bolt-on replacement tips are available to extend paddle life.

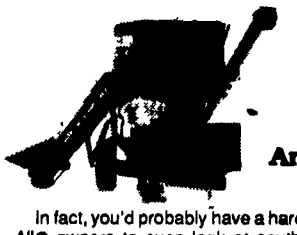
Model MX125 And Model MX170



In fact, you'd probably have a hard time convincing Gehl Mix-All® owners to even look at anything else. And why should they?

The Mix-All's big 21-inch wide hammermill features 66 reversible thin hammers that cut, rather than pound the feed to deliver a more consistent grind and ensure uniform mixing for a better feed-conversion rate.

Gehl's self-contained hydraulic system is designed-in, not added on. It provides the precision of infinitely variable in-feed attachment control to match tractor power for greater grinding capacity. Plus you get fast, smooth, trouble-free unloading with greater reliability.

And a wide variety of options and attachments lets you customize your Mix-All to fit any operation.

NO. 1 SPREADER

MADE FOR HARD WORK AND HEAVY LOADS

The Model 155 can handle up to 217 bushels on one load. The rugged A-frame hitch carries the load safely from below and does not pull it from the front.

Of course, the sides and floor boards will be replaced free for 12 years, if they fail. And only your New Holland dealer can offer this Bonded Protection.

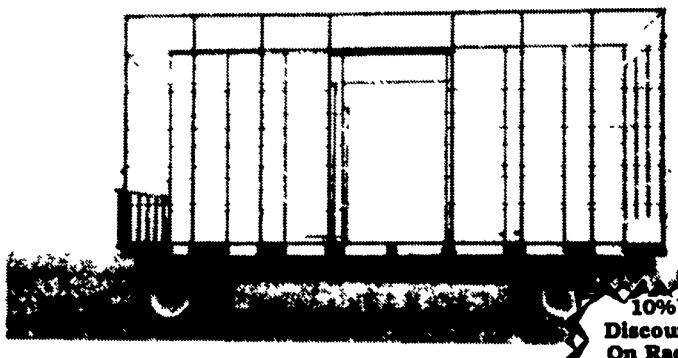
WELL BUILT Rack Wagons



10% Discount On Rack Wagons Ordered By January 31, 1996

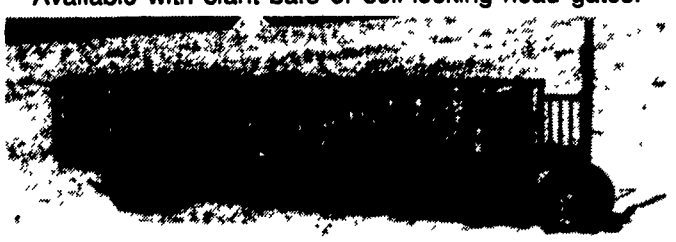
8' wide; 8' high; 16', 18' & 20' lengths
9' wide; 8' high; 16', 18' & 20' lengths

Description & Material Used:

- Two 4x8 fir stringers
- 3x4x8' oak cross members bolted to the fir stringers
- 18 ft. wagons have 9 cross members and 20 ft. wagons have 10 cross members
- Oak flooring nailed to the cross members with screw nails
- Racks are made out of 2" square tubing - 14' gauge - 1" square tubing between the uprights
- Swinging door at the back of the wagon; has quick release and swings 270 degrees one way
- Two 4' side openings with quick chain release
- Racks can be easily dismounted
- Painted John Deere Green or New Holland Red

FEEDER WAGONS

16', 21' and 27' lengths
Available with slant bars or self-locking head gates.



A great feature for feeding cattle in meadows or in feed lots. These wagons can be used to feed round hay bales, square bales or silage out of Ag bags or silos, etc.

21' has 26 head locks
27' has 32 head locks

- Feeder bottoms are sand blasted to remove rust & lead

MF 3120T 2/4WD Tractor

MASSEY-FERGUSON

Open platform configuration offers an unobstructed view of work areas to the front, sides and front axle area. Semi-flat floor deck provides plenty of leg room both under the pedals and between the seat and dash column. Deluxe spring suspension seat is vinyl covered to resist the elements. Seat adjusts six different ways to suit operator's needs. FOPS sun shade protecting the operator from the sun's heat and falling material, is standard equipment on the open platform model 3120T. Grab handles and nonskid steps aid in getting on and off the tractor.

Quiet, comfortable cab holds sound levels to the mid-70 dBA range, among the quietest in the industry. Two-door cab entry ensures easy access from either side. Select from a pneumatic swivel seat or a wide, fixed pneumatic seat, to provide you with the comfort demanded by farmers spending long hours in the field.

Discover CLAAS
THE HARVESTING SPECIALIST

North America has discovered CLAAS. This international harvesting machinery powerhouse has become a trusted friend to countless North American farmers.

FIRST...CLAAS IS A WORLD LEADER
CLAAS OGH, parent company of CLAAS of America, is a world leader in the design, manufacture and distribution of harvesting machinery, with a presence in 90 countries.

CLAAS manufactures the world's most popular combines and self-propelled forage harvesters in Harsewinkel, Germany, where they have produced over 350,000 combines and 7,000 forage harvesters.

NOW...CLAAS IS A NORTH AMERICAN LEADER
CLAAS of America truly is an American leader, with its marketing, parts and service headquarters located in Columbus, Indiana.

The Hay Division markets round and square balers, hay tools and forage harvesters. Its dealer network covers the United States and Canada. CLAAS is North America's leading importer of round balers.

CLAAS has further established its leadership position through its unique Harvest Center Division. Harvest Center is a comprehensive, factory-direct sales, service and parts support system with retail stores in Indiana and Ohio. It markets rubber tire combines, innovative track combines and a full line of hay machinery.
